Church Resolutions vs. The Saloon Resolution.

BY JOHN G. WOOLLEY.

[Extracts from a speech delivered in Boston before the convention of the United Societies of Christian Endeavor, July 11, 1895.

The case is between church resolutions and saloon resolution, plural versus singular, division versus solidity, a pious sprinkling pot versus an ocean current of practical politics, local option versus universal empire. Multiplication of fractions, that is to say, division, pursuing the saloon, which is an integer. The difficulty, dimly seen for years, has crystalized into the maxim, "Temperance people ought to get together." Of course we ought; but where? It happens at every change of the moon, that some pliable philanthropist pushes his peripatetic bandbox into the public square and challenges the saloon to mortal compromise upon some contemptible Scandinavian basis of profit-sharing, or the more brutally straightforward and American method of a fixed price for taking civic honor out of politics, and for the debasement of public virtue to the plane of stark revenue—like a brothel, and simpers to worn and anguished women and haggard, bergared men, as they crawl out of the wreckage of their drink-rent lives, "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for saints and saloon-keepers to vote together in unity."

And when some heart-wrung man cries out against the truculent infamy this same philanthropist sneers at him as a new-washed, impudent drunkard, "over scrupulous," "a maligner of the Church," "an auxiliary of the saloon," while the bell Pharisee, with honesty at half-mast, struts into politics and delivers over the Christian vote into "a league with death and a covenant with hell," and answers the wail of stricken homes, the voice of the Church and the plain word of God, with the pusillanimous logic of the bargain counter: "It is not what we want, but it is cheap," and then, upon election day the voting Church eagerly ambles after a party leader to the polls and silently ratifies his offer of a lease of God's world to satan, for a mess of spoils, and would mitigate the perfidy by saying that wrong is sometimes right in politics. And that is a lie, as black as ever flapped its bat wings at the glory of a sunset!

And I, for one, dare stand apart and be a fool for Christ's sake, and call wrong wrong, in religion or politics, in New York City or hell or Norway. For a man, a woman, a city, a state or a nation to buy the truth and sell it" is treason against the God of Truth, label it what you may: "tax" in Ohio, "license" in Massachusetts, "mulct" in Iowa or "bribe" in New York, it is shame everywhere and forever. We would better stay apart eternally than get together in the nicest wrong.

Take a vote upon the various propositions that have came up in this reform and there is just one that can command the universal sympathy of Christians and that is that "the saloon ought to die."

Then why not kill it? Why have we not voted it to death long ago? The answer is very simple and brings me at once to the gist of this argument. We have not voted the saloon to death because the ruling politicians would not let us. How could they prevent? Are Christian men slaves? Yes: abject, motley slaves, contraband of machine statesmanship and annually put up and sold upon the auction block of party.

Why has Iowa violated the express will of her people and by a general statute compounded the felony of liquor selling and consented to become the laughing stock of courts? Because she supposes that she has a statesman so neutral tinted that he can make an invisible race for the presidency provided he can go before the party free from the fatal blemish of hailing from a state that is unfriendly to the saloon. Why has Rhode Island gone back into the service of the saloon and concentrated her intelligence and conscience upon a measure to establish free gold cures for her home-made drunkards? Because the hand of Providence—Rhode Island—a private office broker, points out the party peril of being steadfast.

Why has Christianity been insulted in Ohio and denied the right of self-defense against the saloon? Because her favorite son was a candidate for president and the leaders of the house said that to estrange the saloon-keepers would swamp the party. Why has the enforcement of the prohibitory law of Kansas been betrayed in different cities into the hands of its notorious enemies? In order to hold the saloon vote in the party. Why did those senators of New Hampshire find it necessary to cringe and trim and lie to prevent the prudent and necessary strengthening of the prohibitory law? Because that sacrifice of patriotic manhood was necessary for the party. Why does Maine's chief justice habitually insult the law that he has sworn to enforce and permit himself to be known and despised as the saloon-keeper's friend in a prohibition state? Because the party interest requires that Christianity and crime should be politically harmonized by a flexible judiciary. Why did Michigan disfranchise a large number of her noblest citizens? Because they felt in honor bound to unite against the ruling party. Why has New York disfranchised everybody except Platt and Croker, the "twins" in the zodiac of dirt? Because the recent wave of civic honesty in the city was a common menace to both parties and so in self-defense they make the empire robber's roost, bipartisan. And so throughout the land the Christian vote cries craven, hangs its harp upon the party willow on election day and sings the party version:

"All hail the power of Jesus' name,
Let angels prostrate fall',
Bring forth the royal diadem
And sell it, Lord and all."

This is plain talk, but not a word at random. Somebody must talk plain and I have no parish to please, no trustees to satisfy, no session to consult, no subscription list to consider, no career to foster, no presiding elder has an eye on me, no bishop counts me in his diocese, and this is Boston, the home of independent thinking and free speech.

The defeat of the Church, the disgrace of the law, the despair of reform is the all but universal substitution of party-ism for patriotism. This country will go straight for prohibition whenever it shall suit the interest or convenience of the two great parties to let the people loose with the saloon. We await their pleasure.

Meanwhile a young Christian man arriving at his majority and entering into respectable party affiliations, must shed his greatest and clearest political conviction, as one would leave his mackintosh and rubbers at the door. But in the face of that truth ninety-five per cent of Southern Christians and about forty-eight per cent in the whole country pour out the blood of their civic virtue in defense of a party, which is the open enemy of prohibition, and this they do for the utterly unpatriotic and unworthy motive of "beating another party." And again, ninety-five per cent of Northern Christians and about forty-eight per cent in the country at large, annually bind the Son of God and lay Him on the altar of unpatriotism as a sin offering for a party organization which is as destitute of honor to the Church as the moon is of atmosphere, and they do this because they hate another party.

If we believe it to comport with Christian profession to keep silent about the saloon at general elections, or that it is indifferent what we do about it there, we ought to expunge our top-lofty resolutions like honest men, and stop the braggart lies that have been published in our name. Be patient with me! I know you will scorn to take such action. Well, then, for the sake of the chivalry of your manhood, the luxury of self-respect, the strength of your youth, the truth of the Church, stand up like brave men, and make your resolutions good.

Do not ask me to instruct you how or when you may achieve the victory, or what party will win it. I don't know. No man can tell you that, for no man's mind is big enough to calculate the tension of ideas, the strength of organizations, the lines of least resistance, the resultant of infinite forces, and antagonisms, the percentages of friction, or the quantum of inertia in the civic world. I have but one clear vision today about it, and that I have come a thousand miles to give you. It is this. We must overcome the sag of dirty politics. How? Get out of it! But where shall you go? Never mind. Get out of the slough, and then inquire the road.

Christian citizenship means at least two things—Christianity and Citizenship. The voting church by trying to be true to parties, has been untrue to both. The Christianity that stays in dirty parties loses its savor precisely as the fishes of Mammoth Cave have lost their eyes. Politics is average virtue. The first duty of a Christian is to raise the average. Because we have lost sight of that, the parties have been able to disfranchise civic Christianity and transmute the power of the church into saloons.

There are men enough at this convention to stop that now, and we have no business to ever pass another resolution against the saloon until we have made up our minds to march out of that fellowship. Last general election ninety-five per cent of Christian men consented to shut their eyes to the saloon to help one moderate drinker beat another to the White House, and yet that ninety-five per cent are continually asking us to propose something practical. Wash your hands: that is practical.

Somebody is sure to say that I have spoken here in the interest of the Prohibition party. I make you my witnesses that I do not. No party owns me; no party claims me. I speak in the interest of a clean church, and in my judgment the very day the church cuts loose from dirty politics there will come a new cleavage of voters, new ideals of citizenship, new measures of candidates, new meanings of loyalty, new victories and a new country, and the Prohibition party will have done its work and will disappear, except in its one clean, noble page of American history, and there will be a new party either for Christians or for saloon-keepers, for no honest party can hold both. I speak in the interest of a robust and vital Christianity, that will not be under obligation to saloons, nor mix with cowardice or lies.

Oh, my friends, come up where the church stands like an impregnable fortress upon the crown of the rock of ages. Come up where the air is better, the horizon wider and where in the skyward silence you can hear God speaking. Let the unclean parties know of you what they know of Francis E. Clark, John Willis Baer, William Shaw, Wilbur Chapman, Ballington Booth, Bishop FitzGerald, Joseph Cook, De Witt Talmage, and some two hundred and seventy thousand others in the states alone, that though their citizenship go mute and inglorious forever for want of a party. Their vote cannot be had, on any terms, for a man or a party that does not say, in the platform, "Down with the saloon." Join every-one of you tonight in the pledge of Habakkuk. "I will stand upon my watch-tower and see what God will say unto me."

General Grant said, "There is a moment in every battle when the first advance means victory." The battle royal of the centuries is on. The Church that never lost a fight with wrong, or ever succeeded in a stratagem against it, faces the saloon upon the fairest field and fairest terms the universe could furnish, the ballot-box of a republic where, by divine right, the people rule. The voice of the trimmer is heard in the church and the state, saying, "Let the saloon alone one more campaign, and let me lead you toward the good by stealth and the aid of enemies." Away with trimmers, great or small! Cowards to the rear! Call in the pickets! Close ranks! Guide center! Forward, with this new battle cry, The Church for Christ!

A MODERN HERO.

His limbs are fixed in rigid pain,
As though in iron bands;
He cannot shift his troddden feet;
He cannot use his hands.

He dare not turn his throbbing head
Or stiffened neck. For why?
The handle of a walking stick
Would jab him in the eye.

The lagging minutes lengthen out
In famine's deadly hold.
He sits and longs, like Tantalus,
His dinner growing cold.

No hooded, grim inquisitor
Inflicts his long drawn pain.
He pays a price to suffer it,
Disdaining to complain.

Oh, sing of heroes dead in war,
But here I pledge in wine

HYPNOTIZED.

"There isn't anybody living who can hypnotize me."

"Don't be too sure, Leonora," said her husband. "You cannot afford to run a tilt against science."

"But I deny that it is science. What has ever been proved by hypnotism? It is foolish to argue about it, for I will not even admit that there is such a thing. The shrewd people who go about the country giving exhibitions of their power are always in collusion with some one in the audience—you know that yourself, Ned."

"Nothing of the kind," retorted Ned, as Mrs. Darl called her husband. "It is a science that is yet in its infancy, and there are only a few individuals who have the hypnotic power and are able to throw less positive subjects into a trance. But I have seen it done, and it is wonderful—wonderful."

"What did you see?"

"I saw a young man climb walls like a cat, drink milk out of a saucer, catch a mouse, and then wash his face and hands as a cat does. And when he came out of the trance he had no idea that he had done any of these things or that he had even lost consciousness."

"Hum!" said Mrs. Darl incredulously, "I don't believe a word of it. If he did all that you said he did, he was simply a conspirator. And what good can such a faculty bring to science, I should like to know? Where is the scientific value in acting like a cat or a monkey?"

"Why, don't you see, dear, it is the verification of a theory?"

"No, I do not see. And I am not sure that I would believe it if I did see it. The whole stock in trade of these hypnotizers is the power of producing an illusion. I defy any of them to hypnotize me."

"I had intended asking you to go with me to the exhibition tonight."

"And be transmogrified into a cat? No, indeed! If I make a sacrifice of myself in the cause of science, it must be for something worth while. You have yet to convince me, Ned, that what you call the hypnotic sleep is not assumed to help carry out the plan of the hypnotizer or as a means of creating a sensation. There is no one living who could by a few ridiculous passes, a stare or pressure of my thumbs make me do anything I did not choose to do."

"But you acknowledge, do you not, that a strong will can control a weak one?"

"Yes, and always could, but that is as old as the days of Adam, who was evidently in subjection to Eve. I suppose some one will say that deep sleep which overtook our first father when his rib was taken from him was hypnotic. It would be just about as sensible."

"I have an idea," said Mr. Darl suddenly. "Suppose, since Mohammed won't go to the mountain, that the mountain comes to Mohammed. The hypnotist can come here after the entertainment, and we will invite a few neighbors in, and he can give an exhibition of his powers. How does that idea strike you?"

"Favorably, Ned. There are the Rusts, and the Pebbles and Dr. Smithly and his wife, and Cousin Fanny and her husband. You can let them know, and I will order refreshments, and we will have an evening of hypnotism. It will begin late, but we can find other amusement until your hypnotic operator comes."

Mrs. Darl had everything arranged—her house in beautiful order and herself gorgeous in a dress of ruby velvet, which was far too fine for the occasion, but was worn as a piece de resistance, she having read that velvet resisted hypnotic influence.

The neighbors and relatives came, a merry company, and the time passed in an animated discussion upon the power of hypnotism, one friend going so far in research as to visit the library and look up that wonderful story, the "House of Seven Gables," and read aloud to attentive listeners a passage from the weird history of Alice Pyncheon.

"He spoke," and Alice responded with a soft, subdued inward acquiescence and a bending of her form toward him, like the flame of a torch when it indicates a gentle draft of air. He beckoned with his hand, and rising from her chair the proud Alice approached him. He waved her back, and retreating Alice sunk again into her seat.

"'She is mine,' said Matthew Maule. 'Mine by the right of the strongest spirit.'

"'Oh, that was mesmerism,' said Mrs. Darl as the reading ceased.

"And what is mesmerism?" asked one of the company. "I think that it is as unexplainable as hypnotism, if it is not the same thing. Oh, here they are now! Let us hold on to our chairs, or we may be spirited away to China. I, for one, am afraid."

"I am not," said the queenly hostess as she swept forward in velvet and diamonds to meet her husband and his guest.

A pale, composed looking man accompanied Mr. Darl, and he did not seem surprised by the elegance of his hostess or flushed by the critical gaze of the company.

After the introductions were made and conversation became general, Mrs. Darl slipped into the hall and beckoned to her husband, who immediately joined her. Then she whispered in his ear:

"If—if—by any possibility he should be able to hypnotize me, you will not let him make me do anything ridiculous?"

"My dear Leona, how can you imagine such a possibility? But if you have any fear"—

"Fear!" echoed his wife scornfully in a stage whisper. "You will see that he cannot make the slightest impression on me." And she went back to the parlor and found one of her guests climbing the piano to escape an imaginary bear that was pursuing him. A few passes and he was restored to his normal condition, looking very foolish.

There were some amusing and some perplexing exhibitions of the professor's power, then the company followed host and hostess to the dining room, where a generous spread awaited them. Mrs. Darl was rather silent. Her test would be the next one, and she watched the wiry hands of the young professor as if his secret lay in them. But they were harmlessly busy with the sandwiches. His face was quite noncommittal too. What was the power he held of reducing the will to a mere blank? She would soon know.

Back in the parlor Mrs. Darl seated herself under the brilliant chandelier.

"Not there," said the professor, but she did not intend to yield to any command of his and said quietly:

"I prefer to sit here."

"Then I cannot hypnotize you."

"Oh, you acknowledge that it is only under certain conditions that this great power can be displayed?"

"Certainly, there are conditions that must be complied with. I am positive, and you are negative, but you are a very difficult subject because you are resisting me with all your might."

Mrs. Darl looked reproachfully at her husband and said in the dumb alphabet of the married, "You have told him."

He flashed back in the same language, "I have not," and she moved in accordance with the wish of the professor and sat with her back to the light. Some of the company were removed to remote parts of the room, but a few, including Mr. Darl, stood near.

"Look into my eyes," said the professor. "Permit me." And he took her hands and pressed the thumbs gently.

"It is like being in a dentist's chair," said Mrs. Darl, with a little forced laugh. Then she attempted to rise, struggling slightly, but continued to look into the eyes of the hypnotizer until in the place of two eyes she saw 20. Then she asserted her will and shook herself free.

"I—told—you—I—could—not be—hypnotized," she said. Her voice sounded strange and far away. "How queer I feel! Staring so long has made me dizzy."

"Drink this," said Mr. Darl, giving his wife a glass of water.

She drank it, then rose to her feet and said she felt as well as ever.

"Where is the professor?" she asked. "I expect he has lost faith in his science."

"He was here a moment ago," said her cousin Fanny anxiously. "He thought he had succeeded in hypnotizing you, Leona. Were you not unconscious?"

"Not for one moment," said Mrs. Darl triumphantly. "He held my thumbs until they were numb—why!—where!—Ned!"

"What is it, Leona?" he asked in surprise at her peculiar tone.

"Where are my diamonds?"

There was a startled exclamation from every one present. Mrs. Darl stood there bereft of every jewel she possessed. Not a single one of her gems which had flashed on her fingers, at her throat, in her ears, was now visible. Dazed, she held up her ringless hands and said:

"Is this a joke? What does it mean? Where are my diamonds?"

"Where is the professor?"

"Search the house!"

"Send for the police!"

But the professor had left for parts unknown, and with him went Mrs. Darl's diamonds, and neither the police nor the Darls ever saw or heard of them or him again. But one thing was in his favor. Not only had he successfully hypnotized Mrs. Darl, but, as Mr. Darl admitted, he must have hypnotized the whole company in order to bring his hypnotic scheme to such a climax.

And Mrs. Darl is at last a convert to both the theory and practice of the occult science and a firm believer in the power of the hypnotic will.—Mrs. M. L. Rayne in Free Press.

A Daring Forgery.

A neat forgery was recently committed by a Parisian criminal, one Altmayer, which in its adroitness and audacity was worthy of "Jim the Penman" himself.

The accused had lately had several hearings at the Palais de Justice before M. Villiers, juge d'instruction. Several times during these hearings M. Villiers was summoned from the room for a few minutes at a time.

During one of these absences the culprit contrived to get possession of a sheet of paper and an envelope with official printed heading, and also to affix the official seal. Then he drew up at his leisure a document ordering his own immediate release, counterfeiting with rare skill the judge's signature.

On quitting the court one day he handed the letter thus prepared to the sentinel stationed in the corridor and remarked in an offhand manner, "The judge wants you to carry this letter immediately to the director of the Mazas prison." The soldier, suspecting nothing, took the letter and accompanied the prisoner to Mazas. A few minutes later Altmayer was summoned to the director's office and was informed that he was a free man.

With an outburst of simulated joy and surprise he at once took his departure, and as the fraud was not discovered until the following day he had plenty of time to get beyond the reach of the clutches of French justice.

A TRIP TO CHATTANOOGA

And a Visit to Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge and Chickamauga.

The selection of Chattanooga, Tenn., as the site of the second International Convention of the Epworth League was a most fortunate choice. Its beautiful location, its historical interest, its magnificent natural scenery all combine to make a visit there one of unusual pleasure. The proceedings of the convention have been so fully published that no further report is necessary; we will merely say that the meeting was a grand success, full of enthusiasm and religious fervor, and pervaded throughout with true christian zeal.

The ride from Cincinnati to Chattanooga is said by experienced travelers to be one of the finest in this country. The first four or five hours' ride is through the famous blue grass region of Kentucky. The land is very rolling, almost mountainous, but unexcelled for grazing purposes, and herds of fine looking horses and cattle can be seen in every direction. In a short time the scenery becomes very different. After passing the Kitty mountains, by means of two tunnels, each nearly a mile long, and several shorter ones, we find ourselves in the Switzerland of America—Eastern Tennessee. Kentucky's rolling hills have developed into steep, rugged mountains, covered with scrubby pines and hemlocks, instead of blue grass, and pastured by gaunt looking mules and goats in place of high bred horses and cattle. This is the home of the "po' white trash" of the south and a more indolent, ignorant looking class of people would be hard to find. A weather-beaten board shanty about 15 by 20 feet, in size, with a huge clay chimney built in the rear and extending to the ground, a rail fence surrounding the whole at a distance of about fifty feet, within which enclosure pigs, ducks and children mingle in happy confusion, bore the dignified sign, "Post Office," written on a pine shingle with blue paint. A little farther on the worthy post-master and his good wife were stationed, one at either end of a bilious looking mule, striving to persuade it to drag a cultivator through a patch of very fair corn. Those mules are true representatives of the "Solid South;" that is, if the amount of labor which appears necessary to move one of them can be accepted as proof. For nearly two hundred miles not a school house and only one church was seen. Evidently the people have no time to spare for such things. The natural scenery through this uncivilized country is magnificent. Mountains everywhere, on all sides, below and above. We passed through twenty-seven tunnels, most of which were through solid rock.

As we approach Chattanooga the country becomes less rugged and the people look more enterprising. The city is a very beautiful one, of about 40,000 inhabitants, situated on the Moccasin bend of the Tennessee river in a valley surrounded on all sides by mountains. The Cumberland mountains to the north and the great Smokies in the east, are plainly visible, although quite distant. Lookout mountain is about two miles south-west of the city, towering above it like a sentinal. Missionary Ridge bounds it on the east and Walden's Heights on the north. The historical battlefield of Chickamauga is beyond the Ridge about twelve miles distant. This great battlefield, with considerable adjoining territory, comprises the National Military Park, which is to be dedicated with imposing ceremonies in September. The government is using every means to make this one of its most beautiful parks. A succession of rolling hills, covered with giant pines, most of which are deeply scarred and wounded by heavy shot, has been made to resemble, as nearly as possible, its appearance during the famous engagement of September 19-20, 1863. The old breastworks of fallen logs, long since rotted away, have been replaced; trenches have been re-dug, old cannon have been cleaned and polished to their former brightness and stationed on the identical spots from which they belched forth fire and death thirty years ago. Ammunition wagons, loaded with shot and shell, stand near by, giving such a reality to the scene that many old soldiers who visit the place are overcome by painful recollections so vividly recalled. The little negro boy who drove our carriage made this touching remark: "I don't never like to drive old soldiers out here; they cry so much, and every little while one of them finds the spot where his brother or father was killed and then I can't get them to leave it, no how." Several old log houses, used as the headquarters of some general, still stand just as they appeared at the time, with heavy cannon stationed all about them.

The different states whose troops were engaged in this battle are erecting magnificent monuments to their memory. Ohio already has fifty-six, at a cost of nearly $60,000, and several other states are not far behind. To a person whose knowledge of our great civil war is confined to his study of U. S. history, a visit to the Southern battle-fields is indeed a revelation. If never before, as he strolls among the pines and oaks on Chickamauga, or Missionary Ridge, and searches in vain for a tree which does not bear the marks of battle, he is forced to realize the horrors of war and at what a terrible cost our union was preserved.

We returned from the park by means of the fine government road along the east of Missionary Ridge. Observation towers mark the site of Bragg's and also Sherman's headquarters on the ridge and afford excellent views of the city and river. At various points along the road little negro boys had large collections of war relics for sale, and oven eager to show "bullets right in the ground, been there ever since the war, and ain't never been dug up yet." Our guide informed us that "planting" bullets was a very profitable employment. Everyone who visits Chattanooga visits Lookout. The summit is reached either by an inclined railway car, which is hoisted directly up the side by means of a cable, or by a dummy steam route which winds slowly around making a journey of nearly twelve miles. This being our first experience in mountain climbing we were naturally a little cautious and consequently gave the toboggan-slide incline a wide berth. The morning was very cloudy and we enjoyed the novel sensation of riding through the clouds, and a few minutes later of observing them several hundred feet below us, while the sun shone bright and clear above our heads. The clouds shut out all view of the city for several hours, but finally cleared away and we could see far down in the valley Chattanooga, appearing no larger than Tecumseh. Time will not permit a description of the many points of interest on the mountain. National Bridge, Telephone Rock, Fat Man's Squeeze, Old Man of the Mountain, are all interesting to visit and examine. Rock City, about four miles back on the mountain, is a most wonderful natural formation of rock. Broad avenues, huge rock buildings hundreds of feet square, narrow cross-streets, many of them closed at the top, dark caves and immense natural statues, all lend beauty to this wild scene and make it one never to be forgotten. We ate our dinner in Smoker's parlor, a pretty little cave about twenty feet square, having a table of solid rock in the center just adapted to our purpose. Here we met a party of Florida people, who invited us to share the pleasure of a ride about the mountain in a mule wagon. Unfortunately, a heavy thunder shower overtook us, and quite an exciting time followed. Our mule did not mind the rain until a heavy thunder bolt struck a tree near by. This was too much, even for his calm and peaceful disposition, and away he went over the roughest, stoniest road ever traveled, kicking with a force and veracity that would have shocked the modesty of a circus donkey, and resisting bravely all attempts to check his furious pace. Over logs, and thro' clouds, with rain pouring furiously all the time, we proceeded until we arrived at the mule's home. It being nearly train time we were obliged to run through nearly a mile of Tennessee red mud to the station. We gathered courage and slid down the incline, reaching home in time for a late supper. Despite rain, mud and mule, the visit was a most delightful one, which we would have repeated had time permitted.

Resolutions of Respect.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. Church of Tecumseh is again called to mourn the loss of a faithful, earnest worker in the death of Mrs. Julia J. Harding, who left us for the heavenly home July 12, 1895. We shall miss her cheery, helpful presence and her influence will be ever with us, inspiring us in our efforts towards success in the work in which she was so enthusiastic. Let us emulate her virtues and strive to meet her in the better land.

Resolved, That the sympathy of this society be extended to the bereaved family and friends, whom we commend to the loving care of our Heavenly Father.

The Mileage Par Excellence.

Is now the Ohio Central Lines' Interchangeable 1,000 Mile Ticket. Covering the B & O. System West of Pittsburgh, including the Pittsburgh & Western, the Big Four and other systems, it is a book that no person who travels can afford to be without. It is commended for investigation by our patrons.

Three of a kind is a lucky hand, and the fact that Grover Cleveland has drawn it is a sign that he will have luck enough to miss a third term of the Presidency.

A BICYCLE TRIP IN EUROPE.

Mid Ocean, July 6, 1895.

EDITOR OF HERALD:—A bicycle trip in Europe, like charity, begins at home. At two o'clock, on the afternoon of June 18th, myself and friend, Harry McClure, left Tecumseh with an escort of wheelmen. The escort diminished one by one. A patch of deep sand swallowed several; a convenient town furnished a resting and stopping place for others, but the steadfast few rode 15 miles to Saline and then left us together with Leon Rosacrans, a boy of 15 years, who was to accompany us to Niagara Falls. Then we rolled along merrily to Detroit, passed the night there; crossed to Windsor, in Canada, and ran hard aground at the custom house. I don't like to dwell upon what happened to us there. Here is a recipe for passing the custom house with bicycles: Get a day off, and if you smoke, take several pounds of tobacco and your pipe. Enter the custom house. There you will be told to go back to Detroit and get some letters from the L. A. W. consul. Go and return. You will be told that instructions have just been received from the queen or governor not to accept such papers. Now look disconsolate and discover that you have a friend in Windsor who may aid you. Mount your wheel, and tear madly up and down the streets until you find the friend. Get the friend to ask his or her uncle to entreat his friend to ask the collector to take his guarantee that the wheels will go out at Niagara. Then get dinner and feel relieved. After dinner, learn that the collector has gone to a funeral. Get your wheel and chase the funeral 3 miles, and get frowned at when you gesticulate wildly what you want. Go back and wait calmly until 5:30 p. m.; then the collector will appear, sign your papers, and you may go on rejoicing, after losing 9 hours. That was our experience. We rode thirty miles that evening and put up at the Bicycle Rider's Farm House, where they charge nothing a day and give you the company bed-room and all the bread and milk you can eat in the morning. All the next day we rode in sight of Lake Erie, blue and rippling in the sunshine. So in the morning, but in the afternoon we rode in a drizzling rain. Occasionally we bathed our rheumatism with a concoction of witch-hazel and arnica and then struggled on. Canadian roads are the finest or we could not have ridden. We looked so bedraggled, that even the geese hissed at us when we passed. I have not space to describe the magnificent view which we had of London, nor to linger upon praises of the beautiful scenery in Dundas valley as we neared Hamilton. Lofty hills surrounded it, forming a vast amphitheatre which contains green groves, brown tilled fields, waving grain, and cloud shadows. Intoxicated with every variety of cherries, we wheeled or reeled into the U. S. again across Niagara's suspension bridge. Then, Sunday in Buffalo and a spin over a few of its 200 miles of asphalt. Here we bade good-bye to our boy companion who had ridden nobly the 360 miles so far. Monday on the road again and we soon saw the blue outline of the Appalachian ranges of Mts. The hospitality in this region is delightful to bicycle riders, at least. We even took breakfast with a crazy woman who mumbled and croned while we devoured our meal in haste. That day we passed the north end of lakes Canandaigua, Seneca and Cayuga. Here we toiled up one hill only to plunge precipitately down another. Harry displayed his total depravity by coupling to a load of hay and coasting up one of the longest hills. We passed through Syracuse and Utica and started down the Mohawk, riding the tow-path. When we met the stubborn mules which drew the canal boats we had to dismount and stand aside respectfully. We soon tired of the monotony of the canal, and took to the highway where we passed, now between gray rocky walls, now through towns with rows of houses built in old colonial style, and here a talkative farmer's wife pointed out General Herkimer's historic mansion. At Albany we were compelled by heavy rains to take a day boat down the Hudson to N. Y. This trip was a panorama of historic buildings with lines as strict as Quaker bonnets; rocky, wooded islands; the lofty hill called the Storm-King; mountains and highlands whose green sides vied with envy herself; the blue Catzkills, suggestive of Rip Van Winkle; Tarrytown and the Palisades, whose continuous rows of perpendicular rocks border the broad, bold, flowing river, and the rakish looking cottage at Newburgh, which was at one time Washington's headquarters. At New York we crated our wheels and were amused to see them taken to the pier in a hack while we walked. Once on board the Veendam we witnessed usual parting scenes; heard volleys of "smacks" in various dialects, and saw the crowd surge off the boat at the last moment. Out in N. Y. bay the kodak fiend fired a last shot at N. Y. and then we went below to dinner. We are on a Dutch boat and the passengers are of every nationality, with Dutch and German predominant. But the dinner: First course was soup, composed of seven different vegetables and melted grease. Then with great pomp the soup plates were removed and meat of some nondescript character and abominably cooked was brought on, accompanied by potatoes cooked in sea water and some cooked sea weed which they called greens. Next course was the same, only reversed. The dessert came in the shape of more sea weed, sweetened, and a new alias, viz: pie-plant sauce. Of course we had coffee and milk—so called—but we decided that it had been condensed and then expanded to the utmost tension or perhaps was the milk of a scape-goat. And the sugar. I had supposed it impossible to spoil that, but it looks and tastes like pulverized isinglass. Harry and I tried one course after another, fearfully yet firmly, and then went on deck wiser but hungrier men. Soon the dread angel of sea-sickness put his hand on my friend's stomach and so suddenly that Harry put the ship's menu on the front of his coat instead of thoughtfully feeding the fishes as many a less hurried man was doing. I want to tell about the fat man whose legs would not go through between the dining table and the seating bench, and the belle of the ship who walked the deck until 1 o'clock A. M. to avoid sea-sickness—of course the lady had an escort—and the fat men who sit all day and tell stories while they shake all over with laughter, or the melancholy fellow who said this boat was a regular stomach pump, and how Harry swore he would eat that soup this time if it killed him, so that he would not get it again, and the Dutchman, who "can't make out vich is de head or dail of deez officers." I would enjoy describing these but there is one who surpasses all these. He, too, is Dutch, and we call him the Lying Dutchman. His face is so honest, and his melancholy is oppressive, but his cheerful power of lying is colossal. On the day before the 4th of July, he came on deck looking so woe-begone that everyone pitied him. The ladies asked his trouble and he begged them not to talk about it. He said that he had just learned that the ship was to stop right in mid-ocean all day and celebrate the 4th. They were to have tub races, and the men were to swim on one side of the boat and ladies on the other, and we should fish, "and for dot all you bays one dollar." His indignation waxed strong. "You dink I stays und bays, no. I goes to my state room and fish de window throo." Then he begged the ladies to go altogether and beg the captain not to stop. Three of the most credulous actually did. Next day, he suggested that if there were no fireworks we might have water-works "for dere ist youst water enough." In the evening he invented vocal fire works. We all at a signal hissed a long "sh" and then ejaculated a "bang" when our imaginary sky-rocket burst and this was followed by a prolonged groan. Next day our Lying Dutchman came on deck much perturbed by a plot which he had discovered among the steerage passengers to throw all the steamer chairs over board. "And den we stand onp all de time." He had learned this from his 3-months old son whom he was bringing in the steerage because it was "sheeper." This is all now, but I shall write you again from Paris.

how Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription acts upon nervous women. It's a marvelous remedy for nervous and general debility, Chorea, or St. Vitus's Dance, Insomnia, or inability to sleep, Spasms, convulsions, or "fits" and every like disorder. Even in cases of insanity resulting from functional derangements, the persistant use of the "Prescription" will, by restoring the natural functions, generally effect a cure. For women suffering from any chronic "female complaint" or weakness; for women who are run-down or overworked; at the change from girlhood to womanhood; and later, at the critical "change of life" it is a medicine that safely and certainly builds up strengthens, regulates, and cures. The Care of the Eyes.

A few rules on the care of the eyes written for the Journal by an old lady nearly 83 years of age, who has never worn glasses.

First of all begin with the little baby carriages, and take off the white parasols and afghans. The reflection of the sun upon them is entirely too strong for the infant's eyes. Use green or brown.

Never place the child where it can see a gas jet. The parents are not aware of the harm that is being done, till the child is old enough to attend school, when they find to their sorrow that from some cause the eyes are injured. Let those two directions be followed and there will be fewer children seen in the street wearing spectacles.

Never read lying down, or print that seems too fine. Never read between daylight and dark.

In reading, writing or sewing, whether by day or night, always have the light at the left hand. If in the evening use a shade. Never sew on black at night. Never use liquor or tobacco in any way, and it would be better to abandon the use of tea and coffee. I have never used them.

Think of your mercies more than your afflictions, and there will be much fewer tears shed. In short, be cheerful; laughing is better than crying.—Detroit Journal.

A GRAND TRIUMPH.

Baffled Many Times but Success Comes at Last.

(From the Grand Rapids Press.)

The following incident would be hard to believe if it had not occurred right here in Grand Rapids, and investigation by our representative has placed it beyond the reach of doubt. These are the facts in detail: Mr. J. H. White of No. 25 Hailey Place, has been an instructor in penmanship in different business colleges for the past fourteen years. He says: "Last October I was suddenly taken ill. I consulted a physician, who said the pain was from 'gravel' stones; gradually grew worse; the pain was in my back and side. My back swelled up in a great ridge, and I finally grew so bad that I was taken to bed, as helpless as a child. I passed blood, and when the pain was at its worst I was like one crazy. The doctor injected morphine to give me relief, but further than that he said he was powerless, and nothing would do me any good but a surgical operation. I believe my flesh was literally cooked in the attempts to relieve my agony, everything was used, mustard plasters, turpentine, hot cloths and all such things. I was in this condition, given up by the doctor, and almost out of my mind with suffering. I commenced taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and really I felt easier in 20 minutes. After about two hours I had a passage of urine, and passed blood and some gravel stones which greatly relieved me. I rapidly improved. I took in all six boxes, and I feel to-day entirely well. Mine has been a wonderful case. I feel that I cannot say anything strong enough for Doan's Kidney Pills. My great wish is that they may become well known. They will prove a boon to mankind.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

"M. Quad." the Famous Humorist, Takes his Old Place on The Free Press.

We find great pleasure in announcing to our readers that Chas. B. Lewis, the famous "M. Quad." has resumed his former place upon The Detroit Free Press. Since his retirement from The Free Press four years ago Mr. Lewis has been writing for one of the leading syndicates. His preference for direct newspaper work, however, led him to abandon that connection, and hereafter his popular writings will appear only in The Free Press. Mr. and Mrs. Bowser, Brother Gardner, Arizona Kicker, Zeb White, Abe Crofoot, Mrs. Gallup, and many new characters will appear regularly.

The publishers are making a special four months' trial offer of the Semi-Weekly Free Press for 25 cents to introduce their paper to new readers, and we would advise those looking for a great bargain to send in their subscription at once. The offer is good only until August 1.

CANCER CURED
— AND A —
LIFE SAVED
By the Persistent Use of
Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"I was troubled for years with a sore on my knee, which several physicians, who treated me, called a cancer, assuring me that nothing could be done to save my life. As a last resort, I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after taking a number of bottles, the sore began to disappear and my general health improve. I persisted in this treatment, until the sore was entirely healed. Since then, I use Ayer's Sarsaparilla occasionally as a tonic and blood-purifier, and, indeed, it seems as though I could not keep house without it."—Mrs. S. A. FIELDS, Bloomfield, Ia.

BRITTON BUDGET.

Dry and dusty, but cool nights.

Mrs. P. B. Hardy was an Adrian visitor Tuesday.

E. W. Lenardson was in Toledo on business Friday.

John Beasley made a business trip to Toledo Wednesday.

W. J. Helme and family visited at Ridgeway Sunday.

O. R. Lenardson and wife were Adrian visitors Wednesday.

Rev. E. Mudge returned to Chicago the first of the week.

Miss Maude Lee is improving and is able to be out again.

Miss Grace Smith, of Milan, is visiting friends in Britton.

Quite a number of Britton people are reported on the sick list at present.

Prof. Chas. Bowerman and sister called on friends in the village last week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Maynard visited relatives at Detroit last week, returning Monday.

Miss Edith Russell, of Marshall, who has been visiting at Frank Gibson's, returned Wednesday.

A goodly contingent of Britton fans went to Adrian Tuesday to witness the ball game at that place.

Mrs. Chas. Gorham, Mrs. Mike Bachman and Miss Nettie Bannister are rusticating at Sand Lake this week.

Bert Nichols and wife and Mr. and Mrs. Andress visited friends and relatives in Ohio last week. They returned Monday night.

Burt Allen and Art Curtis rode to Adrian with Lon Wood Tuesday and Wednesday his horse died. The cause can only be conjectured.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barlow, of Ridgeway, took the morning train Wednesday for Brooklyn, N. Y., where they will visit their daughter, Mrs. Bush.

Mrs. Nellie Sink has moved her stock of millinery goods to her residence, one door west of the new reformed church. Mr. Dakin is making some repairs on the building.

Mrs. E. Horton, secretary of the executive committee of the Reformed church, gave a very interesting address to a good sized audience in the G. A. R. hall last Sunday evening.

There are a lonesome lot of boys in Britton this week and they hang around the stores with hardly enough ambition to pitch quoits or play catch. Nearly 20 of the girls are at the lakes.

Art Hughes, who is agent for J. L. Dexter & Co., has shipped upwards of 2 car loads of hay this week. It would not seem as if there were so much hay to spare in the country this year.

This vicinity has enjoyed several showers of late, which, though a small amount of what is needed, have given corn and pastures a start and stopped the small fires which were a constant menace to property.

Andrew Gogoline is shipping a large order of heavy oak timber to Canada. The stuff which he is getting out consists of choice specimens of oak to be used in the ship yards at Cornwall in repairing dredges, etc.

Perrino & Downers circus gave their exhibition last Saturday to a good sized crowd with entire satisfaction. Their performance was small as compared to the large shows but all was first-class, their tumbling being especially interesting.

Geo. Clark, Judson and Clyde Kniffin, Ed. Gripton and "Dad" Hatch started for Wampler's lake Wednesday for a few days outing. We are not informed as to whether the boys will try to break the fishing record while there or devote their time to pitching quoits.

Al. Lee and Frank Brown returned from the lakes last evening where they have been spending a couple of days fishing. They report a large, pleasant time and a large catch of choice fish, but of course they gave away the fish as they were too large and numerous to carry home so far. The boys should make arrangements to ship their fish by rail in the future.

Britton was especially favored last Wednesday afternoon when such a delegation of charming femininity as is seldom seen on the streets of our quiet village favored the place with their benign and fascinating presence. The ladies in question were from Tecumseh. The first section was a delegation from that flourishing young society, the "We Nine." The second consisted of their elder sisters who were "We Nines" in days gone by. They all came down to see friends off on the Wabash and, incidentally, to enjoy the beauties of our town.

The ball game Saturday between the Giants and the Palmyra Flyers, resulted in a shut-out for the visitors. Only twice during the game did a man from the southern township reach the third base, and only three hits were made off Biggs' delivery, ten men striking out. One feature of the game was a fine one handed running and long jump catch by Lowe. Another, the double play made at 2d., when that famous war horse, Sergt. Lee, unassisted, put two men out. Batteries Biggs and Lowe, Bailey and Osborn. Struck out by Biggs 10; by Bailey 5. Hits off Biggs 3; off Bailey 35. The following is the score:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Britton,	3	2	2	2	7	0	2	2	*	—20

Weak and Nervous

Describes the condition of thousands of people at this season. They have no appetite, cannot sleep, and complain of the prostrating effect of warmer weather. This condition may be remedied by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which creates an appetite and tones up all the organs. It gives good health by making the blood pure.

What causes bad dreams is a question that has never been satisfactorily answered; but, in nine cases out of ten sightful dreams are the result of imperfect digestion, which a few doses of Ayer's Sarsaparilla will effectually remedy. Don't delay—try it today. 1w

Have You Had Your Vacation?

If you have not, you should read what Governor McKinley, Chief Dunn, Joe Jefferson, Rev. Thomas Dixon, Dr. Cyrus W. Edson, and Camille d'Arville say about the best way to enjoy an outing, in "The Question of Vacations from Different Standpoints," published in Demorest's Family Magazine for August, and profit by their experience; and if you have already had your summer rest, you will still enjoy reading their views and comparing them with your own. Apropos to the same topic, a charmingly illustrated paper in the same number, "A Queen of the Coast," gives a most vivid description of that popular resort Atlantic City, and to those who can't get away, the illustrations and descriptive letterpress will be almost equal to a trip there. The "silent steed," the favorite one this year, is treated both humorously and practically in two profusely illustrated articles. "My First Experience With a Bicycle," which will appeal to every woman cycler, and "Woman's Dress for Cycling," which gives excellent advice on the all-absorbing matter of dress on the wheel; and if you havn't a wheel, and can't have a vacation, you may solace yourself with the breezy stories, of which there are a number. In fact, every one will be sure to find something of interest in this bright midsummer number, which is full to overflowing with interesting and timely matter. Published for $2 a year by the Demorest Publishing Co., 110 Fifth Avenue, New York.

BIG PROFITS ON Small Investments

Returning prosperity will make many rich, but nowhere can they make so much within a short time as by successful Speculation in Grain, Provisions and Stock.

$10.00 FOR EACH DOLLAR INVESTED can be made by our Systematic Plan of Speculation.

originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system.

It is a well known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by systematic trading through Chicago brokers make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousnd dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to $50,000 to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand.

It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading

Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time

WRITE FOR CONVINCING PROOFS, also our Manual on successful speculation and our Daily Market Report, full of money-making pointers. ALL FREE. Our Manual explains margin trading fully. Highest references in regard to our standing and success.

GONE TO HIS REWARD.

In the death of Charles W. Williamson, Tecumseh has lost one of her oldest residents and most highly respected citizens. The deceased was born at Bedford, Westchester county, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1823, and his early childhood was passed at Poughkeepsie, in that state, where he obtained the rudiments of a common school education. He came to Michigan in 1834 with his father's family and has been a resident of Tecumseh or Franklin ever since that date. In 1847 he married Miss Phoebe Ketcham with whom he lived a happy domestic life for over forty years. Two sons blessed the union, both of whom are now living. For many years the family resided on Kilbuck street in this village where he followed the trade of a carpenter. He was a fine mechanic and conducted a large and lucrative business. In 1878 the family moved to Franklin and took up their abode with a son, Chas. E. Williamson, where they resided until 1885. In that year the son moved to Tecumseh and engaged in business here and the father and mother came with him, where they both lived in peace and contentment until death summoned them away. The deceased was a man of robust appearance and usually enjoyed good health, but for the past four years he had been gradually breaking down under the weight of years. The end came peacefully and painlessly; the body had finished its earthly course and the spirit ascended to God who gave it.

The obsequies were held at his son's residence in this village last Sunday afternoon, where a large concourse of neighbors and acquaintances assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to an honored friend. In the absence of his pastor, Rev. J. P. Varner, Rev. H. Cansfield, of Ridgeway, officiated, who spoke words of consolation to the mourners, and the remains were deposited in our Evergreen cemetery.

The deceased leaves two brothers and one sister living: Edmund Williamson, of Tecumseh; John W. Williamson and Mrs. E. Dart, of Grand Rapids; also two sons, Geo. A. and Chas. E. His wife preceded him to the better land in October, 1890. Until her death he was a man of very genial disposition and a great favorite with all who knew him. He was a well informed man upon all current topics and kept up with the times in his reading. His wife's demise, however was a sad blow to him, from which he never recovered and which undoubtedly hastened his own departure. He leaves to his sons the legacy of an honorable life here on earth, which they will always cherish in fond remembrance.

The nine new lamps, together with the thirty-one old ones, simply eclipsed the full moon last night. They burned all night too, and finally the moon gave it up and sank beneath the horizon in despair. The new contract with the Electric Light Co. went into force yesterday. We doubt whether there is a better lighted town in Michigan than Tecumseh will be hereafter.

Last Thursday Anderson's dry goods store came very near experiencing a blaze. An incandescent lamp had been placed near a rod in the show window on which was displayed some dress goods. When the current was turned on at night it heated the fabric to the point of combustion, when it was discovered just in time. Fire damaged stocks are very popular among the dry goods merchants of Adrian, but our dealers are selling just as cheap, only of course you will have to burn the goods yourself, and you will never know the difference.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to return our heartfelt thanks to the neighbors and friends who so kindly assisted during our late bereavement.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to know that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

A LEGEND.

Edward the Confessor founded Westminster Abbey on a knoll by the River Thames. While the chapel was in the greenness of its youth, the hour drew near for its dedication, and one can fancy the ripple of anticipation that stirred within the patient breasts of men who told their beads and kept long fasts and weary vigils without hope of earthly recompense.

One dark night, the Sunday before the day appointed for the chapel's dedication, a poor fisherman, Edric by name, rowed slowly up and down the Thames. All day long he had worked faithfully, but, in the very places where fish were to be had almost for the asking, this day he had caught none. At last he laid down the oars in despair, and with uncomplimentary thoughts of the saints whose business it was to look after his interests, sat with his chin sunken on his breast and his hard hands clasped around his cold knees, when suddenly, out of the very middle of the silence around him, he heard, or thought he heard, a voice calling his name.

It was not the sharp voice of his wife, which had more than once broken in upon his reveries by heralding his ill luck, but an unknown, mellow sound, that by keen contrast made little shivers chase down his aching spine.

As he looked about him warily, a light from the shore flashed on the water and trembled like a reflected star at the boat's head. Edric hastily caught up his oars, and, pulling in the direction of the voice, saw an old man on the bank, who beckoned him with one hand, and as he drew near, begged to be rowed across the river.

Now, whether Edric chanced to be a soft hearted fellow in those hard old days or whether conscience pricked because he had gone a-fishing on the Sabbath day, I cannot tell. But, be that as it may, he quickly made ready for his passenger without first claiming a fee, and when the stranger was seated, turned his boat across the stream toward the monastery.

Once or twice Edric cleared his throat cheerfully to address the venerable figure, which sat silently, with crossed arms, facing him, but after all, he had nothing to say, especially without encouragement; so they went on without a word.

A heavy, black robe lay in long lines over the knees of Edric's companion, except for one fold that was thrown backward over the head, concealing the hair and most of the forehead. The face was chiefly in shadow, but now and then, as Edric glanced toward it, a light like that of two near stars shone on him from beneath the heavy brows and made him uncomfortable and awkward with the oars.

Once across, the stranger leaped out like a lad, and without so much as a thank you, though his looks were courteous, walked straight to the chapel, which on the instant blazed at every window with a soft, warm light like that of a thousand candles, a cheery sight to a fisherman who was not only hungry, but wet and shivering as well.

Edric was a bold man and not one whit afraid of a miracle, which was a thing not to be carped at, so he moored his boat and drew nearer, and lo! like the swift patter of a summer shower on fluttering leaves, a soft, swishing sound fell all around his ears and a billowing host of angels alighted within an arrow's length of where he stood. It was as if they "brake through the sky," or rather as if the earthly atmosphere grew thin and revealed them on the outskirts of the heavenly place where it touched the earthly. Then they glided into the chapel, but whether with wings or without Edric could never remember, the stranger leading the host, and there, with litanies and genuflexions, the celestial convoy dedicated it to the service of the Highest.

Edric had heard the monks singing both at matins and at vespers as he threw his lines and pulled in his fish day by day, but never had he listened to such Te Deums and Glorias as thes ethat shook the monastery like a mighty wind. He was creeping cautiously to the threshold of the door, throbbing with curiosity and wondering if it were lawful to enter or even to look upon the altar, when there came a rustle, a sweep of vast wings and sudden darkness, and out of the darkness the voice of the stranger:

"Give me to eat, Edric," it said.

But Edric replied, cap in hand, "I have toiled all night and taken nothing."

"Where learnedst thou those words?" the old man asked, and as Edric's pupils expanded in the starlight, which was the only light now that the chapel stood a black heap against the sky, he saw that the stranger smiled, and a sudden flash of thought made the fisherman catch his breath.

"Be not afraid," the stranger said benignly. "I am Peter, and I feed my Lord's sheep as he commanded me. Thou rememberest the words in Holy Writ? And I hold the keys of heaven; they are even now in the pocket of my robe—and open to whom I will. I must be gone, for a great multitude is even now waiting at the gate. Be not afraid, but hearken."

"I fear naught," said the fisherman—"that is, naught but the devil." But his teeth chattered as he crossed himself.

"Go then to the bishop," commanded Peter, "and tell him what thou hast seen and heard this night. And hereafter thou shalt find good fishing, save only on a Sunday. Promise me thou wilt not drop line on the holy day and that thou wilt give food to my poor."

Edric promised quickly, for indeed he could not well do less, knowing that he was keeping souls out of heaven, and as the saint vanished, with much jingling of keys, he made clumsy haste to put the river between himself and the chapel.

Next day, when the bishop arrived with miter and crozier and a great retinue, the fisherman met him on the farther river bank with a noble salmon in his hand, the gift of Peter, and told him in many words the tale of the night just past.

And so it befall that the chapel had no further consecration, for even the bishop was not sure that he could surpass St. Peter and his angels.—Ayln Yates Keith in New York Post.

For more than a hundred years the Shakers have been studying the remedial properties of plants. They have made many discoveries, but their greatest achievement was made last year. It is a cordial that contains already digested food and is a digester of food. It is effective in removing distress after eating, and creates an appetite for more food so that eating becomes a pleasure. Pale, thin people become plump under its use. It arrests the wasting of consumption. There never has been such a step forward in the cure of indigestion as this Shaker Cordial. Your druggist will be glad to give you a little book descriptive of the product.

"Hay is hay in these days," says a Toledo dealer. "It is now worth $18 per ton at retail. Will it go higher? Possibly, but I am inclined to the opinion that it will reach its highest point between now and October. You see it is like this. Farmers are generally of the notion that hay will be dearer, and so are holding their crop. This makes it scarce now. Then much marsh grass is being cut this year, and will be employed to a certain extent, in the place of hay. Then, when the summer had advanced enough to indicate the probable shortness of the crop, many farmers sowed corn, which will yield a great deal of that kind of fodder.

The company, though not as large as some years, will go with the full enlistment, and is doing hard and effective work at drill that it may hold its reputation for efficency in camp. It means something now days to be on the muster roll as no man can be excused from camp except in case of great necessity, and a dishonorable discharge is sure to follow a breech of this regulation. The opening production of "Lalla Rookh," by the Pains under the promomotion The Detroit Railway, was the most brilliant success in every way the City of Detroit has ever known. The Free Press, the next morning, in speaking of it said. "The stage set was the most elaborate affair of the times ever seen here. The large choruses were well trained; the principals were as effective as possible, the specialty performers were above the average, and altogether the performance was the most extensive entertainment imaginable, both in the diversity of its features and in the dimensions of the stage. It is impossible to enumerate all its features. The sight was of a dazzling nature, when the entertainment was at its height. It is needless to mention the various set features but they were marvels of delight to the 6,000 or so people assembled and the "oh's"and "ah's" became a general murmur of admiration and pleasure. Certainly the effect was startling in the extreme, and nothing stronger or more sensational could have been devised."

BELIEVED EACH OTHER DEAD.

Husband and Wife Reunited in Lansing After Twenty-Two Years.

LANSING, July 29.—Charles L. Doebler and wife have been reunited here after a separation of over twenty-two years, during which time each believed the other was dead. In the early '70s, when the Doeblers were living in Detroit, the husband, a veteran of the rebellion, went west to take up some government land. Not long after an acquaintance wrote Mrs. Doebler that in a fight with Indians her husband had been killed. From that time Doebler was mourned as dead. About six years ago Mrs. Doebler removed to this city, and a short time ago made application for a pension. The proof of Doebler's death being unsatisfactory, the pension department started an investigation, which resulted in locating him in the soldiers' home at Dayton, O. A Detroit man heard that Mrs. Doebler was dead, and meeting Doebler in Colorado, so informed him. Doebler always thereafter believed his wife was dead.

A HEAVY SENTENCE.

A Would-Be Train-Wrecker Sent to Prison for Thirty Years.

IONIA, July 27.—Cass Waterman, alias Black Diamond, arrested at Lowell, confessed he attempted to wreck the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee evening train Monday last. While on the train en route to the Ionia jail he got off at the place of the attempted wreck and turned over to the sheriff the tools with which he did the work, and which were hid in the woods.

IONIA, Mich., July 29.—Case Waterman, whose home is in Lowell, a few miles west of this place, and who was arrested Friday night charged with attempting to wreck the evening express train on the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee road last Monday night, was arraigned in the circuit court Saturday afternoon, and pleading guilty as charged, was sentenced by Judge Davis to thirty years in the state's prison at Jackson. As Waterman is 48 years of age, this is practically a life sentence.

CHERRY PIT IN HER NOSE.

Peculiar Result of an Accident to a Grand Rapids Girl.

GRAND RAPIDS, July 31.—Gertrude Smith, the 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Smith, got a cherry pit in her nose some time ago. She did not say anything about it until Monday, when the child was taken to Dr. Prentice. The pit was removed, and it was found that during the two weeks or more it had remained there it had started to grow. The shell had cracked, and a tiny shoot had made for daylight at the end of the nose.

Big Paper Mills

IRON MOUNTAIN, July 29. — Ground has been broken at the Lower Quinnesec falls for what will be the largest paper manufacturing plant in the state. It will consist of two wood pulp mills, a sulphite mill and paper mill, representing an investment of $500,000. The enterprise is backed by Wisconsin capitalists, who have been compelled by the government to close their mills on the Fox river. A large hotel, stores and numerous dwellings are also to be erected.

Relics of the Chicora.

ST. JOSEPH, July 29.—Since the storm of Friday night three sacks of flour, a ship buckle and several incandescent lamps which were aboard the Chicora were washed ashore at Pier Cove. The point on shore where the articles were found is off the place where the searching parties drag caught when they were searching for the sunken hull. The find will be investigated, and in all probability the searching party will be started again in August.

The Marquette Monument.

ST. IGNACE, July 30.—Every Catholic archbishop and bishop in the United States has received an invitation to take part in the unveiling of the monument which has been erected to the memory of Father Marquette, who, more than 200 years ago, sounded the first notes of the Gospel among the Indians, with whom this region was populated. The exercises are to be of the most solemn and imposing character.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

Preparations Completed for the Encampment at Island Lake.

GRAND RAPIDS, July 29.—The annual encampment of the Michigan national guard will be held at Island Lake, opening August 7 and continuing one week. The troops will leave for camp August 6 and upon arrival will find tents erected and all preparations made for them. The camp ground is on the bank of Island lake, 3 miles distant from Brighton, the nearest town, and 30 miles from Detroit. The guard constitutes one brigade, with five regiments, each of eight companies, and the total muster is about 2,500 men. The week will be spent in instruction and drill and much hard work will be mingled with the fun and frolic of the thing. Officers of the United States army will be in attendance to offer suggestions and to observe the methods of doing business, and they will report officially what they think of it. Gov. Rich, as commander in chief of the troops of the state, will of course be there, and will be accompanied by his military staff in the gayest of full military uniform.

Charge Against a Lawyer.

BATTLE CREEK, July 30. — A sensational arrest was made in the train-wrecking cases Monday, being that of Attorney W. A. Crosby, who has represented most of the defendants. He is charged with an alleged conspiracy to spirit away the witness, Amelia Henselman, a German girl who worked for W. H. Smith, one of the alleged train-wreckers. Smith's wife was also arrested on the same charge. Jewett, one of the defendants in the cases, was arrested last Friday for running the girl away.

Held for Trial.

LANSING, July 27.—George Johnson and John Bodewig, formerly employed as watchman and engineer, respectively, by the Chicago & Grand Trunk company, and who have been in jail for the last year on charges of train-wrecking, etc., growing out of last summer's strike, have been bound over for trial in the United States court on a charge of obstructing the mails. It is alleged that they greased the track near Battle Creek.

LANSING, July 29.—The state board of health has prepared and the superintendent of public instruction is now distributing to the teachers' institutes throughout the state a leaflet supplying data and statements which will enable teachers to comply with the new law requiring the teaching in the public schools of the methods for the prevention and restriction of dangerous contagious diseases.

Gen. Shaffer Dead.

CASSOPOLIS, July 25.—Gen. George T. Shaffer died Wednesday afternoon at his home in Calvin township, 8 miles south of this place. He had been in poor health some time, but was around as usual up to the time of his death, having been to town Monday. The immediate cause of death was hemorrhage of the lungs. He leaves a widow, two daughters and a son.

The Crops.

LANSING, July 27.—Wheat harvesting has been general in most sections of the state, and in the southern counties considerable thrashing has been done. The straw has been short, and the yield of grain, although light, is generally reported as of good quality. The yield of oats is light, both of straw and grain.

MORE MINERS STRIKE.

Men Working in the Champion Mine Near Negaunee, Called Out.

NEGAUNEE, July 26.—The men employed at the Champion mine, 10 miles west of here, quit work Thursday morning. A delegation of strikers from Negaunee and Ishpeming visited the mine and urged the men to join them. There are a little less than 300 men employed at the Champion. It is said their average pay has not been as good as men working in the other mines here. Superintendent Fitch asserts that the mine will be closed indefinitely. Capt. Hoar appealed to the strikers to permit him to resume work at the Star West mine on the Cascade range, which he is operating on contract. He offered to grant the men all the demands they asked, but they said all the mines in the county would have to remain closed until a general advance was granted.

CHAMPION, Mich., July 30.—Orders have been received from the eastern offices to close down the Champion mine, the 250 employes being on a strike. The Champion mine produces hard ore.

MARQUETTE, Mich., July 30.—As was announced Saturday night the call of the local mine managers for all strikers to be at their places Monday morning to learn what concessions would be made by the companies was entirely ignored by the strikers, not one reporting as requested. The demonstration Monday was larger than ever. One man was thrown out of the procession with considerable violence on suspicion of being a spy. A double line of guards was stationed around the park where the meeting was held. At mine offices pay rolls are being made up in full, and the managers say it is their intention to pay all wages due and then shut down the mines.

FOREST FIRES.

They Are Working Much Ruin in the Vicinity of Gladstone.

GLADSTONE, July 31.—The situation here regarding forest fires remains the same. The swamps to the west and northwest of the city below the bluff and in the Goodmon addition, as well as the marsh lands on both sides of the Soo railway, are burning furiously. The buildings on the Hammer property, owned by W. D. Washburn, Jr., of Minneapolis, were destroyed Tuesday afternoon. Every precaution is being taken to prevent the fire getting into the business and residence portions of the city. The wind still remains in the north and is blowing a gale and the smoke in the streets is almost blinding. The city fire department has been on duty all day. Heavy fires are reported between Sault Ste. Marie and Trout Lake.

BURIED UNDER A STRAWSTACK.

Michigan Farmer Without Food or Water for a Week—He Will Die.

ADRIAN, July 31.—Humphrey Tabor, Jr., a young farmer living 2 miles west of here, has been mourned for dead the last week. He was the owner of a large farm and possessed of considerable property. On July 22 he disappeared from home and was last seen going in the direction of his barn. Nothing was heard of him until Tuesday, when one of his hired men heard moans in the hay loft, and, digging away in the hay, found Tabor nearly dead for want of food and drink. When resuscitated he said that in attempting to remove the hay the mow had tumbled over on him, and he had no idea how long he had been there. The doctors say he will probably die.

MYSTERY OF FOUR SKELETONS.

Evidence of a Big Crime Is Unearthed at Ionia.

It is thought there has been a big crime committed, but no one knows how the bones came there. They have probably been there for years. They were only 2 feet under ground and were all in a heap.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

Many years ago Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., compounded this medicine of vegetable ingredients which had an especial effect upon the stomach and liver, rousing the organs to healthful activity as well as purifying and enriching the blood. By such means the stomach and the nerves are supplied with pure blood; they will not do duty without it any more than a locomotive can run without coal. You can not get a lasting cure of Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, by taking artificially digested foods or pepsin—the stomach must do its own work in its own way. Do not put your nerves to sleep with so-called celery mixtures, it is better to go to the seat of the difficulty and feed the nerve cells on the food they require. Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, and Nervous Affections, such as sleeplessness and weak nervous feelings are completely cured by the "Discovery." It puts on healthy flesh, brings refreshing sleep and invigorates the whole system.

MRS. HENKE.

MRS. K. HENKE, of No. 896 North Halsted St., Chicago, Ill., writes: "I regard my improvement as simply wonderful. Since taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in connection with his 'Pleasant Pellets' I have gained in every respect, particularly in flesh and strength. My liver was dreadfully enlarged and I suffered greatly from dyspepsia. No physician could give relief.

Now, after two months I am entirely relieved of my disease. My appetite is excellent; food well digested; bowels regular and general health much improved."

THE BIG BAPTIST CONVENTION.

Notes On the Trip from Tecumseh to Baltimore and Six Days in the Monumental City.

When it was announced that the 5th international convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America would be held in Baltimore many of our people were greatly disappointed, realizing that the distance between Maryland and Michigan would prevent their attendance; but there were others who not only determined to go, but to go the longest way around. So, on Tuesday morning, July 16, a small party left the Lake Shore depot in Tecumseh, bound for Baltimore by way of Toledo, Cincinnati and Washington. The journey was a delightful one throughout, its entire length. We were joined at almost every large town by bright, enthusiastic young men and women, who needed no other introduction than the little silver or gold pin inscribed with "B. Y. P. U. A." and "Loyalty to Christ." These people were so kind and thoughtful that we soon lost the sense of loneliness which one sometimes feels in taking a long journey over an unfamiliar road. But the country itself is so beautiful that we gave much of our attention to sight seeing.

In Ohio we were much interested in the oil region through which we passed. We saw hundreds of immense tanks for holding the oil, but were told that there are not many refining establishments in the vicinity of the wells as most of the oil is carried in great underground pipes to Chicago where it is refined and sold. In Cincinnati we went about the city with some young ladies who had attended school at Granville and who are well acquainted with the Adkins family. We went to Mt. Auburn, past some of the public buildings, past the famous Institute, the beautiful cemetery, and the renowned zoological gardens out on our way to some suburban town, when we suddenly realized that if we would leave Cincinnati that night we must be "looking backward." Then in a little while we had crossed the Ohio river and were in the state of Kentucky and the "Land of Nod." Early in the morning, however, we were wide awake and were enjoying to the utmost the rugged mountain scenery presented to our view. We were strangely moved at the first glimpse at those great, beautiful, tree-covered, cloud-fringed hills and wondered if in all the meetings we were soon to attend we should find anything more spiritually uplifting than this sight. Almost involuntarily we repeated some of the expressions the Jews of old always chanted as they were going up to Jerusalem to their great feasts: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord which made heaven and earth. They that trust in the Lord shall be as Mount Zion, which cannot be removed but abideth forever. As the mountains are round about Jerusalem, so the Lord is round about his people from henceforth, even forever."

The scenery all along the route of the Chesapeake & Ohio is exceedingly varied and picturesque. We question whether any more charming views could be found anywhere than those we obtained from the windows of the "Fast Flying Virginian" between Charleston and Washington. Of course there is grander scenery elsewhere, but this is certainly entrancing. At one moment we leave a long, dark tunnel and follow the windings of an ever turning narrow river at the foot of steep or gently sloping mountains; at another moment we are climbing these great hills and looking down on pretty, peaceful valleys. At one moment the engine is hidden from our view around a curve in the road, the next it is almost at our side. One thing we do not see, however, except in rare instances, and that is a pretty residence. One young girl who was sitting near us mourned over this fact constantly and would not be comforted with the beauty of the landscape. For ourselves, we found attractions enough in the plain, unpainted miners' cabins, destitute as many of them are of anything that looks in the least like comfort.

Nearing Washington we passed thro' many historic places and were shown here and there a spot "where the battle was fought," or again a field filled with soldiers' graves. We were much interested in Rapidan, Manasses Junction and Culpepper Court House. Then we saw the home where Jefferson had lived; Alexandria, where the brave young Colonel Elmer Ellsworth met his death, and Arlington, the home of Lee. We did not remain long in Washington at this time, but went on to Baltimore, which we reached about 9 o'clock Wednesday evening. We found a delightful home while we remained there with Mrs. C. F. McCormick, who will be remembered in Tecumseh as Nellie Cole. She lives in a very pretty part of the city, near Harlem Square, one of the most beautiful parks we have ever seen. Her husband was chairman of one of the entertainment committees and helped to make our stay in Baltimore very pleasant. Baltimore has about 500,000 inhabitants and is a very attractive city. There are many points of great interest within a radius of a few miles. Johns Hopkins University; Peabody Institute, Art Gallery and Library; Walters Art Gallery; Johns Hopkins Hospital; Baptist Orphanage; Baltimore Orphan Asylum; the Catholic Cathedral; Shot Tower; Fort McHenry, bombarded by the British during the war of 1812 but not taken, which gave Francis Scott Key, then a prisoner on one of the British men of war, the idea of writing "The Star Spangled Banner;" Patterson Park with its historic associations, besides very many more fine parks, monumants and public buildings. All of these places we could not visit but we had a fine view of most of them from the Federal Hill Observatory, and with some of them we became quite familiar. We were much pleased with a visit to the markets one evening between meetings.

The convention itself was an inspiration to everyone who attended it. The weather did not behave well, but everything else did. The Baltimoreans themselves complained of the intense heat and to northern people it was very trying; yet it seemed almost rude to speak of it since our hospitable southern hosts did everything that could possibly be done to make us comfortable and happy.

On going to the state headquarters the morning after our arrival we were given a badge, a hymn book, a copy of the song of welcome, a souvenir program, a map of the city and a fan. Armed with these useful articles we soon went to the great tent which had been placed near the entrance to Druid Hill Park and only a short distance from the lovely Druid Lake. Here on the first morning we heard President Chapman, of Chicago; Eugene Levering, the president of the Baltimore Board of Trade; Mayor Latrobe; Dr. H. M. Wharton, of Baltimore; Rev. L. M. S. Haynes, of New York; Dr. Wilkins, our general secretary; Chancellor O. C. S. Wallace, of McMaster University, Toronto, Dr. Roland D. Grant, of Portland, Oregon, and a few other speakers. What they said would make an interesting volume. In the afternoon we heard Rev. Frederick Anderson, of Rochester, N. Y., and Rev. Johnston Myers, D. D., of Chicago, and in the Open Parliaments conducted by Rev. E. E. Chivers, of New York, and Rev. S. A. Northrup, of Cincinnati, just called there from Fort Wayne, Ind., we heard a score or more men of equal note. In the evening the speakers were Rev. E. B. Pollard, of Roanoke, Va.; Prof. C. L. Williams, of Granville, Ohio; President John F. Forbes, of De Land, Florida; Revs. F. D. Penny, T. B. Thames and E. H. Lovett; Dr. Wm. R. Harper, the brilliant president of Chicago University; Prof. J. M. Stifler, D.D., of Crozer Theological Seminary; and last, but not least, Rev. Russell H. Conwell, of Philadelphia.

The morning session Friday was taken up with the exercises connected with the "Salvation of the Flags." This was an imposing scene. Each state and province represented had chosen as speaker some man of decided talent to answer for his delegation at roll-call, and as standard bearer some sweet faced girl. As the choir began to sing "Onward Christian Soldiers" these representatives of their states left their seats in the audience and began their march to the platform where a place had been assigned to each. As the states were called, their standards were lifted in the air and the chosen speakers responded with a report of progress made in the year. These minute guns, as they are called, were full of life and wit. It is hard to believe that thirty-five more brilliant speeches could be made in the same time anywhere. In the afternoon twelve Helpful Worker's conferences were held in different parts of the city. We wanted to attend them all, but as this was impossible we chose the Junior meeting and did not regret it. In the evening, after the presentation of the Christian Culture banners, Dr. M. B. Wharton, of Norfolk, Va., and Rev. A. C. Dixon, of New York, gave two excellent addresses. Our hearts were filled and thrilled as we listened to their words. Dr. Carroll, of Texas, and Rev. A. S. Gumbart, of Boston, were the principal speakers at Saturday morning's service. In the evening each section held a meeting by itself. The meeting of the Gold which we attended was a splendid gathering. On Sunday nearly all the protestant pulpits of the city were filled by ministers of the Baptist denomination. At the Mount Vernon Place Methodist church we heard a fine sermon by Rev. Mr. Morrill, of Denver, Colorado. In the afternoon, at the tent, Dr. Kerfoot, of Louisville, Ky., gave a temperance address; Dr. Henson, of Chicago, preached a sermon and Dr. Gordon, of Philadelphia, led an after meeting, while at another place a Junior Rally was held. In the evening the president's annual address was eloquently given and the most blessed of all the helpful services of the convention was held, the closing consecration service with the roll-call of states and provinces and missionary lands. We believe that the influence of that last meeting will always rest like a benediction upon those who attended it, and we cannot too strongly urge those, who might make it possible to attend these great annual gatherings of young people, to do so.

The Monday following the convention we spent in Baltimore, in writing and sight-seeing. Early Tuesday morning we started for Luray. Page county, Virginia, to explore the famous Luray Caverns about a mile from the town. Unfortunately for us, although we had read of these caverns, we really knew very little about them until we began to plan our visit to them. Then we found that in 1878, Mr. B. P. Stebbins, a Maryland photographer, became convinced from traditions he had heard, and from geological indications, that there must exist somewhere in this neighborhood an undiscovered cave. He started out with some companions early in April to search for this underground treasure but it was not until the 13th of August that it was found. A depression on the hillside was examined and found to be full of loose stones and brush. Removing these with much labor the party found an opening from which air was escaping in a steady current. The opening was made larger and Mr. A. J. Campbell was lowered into it by means of a rope. He soon became so interested in what he saw that he left the rope and went on, making new discoveries with every turn. At length the rest of the party became alarmed at his absence and went in search of him. It was soon apparent to all that a valuable discovery had been made, and at night the young men returned to the cavern with candles to make other observations. They went through several halls but were stopped at last by a lake as they did not know the wealth of resources of the caverns until they had bought the land underneath which they lay and had made more extended investigations. Soon after this discovery, the tract of land covering the caverns was sold at a bankrupt sale and Stebbins, Campbell and their companions were glad to become its possessors, but when the relatives of the original owners learned what a valuable estate they had lost, they instituted suit for its recovery and were at last successful. The caverns are now the property of the Valley Land and Improvement Co., and are worth a very large amount of money. The 'Century' of January 1882 speaks of the ornamental formations of crystalline rock, which render this cave without a peer in the world, perhaps, for the startling beauty and astonishing variety of its interior. While a Smithsonian Institution report says: "It is safe to say that there is probably no other cave in the world more completely and more profusely decorated with stalactitic and stalagnitic ornamentation than Luray." It is impossible to satisfactorily describe the cave itself. We can scarcely imagine anything more weird and unnatural. Quaint shapes suggesting and sometimes even closely resembling the things of the outside world are everywhere seen, but there is an utter absence of life except in the people who move dreamily about, charmed with the conditions in which they find themselves, and yet almost fancying themselves in some strange new world. The names of the apartments and their furniture are suggestive: Entrance Hall, Washington's Column, Vegetable Garden, a space which contains all sorts of vegetable forms. The Theatre, The Gallery, the Rustic Flower Basket, the Fish Market, where one may see but cannot buy bass, shad, perch, mackerel and other rock fish; the Elfin Ramble, Pluto's Chasm, a gorge seventy-five feet deep and five hundred feet long, at the bottom of which is a real Spectre, Mirror Lake, the Balcony and Skeleton Gorge, where we may see the actual bones of man or a maiden; it is difficult for visionary people to determine which, certainly not the new woman. Then we fine our way to the Giant's Hall where we see Titania's Veil, Santa Claus, the Snow Bank, Diana's Bath and the Saracen's Tent. Now we go into the Cathedral where we see the Angel's Wing and listen to the music of the Organ, as we examine some groups of statuary, Christ Blessing Little children, and the Sleeping Infant. It is difficult to leave this room with all its attraction behind, but we do at last and come into the Ball Room, a handsomely furnished apartment two hundred and sixty feet below the surface of the earth. Here may be found the Idol, the Vault, the Lady's Whip, Cinderella and other interesting objects. On the day of our visit a sacred concert was held in the Ball Room, and we never expect to hear sweeter music in this world than America and the other stirring hymns that seemed to come right from the hearts of our B. Y. P. U. delegates. Altogether the day spent there will long be remembered.

The route from Baltimore to Luray is a very interesting one; passing Harper's Ferry where we saw the monument which has been erected to the memory of John Brown, and where we can see at one glance Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, passing many historic and otherwise attractive places the ride is one well worth taking even without the attraction of the cavern. We had a very good opportunity to become acquainted with several Virginia people as we found ourselves on our way to the train invited to an ice cream festival given by the ladies of the Methodist church of Luray. We accepted their invitation and found them as enterprising and pleasant as their northern sisters. We greatly enjoyed every glimpse we had of Southern life and customs.

Wednesday morning we took a steamer for Claiborne on the Chesapeake Bay and from there we went by rail across eastern Maryland to Ocean City where we spent another delightful day, bathing in the ocean, gathering sea shells, and watching the wonderful Atlantic. It was a perfect day and one of rare enjoyment. Thursday morning we started for Washington reluctantly leaving Baltimore, but carrying away pleasant thoughts of the bright days we had spent there.

Of the visit to Washington and Mount Vernon we may speak at another time for the benefit of the young people whom we hope will go there in large numbers next summer to the Christian Endeavor convention.

NOTES FROM THE EMERALD ISLE

What James Lowry is Doing Among the Scenes of His Childhood.

In a letter recently received from James Lowry he gives an interesting account of his travels on the Emerald Isle, which we are able to present our readers in this issue of the HERALD:

We landed at Queenstown on the morning of June 26th at 4 o'clock; but owing to the delay of the Tender in coming for us and our baggage it was 7 o'clock before we went ashore. As 400 landed here there was great commotion for two hours getting the baggage from the Tender and through the custom house. When we got our luggage into the station we started out to see the town, or rather city, for it has a population of 14,000. The harbor here is fine and Queenstown a pretty city. We enjoyed our stay here and continued our sight seeing until driven in by a severe thunder shower. The streets were flooded in a short time. This being the first rain since May first it was thankfully received. From Queenstown we went to the renowned city of Cork, and after driving through the pleasant thoroughfares and resident streets we visited the lovely Lakes of Killarney. The scenery surrounding these lakes is beautiful beyond description. Returning to Cork we took the train for Limerick. This, like the others, is a pretty city and furnishes many interesting subjects for the tourist. From Limerick we went to Dublin, where we spent some time. This city furnishes many points of interest, among them being Phœnix Park, which is, without exception, the finest I have ever seen. Regreting that we could not tarry longer, we took the train for Belfast, the best city in Ireland, which is more like American cities than any I have yet visited. It is growing very rapidly and has a population of 325,000. We only spent a few days here, although it would have required weeks to visit all the places one would like. From here we went to Ballymena, the town where I went to school and three miles from which I lived till I was 18 years of age. It has grown in size and made many improvements since I left it 23 years ago. It has now a population of fully 10,000 and is the only town of any importance within a radius of twenty or thirty miles. More business is transacted here than any place of its size on the island, for it furnishes all the surrounding towns for twenty or thirty miles with their merchandise. Saturday is their general market day, when buying and selling is done. Tuesday and Thursday of each week are the days when dressed pork is brought in and I discovered this to be a very extensive business. The pork is bought principally by four firms here who cure it and the excess over what is needed for home consumption is shipped to England. Yesterday, July 23, dressed pork sold for what in our money would be ten cents per pound; but the quality, I must confess, is far superior to American pork. The next place we visited was Glenariff Glen, or the Water Falls, the most beautiful spot in all Ireland. The river runs down between two mountains for several miles and there are numerous waterfalls. The natural scenery here presented to the eye is delightful. This glen is now owned and controlled by the Narrow Guage Railway Company, who have expended large sums of money in building rustic bridges—some of them hundreds of feet above the water—and laying out walks both sides of the glen, on either side of which choice plants and flowers in endless profusion may be seen. These, with the natural beauties of the glen, have made it a popular resort and it is yearly visited by thousands from England and Scotland, as well as all portions of the isle. We next visited Cushendall, a small town on the seashore. This is a very pretty watering place and a popular resort. There are many pretty towns on the shore which we intend to visit while here.

The crops in this country are looking fine, especially the potatoes. I never saw anything to compare with it in America. Ireland has improved wonderfully in every respect since I left it 23 years ago, and as I go around among the farmers I find them, as a class, in a prosperous condition; living as well as in any country and many of them laying up money. I spent a few days with William Elliott, a brother of Jim and Tom. He resides at Clough, the place where the wind blows from all directions at one and the same time. He owns a farm, with good buildings, has a fine blacksmith shop and has work enough for himself and two or three helpers. Judging from appearances, he is as well fixed as any of us in America. Anyone with a trade can do well in this country. It is the common laborer that finds it hard to get along. Their wages are not half what they are in America and provisions much higher. I do not see how they live as well as they do, but most of them seem to be satisfied. One man informed me that he had worked for his present employer twenty-five years and supported himself and family on 50 cents per day, or two shillings, English money. How he could do it was to me a mystery, for here butter is 24c, eggs 25c, beefsteak from 16c to 20c, boiling pieces 10c to 13c, pork 12c to 13c, ham 16c, and other things in proportion. With this state of things you can see it must require the strictest economy for a laborer with a family, at 50 cents a day, to make both ends meet.

I could give you much more had I the time, but the carriage is waiting for me and I must say good bye and be off.

Yours truly,

JAMES LOWRY.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phœbe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St. San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result every thing else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Orr & Temple's drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. 5

GOT THE BACKACHE?

If You Have, Here's the Way to Rid Yourself of the Weariness and Pain Attending It.

Some people suffer with headaches, many people are worn out and weary all the time, many more people have lame back and backache. Few people understand the real cause of their aches, and fewer yet know how easily they can find a cure. Just a word of explanation before we prove that what we say is true. The back is the key-note of the kidneys. It aches: that's a sign that the kidneys are not working properly; it is lame; another sign, the kidneys are out of order. The kidneys, you know, are the filters of the blood, but filters sometimes get clogged up. This means in their case that the blood courses through the entire system impregnated with poisonous uric acid, bringing on many a disorder which, if neglected, means disease perhaps incurable. And now about the cure—Don't take our word for it; read what others say:

Mr. David C. Oaks is proprietor of the well known hardware and paint shop at 220 East Main Street, Kalamazoo. Mr. Oaks has suffered a great deal from kidney ailments; he described his condition and cure as follows: "I had a bad, lame back, which I suppose was caused by my kidneys; was confined to my bed during bad attacks. I might say, from time to time, I have been in that condition for years. The urinary organism was affected, urine being scanty, highly colored, and difficult in passage. I was in a bad shape when I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, about which I had heard. I have used now two boxes of them, and the pills have removed all the pain and trouble. There was a marked improvement right from the first, and it has continued right along. Doan's Kidney Pills are the right thing in the right place."

For sale by all dealers — price, 50 cents. Mailed by Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

"M. Quad," the Famous Humorist, Takes his Old Place on The Free Press.

We find great pleasure in announcing to our readers that Chas. B. Lewis, the famous "M. Quad," has resumed his former place upon The Detroit Free Press. Since his retirement from The Free Press four years ago Mr. Lewis has been writing for one of the leading syndicates. His preference for direct newspaper work, however, led him to abandon that connection, and hereafter his popular writings will appear only in The Free Press. Mr. and Mrs. Bowser, Brother Gardner, Arizona Kicker, Zeb. White, Abe Crofoot, Mrs. Gallup, and many new characters will appear regularly.

The publishers are making a special four months' trial offer of the Semi-Weekly Free Press for 25 cents to introduce their paper to new readers, and we would advise those looking for a great bargain to send in their subscription at once. The offer is good only until August 1.

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE

She Has Ever Known. Words of Praise from a New York Lady for

AYER'S PILLS

"I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have taken them for many years, and always derived the best results from their use. For stomach and liver troubles, and for the cure of headache caused by these derangements, Ayer's Pills cannot be equaled.

When my friends ask me what is the best remedy for disorders of the stomach, liver, or bowels, my invariable answer is, Ayer's Pills. Taken in season, they will break up a cold, prevent la grippe, check fever, and regulate the digestive organs. They are easy to take, and are, indeed, the best all-round family medicine I have ever known."—Mrs. MAY JOHNSON, 368 Rider Avenue, New York City.

When a person is losing flesh and wasting away there is cause for alarm. Nothing so worries a physician. Consumptives would never die if they could gain their usual weight. In fact there would be no consumption if there were no wasting of the system. The cause of this loss of flesh is a failure to properly digest the food eaten. Nine-tenths of all our diseases date back to some derangement of the stomach. The Shaker Digestive Cordial will stop the wasting of the body. It acts by causing the food we eat to be digested as to do good, for undigested food does more harm than good. The Cordial contains food already digested and is a digester of food as well. 1w

Vacation Time.

Is at hand and is gladly welcomed by all, especially by those whose duties in life have caused them to greatly run down their system to meet the requirements, physical and mental, forced upon them. With these and others, it is important, whether at home, at the seashore or in the country, that some thought be given to diet, and as further assistance to Nature, a good building-up medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla had best be resorted to. If the digestion is poor, liver deranged and frequent headaches seem to be the rule, Hood's will change all this and enable everyone to return to their home and business in a refreshed state of mind and bodily health. 1w

"I think, madam," said the physician, after a careful investigation of the patient's case, "I think, madam, the trouble must be with the liver." "I don't see how that can be, doctor; I never eat it myself, and the boarders haven't complained."

Use It In Time.

Catarrh starts in the nasal passages, affecting eyes, ears and throat, and is in fact, the great enemy of the mucous membrane. Neglected colds in the head almost invariably precede catarrh causing an excessive flow of mucous, and if the mucous discharge becomes interrupted the disagreeable results of catarrh will follow, such as bad breath severe pain across the forehead and about the eyes, a roaring and buzzing sound in the ears and oftentimes a very offensive discharge. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for these troubles. 1w

"You say you earn more money by your pen than you did a year ago?" "I do." "How's that?" "I stopped writing stories and began addressing envelopes."

BIG PROFITS ON Small Investments

Returning prosperity will make many rich, but nowhere can they make so much within a short time as by successful Speculation in Grain, Provisions and Stock.

$10.00 FOR EACH DOLLAR INVESTED can be made by our Systematic Plan of Speculation.

originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system.

It is a well-known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by systematic trading through Chicago brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred of two hundred dollars up to $50,000 to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand.

It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading.

Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time.

WHEELING THROUGH FRANCE.

The Route From the Sea Coast Over Macadamized Roads to the City of Paris.

PARIS, July 12, 1895.

EDITOR HERALD:—Our European trip awheel properly began on the afternoon of July 9th, when the Veendam, after passing several rocky capes of England and the Isle of Wight, reached Boulogne, France, and landed us, together with a large party. Viewed from about a mile out at sea, the coast here presents a quaint and charming scene. Here the land comes down to the sea, steep and bare; there it slopes and keeps green to the water's edge and the verdure sets in relief an ancient white-washed chateau. As our tender neared the pier we saw gendarmes with red trousers, blue coats and red hats; peasants with great, red, bare feet; trousers which hesitated midway between long and knickerbockers, and frocks of blue over-all material extending nearly to the knee. The background of this picture was white cobble-stones, white plastered walls of stores and the red tiles which roofed them. If Rip Van Winkle had slept backward 500 years he would have felt much as we did. We were aided in getting our wheels thro' the custom house by a Parisian mademoiselle, a friend on shipboard, who talked French as fast as the officials. Once in the street, we were surrounded by a howling mob of draymen, peasants, coachmen and small boys. Mlle. said they wanted the crates of our bicycles. Wood is in demand here. Two draymen had a regular fight over my crate and some boys struggled desperately for the twine. At last we mounted, but the pavement rolled so—first one side of the street then the other was the highest—we decided that our bikes still had their sea legs. For two hours the roads had that billowy motion. The complete antiquity of everything dazed us. We rode through the narrow streets, looking for the postoffice, and felt as if we were in an alley. Involuntarily, I kept looking for the front street. We viewed the chateau where Louis Napoleon was imprisoned for a time and an odd old Norman church with its flying buttresses. Then we went out into the country, en route for Paris. Here we rode between high hedges and stone walls; for farm houses are impregnable in France. A thick growth of trees behind the stone wall prevents more than a glimpse of the chateau. There is no good American farmer's wife with her glass of milk and a doughnut to comfort the weary wheelman.

We have absolutely perfect roads and a country ornamented by every device of artistic cultivation. Valley sides show consummate skill in checkered arrangement of various grains. The yellow wheat fields are thickly dotted with a red flower—what this blossom is I cannot find out. They ask me for "cinq sou," 5 cents, every time I enquire. As we pass through small villages there is a chorus of demands for one "sou," which we laughingly ignore. At almost every cross road is a cross of iron, ten feet high, with a grotesque figure in bronze of Christ crucified. Remember that this is in Normandy and Norman churches are frequent. These are so old, crumbling and weather-stained that we feel as if among monuments of the dead. To increase this feeling, there are the churchyards filled with moss covered stones upon which are hung invariably wire frames to hold flowers. These frames are of all designs.

Even in Europe a wheelman eats, and after a 30 mile ride we sat down in a queer little cafe in a village where every store seemed to be a cafe. About the door was a round clock with pearl figures and the outline a series of sixteen scollops. The floor was tile, strewn with sand. On one side of the room was a martial array of loaves of bread, one end on the floor and the other leaning against the wall three feet above. A bar reached half way across the other side, on which were odd glasses and bottles. When we asked for water to drink the landlady could not understand (though my French was faultless) and made motions as if washing her hands. I insisted that it was to drink and in a dazed way she went and returned with a long necked bottle, such as the stork in the fable offered the fox. This was filled with clear water. Then she watched us curiously and when we drank she got her husband and daughter to come and see these amphibious creatures. Wherever we ask for water they look incredulous, ask over again and supplement by a questioning "to drinky".

Curiosities by the wayside in this region are old round stone towers and windmills with four huge fans which revolve as ponderously as an elephant walks.

The abject poverty here makes me heartsick. Faces of old men and women are invariably hard and repulsive. The peasants, you know, live in small villages and go out from these to work in fields. So the view of the country stretches away, unbroken by fences or farm houses, and excites exclamations of admiration as we reach each hill-top. Imagine a vast hillside checkered and streaked with geometrical exactness. A block of yellow grain, then a block of blue flowers and another of coffee colored grain, and this varied by blocks of green, purple and scarlet; all bounded, perhaps, by a streak of white. Behind this a dark green forest or a grove of yellowish green poplars. Here and there we meet a good natured shepherd in his sackcloth frock and, while we were near the seacoast, processions of bare-footed, short-skirted fish women shouldering a short pole on which are wound nets. Again, there is a line of strapping fellows, feet and legs bare and wearing blue frocks. Their hard muscled faces bear a grim smile, but they look straight ahead and plod along.

We go into peasants' houses at times on various pretexts and where the dirt is not too deep, the antiquity of all is amusing. Ancient fire-places with a pot sizzling on the irons, and above this a row of cracked plates with huge flowers painted gaily upon the bowl, the omnipresent scalloped clock, a couple of cane-seated chairs, an unbalanced table, and a beer advertisement chromo complete the picture. Some coarse grained salt was given us to flavor eggs which we ate at one peasant's house, and I actually believe it had been in the family's possession for generations. It was black with handling. We have amusing experiences with our small stock of French. I wanted some bicycle oil, and could not think of a word for "sperm" so I asked for the "oil of the whale," in French. The druggist laughed and handed out exactly what I wanted.

Two wheeled carts are the only vehicles seen in farming districts, and to those are harnessed every conceivable domesticated animal, including man and woman. A donkey kicked viciously at me as I was passing, and horses frequently turn right about. Dogs are chained beneath venders' carts to guard, and very savagely they do it, too.

Such rags and infirmity and deformity as we see in every village, you could not see in a month's ride in the U. S. and peaceful as is our pilgrimage, we see many a hard, frowning face looking malignantly at us from the narrower alleys of the narrow streets. Old women bent double, hideous in features, crawl along the stone pavements. Others with grim mouths sit and knit before doors. Houses with plaster sides and huge holes in the plaster and with thatched roofs are the homes of these wretches. A composite mental picture of a peasant village is dazzling white with strong impression of squalor.

I don't intend to oppress you with proper names, but a general outline of our route to Paris may be had by finding on your map Etaple; Abbeville, its fine Gothic church with its elaborately sculptured facade, and a house of Frances I; Meru and St. Germain situated on an eminence thirteen miles from Paris. Here we saw the chateau of Francis I and from the lofty terrace from whence many French kings had gazed we looked upon Paris for the first time. At the foot of the terrace winds the Seine and beyond stretches the immense plain in which memory puts so much human history. In descending from this terrace we trundled our machines because common sense and the Bicycle Touring Club of France told us to do so. In France you are notified of every long, steep hill, and at every turn you are told where to go and how far. Near large cities are houses for bicycle riders to rest in and a broad bicycle path saves a ride over cobble stones. The roads are macadamized in the country and made smoth as asphalt, and at certain intervals are authorized repair shops. But you cannot get chain paste; they use vaselene and never heard of any other lubricant.

Of our entrance to Paris and experience there I shall tell next time.

Regular meetings every Friday at 3 o'clock p. m. Mothers' meeting, first Friday in each month.

Meetings for July and August will be held in the M. E. Church parlors.

Michigan will Rue the Day.

The time will come when the people of the state of Michigan will regret their action in wiping prohibition from their statute books, and in enacting a tax law under which the saloon is doing such a thriving business. The old prohibitory law was a poor affair, as everybody concedes, but the principle was right, and the law might have been so toned up as to be effective in excluding breweries and saloons from our commonwealth. But no. The liquor oligarchy determined to kill the law, and the people suffered it to be done. Eight years ago they also suffered this same oligarchy to defeat the prohibition amendment. Thousands of times we have been told "prohibition doesn't prohibit," yet prohibition is the very last thing in the shape of a law which liquor dealers want. A tax law doesn't prohibit, either, and it costs liquor dealers an immense sum to maintain it, yet they prefer it to a measure which outlaws their business, renders it odious, and brands them as criminals. The people of the state of Michigan ought to be doing something to rid the state of the terrible scourge which the liquor business is inflicting. Our sons are growing around us familiar with saloon rowdyism, whisky murders, bar-room brutality, and the hardening influences of the liquor trade generally. Our lawmakers shamelessly set pernicious examples in patronizing saloons and in sustaining habits of debasing conviviality. Lager beer, wines, champagnes, and stronger drinks flow freely at official installations and political banquets and other assemblings. The wishes of liquor dealers are often consulted and sometimes respected in making and in enforcing law. Little or no effort is made by the secular press, by the platform, courts of law, or even by the public schools to create a lively and healthful sentiment against the sale or use of liquor. One thousand saloons are flourishing in Detroit alone, and the people are accepting a half million dollars as a condition of toleration. It is cash against morality. The whole trend of law and custom is in the wrong direction. We are educating our boys to think that almost anything is right if a big price is paid for the privilege. The direct purpose of our liquor law, as conceded by the Detroit Tribune, is to preserve the saloon and not destroy it." The same paper teaches that the evils of saloonism are "incidental" rather than inherent. A condition of thought and belief is being created, under which the demoralizing influences of drinking-houses can be perpetuated. Murders and rapes, political corruption and official rottenness, are increasing, and everybody knows that the debasing tendency of saloonism is the chief cause thereof, yet the public is listless, if not reckless. There is deep trouble ahead if reform does not come. Revolution of law and sentiment alone can prevent ruin. This fair state will needlessly sacrifice thousands of good-hearted boys, and perdition will reap a mighty harvest, unless the false principles and pernicious teachings of those who are seeking to mould popular sentiment can be counteracted and rebuked.—Mich. Christian Advocate.

Serious Facts.

Senator Hill of Georgia went to a premature grave, after terrible suffering from cancer of the tongue. Cause—tobacco.

The life of Thomas Dunn English, eminent poet and physician, was barely saved by a torturing operation in removing a cancer. Cause—tobacco.

General Grant died too young with cancer. Cause—tobacco.

The tobacco habit threatens to exclude men from some important industries. A woman holds the position of inspector of colored glass in New York, her sense of color being more perfect than any of her male competitors.

Lieutenant Greely says of those who went with him to the north pole, of the seventeen of his men who died, all were smokers but one, and he died last. Of the seven survivors none were smokers.

The tobacco habit is injurious to health, it is an expensive habit, and it is a bad example, therefore it ought to be shunned.—Rev. A. M. Viren.

Yesterday morning the H. O. Will's quartette, with their covered rig and organ appeared on Chicago street and for half an hour entertained quite a crowd with their speaking and singing. They are now conducting revival meetings at Dundee and came over here to give this town a little evangelical work. They may conclude to visit us a few days at some future time.

The advance in leather has obliged manufacturers to make a corresponding advance in the price of shoes, with probably, the only exception of W. L. Douglas, who, notwithstanding the high price of leather, will continue at the old prices, and give a better shoe than ever before. The recent additions to his already large factory, makes his plant the largest in the world devoted to manufacturing an exclusive line of shoes.

The closing performances of "Lalla Rookh" at Boulevard Park, Detroit, will mark the ending of the most stupendous attraction the City of the Straits has ever seen and it also marks the successful conclusion of the plan of the Detroit Railway to fittingly celebrate its opening. There have been other enterprises started in Detroit with a greater blare of trumpets and more sanguine hopes of success, but none has achieved as much glory and been as eminently successful as has "Lalla Rookh" under the promotion of The Detroit Railway. The liberality and enterprise of Messrs. H. A. Everett and Albert Pack have richly merited the rewards won and the people of Detroit, and of the state, have taken a great interest in the new line and its managers.

ENTERED INTO REST.

Entered peacefully into rest, on the morning of July 20, 1895, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Levi Hayden, in Tecumseh, Mrs. Josephine Mead. She was the daughter of Daniel Clarkson, of Macon, Mich., at whose home she was born April 8th, 1838. She was married Feb. 19, 1867, to Lieut. LeRoy Mead, of the 4th Michigan Infantry, and settled in a home amid the scenes of her happy girlhood, where she lived until her husband's death on March 21, 1883, and for ten years after, taking up the cares and duties of life so bravely. Her sweet, unselfish, christian life and genial, cheerful disposition made her the light of the home she loved so well and endeared her to her many friends. Two daughters, Mrs. Levi Hayden and Camilla Mead, survive her; and two, a lovely young lady and a bright baby girl, were awaiting her on the other shore. From her early girlhood she was a consistent member of the Reformed church, "ever loyal to Christ and His church."

OUR BOSTON TRIP.

This is what the Sir Knights of Adrian Commandery call the pilgrimage, which they propose making to Boston on Aug. 23d. They will leave Adrian at 10 o'clock a. m., over the Wabash, and will arrive in Boston on Monday, Aug. 26, at the same hour. The route will include Detroit, Toronto, Kingston, Montreal, Fabyans, Portland, old Orchard Beach and Boston. The return trip will be via Saratoga and the West Shore road to Buffalo and thence to Detroit and home again. A neat pamphlet has been issued giving a full description of the itinerary, noting the chief points of interest along the route, and illustrated with many fine half-tone engravings. Niagara Falls will be twice visited, on the outward and on the homeward trip. Special palace cars will be provided for the journey and every provision made to enhance the enjoyment and satisfy the comfort of the Knights in attendance. It will be a famous pilgrimage for the Adrian Commandery. Are you to be one of the company in "Our Boston Trip?"

The readers of this paper will be pleased to know that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

The Dundee Reporter is responsible for the following: "Wonders will never cease; Frank Davidson, of Tecumseh, of late has got so he comes to Dundee to eat breakfast with Dr. G. W. Richardson. When the Dr. asked the Tecumseh gentleman to eat, he says, 'No, thank you,' but on requesting him again he accepted. The Dr. says if by one having been to breakfast is any proof of how much a man will eat he would like to know it. NO COMPROMISE.

Strikers at Ishpeming Reject All Talk of Such Settlement.

ISHPEMING, Aug. 3.—The Ishpeming and Negaunee strikers held a big demonstration in Ishpeming Friday. Almost 3,000 men were in line of march from the park at noon. Some of the speakers made an effort to induce the men to visit the mines to ascertain what concession the companies are prepared to make, but the matter was voted down. The men will not listen to compromise talk, and those who attempt to speak of effecting a settlement in that way are given but little encouragement. Many of the men desire to go back to work, but the majority are opposed to it, the latter insisting on recognition of the union by the companies. It is certain, however, that the companies will not recognize the union in any regard, and will keep the mines closed until such time as there is a break in the ranks of the organization. The companies will all have paid off their men in full, this week, and are preparing for an indefinite shut-down of their works.

He was United States consul at Sarnia, Ont., under Lincoln, and during Grant's first administration was consul at Windsor, Ont.

Wages of Franklin Copper Mine Employes are Restored.

HANCOCK, Mich., Aug. 5.—The employes of the Franklin copper mine have had their wages restored to the figure holding before the cut caused by the panic of two years ago, when a general cut was made in all the copper mines of the lake district. It is thought that the example of the Franklin will be speedily followed by the eight other mines now in operation, as the copper market shows excellent prospects for several years of prosperity.

DETROIT, Aug. 6.—The Detroit Dry Dock company has closed a contract with the Russian government to build three car ferries for winter traffic on Lake Batkul, in the middle of Siberia, to connect with the Transsiberian road, which that government has been building for some years. It is thought the composite type is the one selected. The contract price is $800,000 for each boat, the largest contract ever given a lake firm. Each boat will have 7,000 horse power.

Carved Himself.

BATTLE CREEK, Aug. 7.—George McMillan, insane, with a railroad ticket from Chicago to Oaksville, Canada, met a horrible death here Tuesday. While waiting to make train connections he was lodged in jail. When discovered he was naked and had cut himself so about the legs with a penknife that physicians decided amputation was necessary. Following the operation he died, after giving the address of a sister in Canada.

Mine Resumes.

CALUMET, Aug. 7.—The Copper Falls mine resumed work Tuesday morning. It is probable the Arnold and Copper Falls mines will be consolidated and work. This is the first idle mine to resume since the improvement in the copper situation and it is now the only active mine in Keweenaw county. There is a prospect that several other mines where operations are now suspended will resume with full forces in the near future.

AERONAUTS HURT.

Man and Woman Fall from a Balloon at Jackson.

JACKSON, Aug. 5.—The balloon ascension which was advertised at the park here Sunday developed into a tragedy. Charles Elliott and Ella Park were billed to go up in a hot-air balloon and to give a trapeze performance 1,000 feet above the ground. The inflation of the balloon was successfully accomplished and the pair sailed upward, sitting upon the trapeze. They went through the various feats of the trapeze performer, and had nearly completed their programme, when somebody in the crowd yelled: "It's on fire." The balloon was seen to shoot down rapidly and then everybody saw that the big bag was burning, and burning with fearful rapidity. It seemed like an hour, but it was only an instant that those two performers hung in the air. Elliott, as he neared the ground, released his hold upon the bar and swung clear, while the woman held fast. Both were dashed upon the hard earth with a sound that sent a chill over every spectator. When the crowd rushed to pick them up both were found to be unconscious. Elliott was crushed into an unrecognizable mass, but still breathing, while Miss Park had both legs and arms broken and was fearfully injured internally. They were taken to the hospital, but were beyond the doctor's help, and both will die. Miss Park is a niece of the famous balloon ascensionist, Hogan, who, it will be remembered, was lost from Campbell's airship some years ago.

NEW PRISON LAWS.

The Board Meets at Mackinac Island to Discuss Them.

MACKINAW, Aug. 7.—The state prison boards in annual session here Tuesday adopted rules for the application of the parole system for convicts. The rules prescribe that the governor may parole prisoners on the recommendation of the prison board, who shall be guided by the information given by the wardens. Upon receiving a parole the convict shall go at once to his place of employment, which must be provided for in advance. Shall not leave that place without permission, and shall not leave the state. He must report monthly as to where he is and what he is doing, and shall always be subject to return to prison for conduct unbecoming a good citizen. Under parole he shall save or lose his good time the same as though still in prison. The joint board will consider the convict labor question, and will probably readopt the contract and state account systems now in vogue.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning Aug. 11. Comment by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M. Topic, Healing the Nobleman's Son.

SCRIPTURE READING.—John iv. 46-54.

Rejected by his own townspeople at Nazareth, Jesus had left it forever. He had gone for a short time to Cana, where the water had been turned to wine. While here a ruler from Capernaum, probably one of the courtiers or officers of the household of Herod Antipas, came to him. The serious sickness of his son made the nobleman urgent. He pressed Jesus to come down to the city and heal the young man. Jesus, to rebuke any merely curious seeking after wonders and to prove the motive of the man, says, "Except ye see signs and wonders ye will not believe." Then the father's faith and desire shine out clearly, and he becomes urgent. "Sir, come down, ere my child die."

His confidence in Christ is rewarded. He receives the assurance that the child shall recover. He believes, and even though Jesus does not go with him he starts on his return. It is 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Five hours away lies Capernaum, but so confident is he of the Master's announcement that he stops over night on the way. The slaves from home meet him next morning and tell him that the son began to recover at the very hour Jesus gave him the word.

From this time the man and all his family became disciples of Jesus. Perhaps this was Chuza, the steward of Herod, whose wife, Joanna, is afterward mentioned as ministering to the Lord of her substance.

Show Your Colors!

During this month many persons will be away from home and so may feel the sense of responsibility to attend religious services relaxed. It is the best way to go to meeting wherever you may be. It may do some one else good to hear your prayer, your songs and testimony. It may do you great good to hear those of others. The fidelity to Jesus which your attendance upon service will show will surely bring its blessing in strengthened purpose and will often deliver one from many temptations. Wherever you go, make it a point to seek and associate with Christians, especially in their religious gatherings. Show your colors, and don't be afraid to let men know you are a follower of the Christ!

Help a Little.

Nothing so helps a person as to help some one else. Aches and ills are forgotten and often cured, life has new interest, and we take hold of things with zest which before were irksome. On every side there are people needing a lift; poor women and men and children needing an outing. Share your pleasure with them. A ticket for an excursion will cost something, but it will give you more pleasure to give it once in awhile to a needy one than to take them all for yourself. Try to help some one every day by a kind word or deed. This is the season of blossoms. Make lives bud and flower and bear fruitage of goodness.

Warm Weather Work.

In many places it will be difficult during the hot weather to do anything in literary or social lines. It may even seem impossible to maintain the weekly devotional service, yet there is work which should not be neglected. Every member of the League should be faithful in private devotions. Daily reading of God's word and prayer, not only for one's self, but for God's blessing on others, should never be omitted.

Where it is possible, it is a good plan to attend one of the summer assemblies either on the Chautauqua or League basis.

That Notebook.

Every one, especially every Leaguer, should always carry notebook and pencil, ready to jot down anything which will be either personally helpful or of benefit to the other members of the chapter. Incidents, items of news, new ideas, quotations, plans, gems of prose or poetry, titles of books, striking illustrations, addresses and a hundred items one will wish to recall should be briefly noted. There is no greater delusion than to think because a thing interests at the time we can therefore recall it whenever we choose. Note it.

A Look Ahead.

It is none too soon for the League officers to begin to form plans for the autumn meetings. Lectures should find some place in the programme. Local talent should be interested and preparation made so that those who go away from home on vacation shall on their return bring new facts, enthusiasm and light with them. Papers can be written, or at least material gathered for them, which can be worked out after the return home and presented at some meeting of the League. Plan ahead.

Harvest the Fruits Soon.

Some souls were converted, or at least made a start in Christian life, at the camp meeting or assembly. Don't let them get back into the world before you try to gather them in. Invite them to church service. Get them to join the League. Call upon them at their homes. Be friends with them. Replace their old companions with new and Christian friends. If you don't gather the fruits when ripe, be sure they will spoil, and be lost to you and themselves.

Arms More Than Armor.

Nothing can take the place in Christian living of constant Bible searching. It is not enough to get its history, geography, biography and stories. One must get its spirit. When one knows the Bible and feels possessed by its truth, he has the sword of the Spirit.

Far In Advance of His Age.

In many places the alterations made in the revised version of the New Testament are the same as those adopted by John Wesley in his "Notes." In the first seven chapters of Matthew there are 130 of such changes.

HER CONFESSION.

At the age of 16 my aunt had succeeded in having me "finished"—according to the fashionable patent. I was beautiful, willful, utterly selfish and a devotee of the art of flirting. So accomplished, I returned to my old home. A gay party went with me, with whom I was to make the round of watering places after a short visit to my father.

The sabbath before we were to start we all went to the old village church. I shall never forget that day. As we all sat silent there was a slight rustling of leaves and the imperceptible stir that announces a newcomer, and I turned to see that the clergyman had entered noiselessly. He was kneeling at his desk, but when, after a moment, he rose I saw a pale, intellectual face, a grand head covered by light, waving hair of golden brown, a tall figure finely proportioned, but a little too slight for the indication of robust health. I was attracted and interested at first, but when he began to read the deep, melodious inflections of his voice completed the charm. I listened entranced.

From that instant I saw nothing, felt nothing but his presence, until the service and the sermon were ended.

Mechanically I followed my friends into the porch. A sudden summer shower was gathering, the air was chill, and nature wore the gray hue so ominous of her coming convulsions. I had been unconscious of the change, but the chill wind had been blowing upon me from an open window as I sat in church, and now I shuddered as, taking my father's arm, I hurried homeward. Before we reached the house the storm broke, and all but the swiftest pedestrians were thoroughly drenched. Ere nightfall burning fever alternated with icy chills in my frame, and the effect of draft and drenching declared themselves.

Mr. Fletcher had been invited by my father to dine with us, but had excused himself with the simple remark that his duties absorbed the entire Sabbath day. But during the week and after our friends had left us, he called. I saw him in the little morning room where I rested upon a couch, and he dined with my father. This visit was followed by many others, until at last he dined with us nearly every day and spent most evenings in listening to my performances upon the pianoforte or in conversing with me.

I saw the effect of my charms. I knew that I was beautiful, and the world declared me brilliant. And I brought every art that I had learned to lure this silent, grave youth to my feet. It was a triumph to bend his intellect to a girl's will, and I liked him too. But I am sure no thought of the future or of the consequences of my act ever intruded upon me.

And yet I suffered, too, for I was not destitute of sympathy and my heart not wholly untouched, either, by the profound devotion of the silent, grave man, when I listened to his declaration of love and spoke the words that separated us forever.

I went up to my room half angry with myself. But I stifled the silent monitor, and ordered my maid to prepare for the journey I was about to undertake to join my friends at Newport.

The morning I left home my father mentioned, casually, that he had heard that Mr. Fletcher was very ill. I felt myself grow pale and cold, but I stifled my emotions and in a constrained voice expressed my regret and begged my father to inform me in his letters of his state.

* * * * * * *

Two years later I was in Italy with my husband—the husband of my Aunt St. Clair's choice. I had made a grand match, but I was not happy.

One night I saw my husband making his way toward me through a crowded saloon. I pressed forward, for I felt the need of his protection from advances that were insults, though perhaps not intended as such. He drew my arm in his, but did not speak until we reached the anteroom.

Then he told me that he had been summoned to the bedside of a dying countryman and that he had come from this melancholy visit to conduct me thither. He would tell me no more, and when I refused to go he compelled me, almost by force, to accompany him.

It was to Mr. Fletcher we were going. We found him in humble lodgings, for he had spent his last dollar and was reduced to die in the midst of poverty and deprivation. He had heard of us, had seen us when he crawled forth upon the piazza and had ventured to send for us in his extremity. He uttered no reproaches, though he told me, in hollow accents, that my rejection had been his doom, and now that he was dying, he desired only to look upon my face.

I knew then how I had loved John Fletcher, and if the sacrifice of my life would have saved his, most gladly would I have died that hour.

But God willed otherwise.

I told my husband all as we returned in the purple Italian twilight from the funeral. We had hated each other before, but now a new antagonism had arisen. We felt that the false and hollow bonds that bound us must be snapped asunder. I left him in Naples and returned alone to America, thus voluntarily renouncing the station of wifehood and compelling myself to seclusion and solitude.

Years have passed since that hour. My father has long been dead, and I should live quite alone at Verdhill but for the sweet presence of a fair young girl—John Fletcher's sister. I found her—a mere infant—on my return, abandoned to poverty by her brother's death, and she has been with me ever since. In my care of her I have striven, in some little measure, to repair the one great wrong of my life. But for her, life would be all dreary and no gleam of pleasure would light the passage of a sorrowing penitent to the grave.—Philadelphia Item.

Old Parr's Possible Age.

One of the last services Dean Stanley did for Westminster Abbey was to cause the almost effaced inscription over the celebrated old Parr's grave to be recut. It is as follows: "Tho: Parr of ye County of Salop Borne in AD 1483. He lived in ye reigns of Ten Princes viz.: K. Edw. 4, K. Edw. 5, K. Rich. 3, K. Hen. 7, K. Hen. 8, K. Edw. 6, Q. Ma. Q. Eliz., K. Ja. & K. Charles. Aged 152 yeares, and was Buried Here Novemb 15, 1685."

The "old Countess of Desmond," who is said to have died at the age of 140, is mentioned by Lord Bacon, Archbishop Usher and Sir William Temple. The first assures us that "she did dentige (renew her teeth) twice or thrice, casting her old teeth, and others coming in their place."—Chambers' Journal.

Gulleful Gallantry.

Matron—Do not be vulgar, even though poor. There is a great deal of difference in the way a sentence is pronounced.

Tramp—Indeed there is, madam. I'd rather listen to you all day than hear a few words from the highest dignitaries at court.—Adams Freeman.

One Red Rose Pays the Rent.

Many curious tenures might be cited from England, Scotland and Germany, but I only know of one in America that is rich enough to deserve special mention. Away back in 1772 Baron Henry Stiefel, the founder of Manheim, Pa., donated a plot of ground to the Lutheran congregation, with the understanding that it was to pay 5 shillings down in cash and each year thereafter "one red rose." According to provisions made at the time, this red rose was to be given to the eccentric baron or his legal heirs on the Sunday nearest June 15 of each year. Ever since that date large congregations meet at the Manheim Lutheran church to observe the ceremony of presenting the red rose, which always takes place on the mid-June Sabbath. The recipient of the rose (for the last seven years a Mrs. Boyer) always gives a receipt in full for the year's rent.—St. Louis Republic.

Self Love.

Self love is, in almost all men, such an overweight that they are incredulous of a man's habitual preference of the general good to his own, but when they see it proved by sacrifices of ease, wealth, rank and of life itself there is no limit to their admiration.—Emerson.

Tender Hearted Women.

"Like mistress, like maid," is a saying that is probably oftener true than "like master, like man." The story is told that Mlle. Augustine Brohan, a celebrated French comedienne, who was extremely humane to all animals, no matter how humble, one day, at table, found a fly caught on her plate. She took it up tenderly with her thumb and finger and called her maid. "Marie," she said, "take this fly—be careful, don't hurt him"—and put him outdoors." The girl took the fly and went away, but presently Mlle. Brohan saw her standing near with a troubled expression on her face. "Well, Marie," she said, "did you do as I told you?" "No, mademoiselle, I have the fly still. I couldn't venture to put him outdoors—it was raining, and he might have taken cold!"

A FRIENDLY HINT.

"Why do you look at me like that?" she asked. "Is there anything the matter with my hair?"

"No, nothing is the matter. I don't believe I was thinking about your looks at all."

"How rude to tell me so! I suppose your thoughts were miles away. I don't suppose you were paying the slightest attention to what I was saying."

"To be perfectly frank with you, I was not, but you need not be vexed with me, because I was recalling something you said to me long ago."

"Something brilliant, no doubt."

He smiled. "It was such a characteristic speech," he said; "so exactly what I might have expected from you, that I have never forgotten it."

"Then you have been disobeying orders, for I told you positively that you were not to remember anything I said."

"It happened this way," he went on: "You had just come back from New York and had brought with you all manner of souvenirs—photographs and books and german favors, and I don't know what all beside, and one night you very kindly offered to show them to me. When I came to one picture, you blushed a little, and I asked: 'Is this the lucky fellow? Has the heart you have so jealously guarded found its master at last?' And you answered, with a shrug of your shoulders: 'Bah! that man—he loves me too well. He lets me see just how much I am to him. He would bore me to death in a week.'"

"Well," she cried, opening her eyes, "and is that all? Have you been treasuring up a foolish speech like that? Why, I have said ever so many cleverer things since."

"But none more characteristic!" he replied.

"Do you know," she said, "it is humiliating to reflect that after being as much with me as you have been you should know me so little. It argues that I am either very stupid or very reserved."

"I not know you!" he cried. "Why, I know you almost as well as myself. Do you suppose I could have studied you in all your moods as I have done for years without having gained some knowledge of your disposition?"

She laughed slightly. "And have you been studying me all this time? I hardly think I am worth it. Did you find me interesting?"

"Absorbingly so! And one thing that I have discovered about you will surprise you. People call you fickle, do they not?"

"Sometimes."

"Well, you have impressed me as being unusually consistent. I thought when first I knew you that you were the coldest girl I had ever known, and I think so still. You have never given me any reason to change my opinion."

"Cold!" she repeated. "I cold? That just shows how well you have analyzed me!"

"I am not the only one who thinks that," he said. "Look at those roses," pointing to a cluster of Brides in the vase at his elbow. "The man who sent those meant you to know that they were appropriate; that as they are white and cold and passionless, just so are you!"

"And do you know," she cried, "when I opened the box and saw them my first exclamation was one of disappointment—White roses! How vexing! Why not red ones? They at least mean something; they convey an idea. But these!" And I pushed them away."

"I heard yesterday," he said irrelevantly, "that you are going to be married. I wondered if it was true?"

"Who is it now?" she laughed. "The northern army officer or the South Carolina physician?"

"Is it true?" he asked.

"Do you suppose," she said, holding out a ringless hand, "that if I had so far forgotten my good resolutions as to promise to marry anybody I would not wear the badge of my servitude?"

"That is well put, 'the badge of your servitude.' No, I think until the fatal words are said over you that you will allow no man the pleasure of publishing his triumph abroad!"

"O wise young judge," she cried, "how I do honor thee!"

"Oh, it is all very well to laugh," he said. "It is an easy way to dispose of a subject, but you will never convince me that you have any feeling—nothing could!"—

"Would you like me to persuade you?" she said in her soft voice.

There was a moment's silence, then he turned from her roughly. "No; it is better that I should think of you as I do now, for I can be bitter against you, and that is a protection."

She looked up at him dazedly. Hitherto no suspicion of the truth had come to her, but it flashed over her all at once and with it a great rush of pity and regret.

"I am going now," he said rising. "If I staid, I would make a fool of myself, and it frets you to have people make fools of themselves, doesn't it? And yet they are not always to blame. You have a faculty for drawing them out, for leading a man on to reveal his tenderest and most sacred thoughts. Why do you do it? When it is all told, you are not apparently touched. What especial object have you in view?"

For a moment she hesitated, then a soft answer trembled on her lips, but her worldly wisdom came to her aid and reminded her that this was not the method to pursue; it would only mislead him and end in trouble. Better be misunderstood herself than prolong his suffering by ill advised kindness.

"What object have I?" she asked, throwing her head back against her cushions—"have I ever any object? I don't think I have. If men will tell me their private affairs, I am sure I am not to blame. I often wish they wouldn't—I certainly would be spared much boredom. Now, what I have always liked about you is your indifference. You are so delightfully unemotional, so free from the troublesome sentiment that makes other men uninteresting. Dear Geoff"—she rose from her chair and laid her hand lightly on his sleeve—"if I thought you would ever get like the rest, so stupidly personal and all that, I should be perfectly wretched; for, after all, there is nothing like a friend who is nothing but a friend, is there? I don't think you can know what a comfort you have always been to me."

He turned very pale, but after a moment's fierce contest with himself bent his head down to hers.

"Have I been a comfort to you?" he said gently. "Then may I never disappoint you."

He clasped her hand firmly in his and with a murmured good night was gone.

A few minutes later her brother came in, to find her brooding over the fire.

"What in the world is the matter?" he cried. "Has anything uncomfortable happened? I thought only Geoff was here."

"Anything uncomfortable? Of course not. Yes; it was only Geoff. Shall we be getting up stairs?"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A TOO MODEST WOMAN!

Is such a thing possible?

It is.

Many a woman suffers month after month, whole years, because she shrinks from talking about her complaints.

Foolish do you say?

No, it is simply due to a natural, commendable modesty. Still she owes it to herself either to consult a good Physician or else to get the Zoa-Phora Medical Book on Diseases of Women and Children, and, after satisfying herself that Zoa-Phora is what she needs, obtain a bottle or a box of it and use it faithfully. Both the book and medicine may be obtained either direct from the Zoa-Phora Medicine Co., at Kalamazoo, Mich. or through your druggist. All correspondence is kept strictly confidential.

DRESS REFORM.

Essay Read by Loana M. Davidson at the Farmers' Union Picnic, June 21, 1895.

This is an age of rapid progress. Never in all the history of the human race has the ingenuity of mankind, in the form of inventions and all kinds of science, made such great advancement as at the present time. Were you able to put forth your hand, push back the veil and peer through the Stygian blackness of the mysterious future, your eyes would behold still greater changes and advancement. Could you step from the present time across a space of twenty-five years into the year of 1920, it would be like leaving the old world and entering a new one.

We live in a land of liberty and freedom, a land where woman has been liberated from her shackles and is allowed to think and act for herself. She is no longer considered inferior to man and simply a servant or slave, but in every respect man's equal. It is no longer a disgrace for a woman to have a good education, but they are freely admitted to our colleges and higher institutions of learning, and thus equipped for life's work we find them actively engaged in nearly all the occupations that are entered by man. Parents are beginning to see the wisdom of giving their girls, as well as their boys, a liberal education, so that, if circumstances demand it, they can fall back on their own resources and be able to take care of themselves, and not, as a last resort, marry some poor stick of a man and finally be obliged to take in washing to support the family.

Since woman's sphere has become so enlarged and she is filling so many positions that were not open to her a quarter of a century ago, she finds it necessary, as well as does her brother co-workers, to find some cheap and speedy means of getting to and from her work. Man's inventive genius has solved this knotty problem of locomotion, not only on the streets of our towns and cities, but on our country roads, in the shape of a bicycle. But woman finds herself hampered and hindered in the freedom of locomotion by her long, heavy skirts. Hence, in order to avail herself of the convenience of the bicycle, the common sense woman of today finds an imperative demand for a radical change in woman's dress.

The necessity for such a change having been established, the next thing is what shall it be; the Assyrian costume, which was so popular at Chicago during the Columbian Exposition; the Greek drapery, so highly lauded by Mary Stowe and Mrs. Flower; or, will it be the divided skirt, which combines all the essentials of a perfect dress. There are arguments in favor of all. However, let us consider a few of the advantages that any one of these costumes would bring to woman-kind. What a boon it would be to the women in factories, schools, offices and shops to be free from the weight of a long, heavy skirt! Especially is this true in stormy weather, when the skirts become damp and we have to sit at our work a half a day at a time with damp skirts, thus endangering our health and perhaps our lives. Such a costume would prevent many severe and painful accidents occasioned by the dress skirt becoming entangled in the wheel. Then they are much cheaper and more cleanly, for they do not sweep the streets and thus become worn and frayed, besides picking up all the filth and dirt, and oftimes germs of disease, from the streets. The Assyrian costume affords a superior amount of warmth for the same amount of weight, over the open skirt of the same length; the Grecian robe is more appropriate for a house dress. So it seems that only the divided skirt can assume all requirements.

Of course modern prudery will prejudice popular sentiment against this new departure in dress. A class of gentlemen, of undoubtedly benevolent intentions, have taken upon themselves the onerous task of deciding, somewhat dogmatically, what the feminine half of the human race ought to be, to do, to think, to want and to wear; no shadow of doubt as to their fitness for this self-appointed mission appears ever to have flitted across their minds, and it seems almost too bad to have to criticize when they evidently mean so well; but it is ever our duty to be cruel to fiction, if thereby we may be more kind to truth. They apparently imagine that the world began with male man living scrupulously within "one sphere" and with female man living rigidly within "another sphere," each having different tasks, habits and occupations and wearing different costumes. Their amazing misconception of the actual habits of the male and female of the human race is displayed in the following sentence of a paper read before an anti-bicycle club in a New England town: "Woman has made her way into the smoking room and mounted the bicycle. She has begun to adopt the male attire and nothing but her own taste will stop her. After all, nature has made two sexes." Now these learned "Thebees" really believe that nature gave to man a taste for tobacco not shared by woman, and that bicycle riding in the streets is a peculiarly unfeminine action, and that nature bestowed upon man the ability to create for himself a peculiarly "male attire" to which woman has no title. While it would of course be pleasing to feminine vanity to believe that the feminine half of the race never possessed the weakness of smoking and that the occasional woman to whom they referred as having "made her way to the smoking room" is a new and extraordinary departure in the female part of the human race, truth utterly refuses to allow us to lay this flattering unction to our feminine souls. We may admit, possibly, that woman shows superior sense in having in some countries left off smoking, but it will never do to say "she has made her way into the smoking room, and mounted the bicycle, as if the two were equally innovating, equally modern and peculiarly unfeminine customs. As a matter of fact, originally there was not a particle of difference between man's love for tobacco and woman's enjoyment of that enticing weed. Then, as to mounting the bicycle, this is the tamest of tame procedure, as compared with the well known thousand of years old feminine custom of riding in the most public and crowded city streets astride a donkey or a camel, and it was womanly because woman did it. Since this is the case, why should these modern gentlemen object to a woman mounting a wheel when she does not happen to possess a donkey or a camel.

But in regard to "male attire," I doubt if there is any subject regarding which so much popular ignorance prevails and about which so much nonsense is talked. To hear the average person orate, one would suppose that nature created male man fully clothed in a bifurcated, and gave him an indisputable patent which claim is good for all eternity, secure against infringement by the other sex. It is a pity to have to shatter an illusion so dear to millions of men. The truth is, man did not invent, nor did he first wear the bifurcated garment which is variously designated as "trousers," "breeches," or "pantaloons." The fact is "trousers" were a purely feminine invention created by woman for her own special use, and man was actually reproached when he first began to adopt trousers for his attire. We are indebted to the historian for alluding to this garment 450 years B. C. as being the common dress of the beautiful oriental woman, and this same fashion abides today in Morocco, Algiers and Tunis. Since it is established that the bifurcated garment was a feminine invention for female attire, woman, in returning to the divided skirt, or oriental trousers, will merely return to a perfectly womanly, eminently sensible fashion of her own original creation. For thousands of years man wore skirts; scanty skirts, full skirts, plaited skirts, or short skirts. Man has worn single gowns, double gowns, gowns trailing in the dust in true street sweeper fashion, without a thought of impropriety in such imitation of female attire, and woman has never interfered with this sincerest form of flattery as far as has been discovered. Down to the fourteenth century there was almost no distinction between the dress of an English man and woman of rank, save that when riding to battle men wore short skirts instead of long. Englishman's first bifurcated garment appeared about the twelfth century, but undoubtedly man's ultimate rejection of the gown and the adoption of the effeminate oriental trousers was due to a fitness of the costume.

Will the movement fail as did the bloomer in the early sixties? We think not, for the same conditions do not exist at present that made the bloomers unpopular. Already women throughout christendom are returning to this bifurcated feminine costumes for bathing, gymnastics and bicycle riding. Imagine what a blessing such a costume would be to the 500,000 women who toil as agricultural laborers in the United States, or the 3,000,000 who travel daily through dust or storm to the task of earning their own livelihood in shops and factories, or to the smillions of housewives who now work in and about their dwellings pampered and senselessly encumbered with long and heavy skirts.

Courage to adopt what reason demonstrates to be the best attire for any occasion requires an independence of intellect to which the world as a whole has never yet fully attained. The beauty of the American woman depends on three things,—physical culture, careful diet and correct dress. These, added to her already acknowledged intellectual ability, will give her a preeminence in the world equalled by none.

OUR CORRESPONDENT ON A BYKE

NEAR WATERLOO, July 18, '95.

DEAR MR. EDITOR:—I concluded my last letter at St. Germain where we got our first glimpse of Paris. From there we rode through suburban towns, noisy and as busy as a city, to the gate of Paris. The fortifications are sodisguised at this point, that one sees only an iron gate wide and hospitably opened. We rode in without having our tires examined by the officers to see if they contained wine. That is the latest mode of smuggling wine into Paris and several have been detected. At once we saw the Arch of Triumph in the distance and so immense is it, that we were greatly deceived regarding the distance to it. Harry's red cap and our general saddle-sore and weary appearance, as well as the extreme height of our wheels, at once got the attention of the crowd. Even Paris stopped in the midst of her mad riot and paid the homage of curiosity to those long, lank American globe-trotters. We passed the Arch of Triumph, glided among the myriad cabs in the Champs Elysees, and reached the gardens of the Tuileries. Here we swerved aside and passed the Louvre, the Pont Neuf, and reached our hotel, St Pierre, where we were glad to get four brick walls about us and recover from the vertigo which Paris had given us. I don't wish to annoy you with the oft told tale of seeing Paris but there may be interest in knowing the rapidity of an American bicyclist in "doing" Paris. On the first morning, there was rain and we went to the Louvre where we wandered through endless galleries of painting, sculpture, antiquities, and curiosities. We saw the Venus de Milo, but her great age prevented the ecstasies of admiration due so famous a beauty. Had she been younger—well I can't speak for Harry. The sphinxes stared at us with the same fixed and stolid features which they had preserved for ages. We could astonish Paris but if the sphinxes were moved they did not show it. Among the paintings, we found difficulty in going into spasms just at the correct and conventional time. Great masters wearied us while lesser lights won sympathy. Rubens, Murillo, and Raphael, however, were masters of our feelings and we graciously granted them unstinted praise. By noon, we had traversed nearly every gallery of the Louvre and we left it to tramp for a while amidst the wonders of Paris, the Bourse or Chamber of Commerce, where we arrived at the busiest hour and watched the writhing, gesticulating, shouting and apparently mad Frenchmen buying and selling stock. It was a Babylon, Bedlam, and purgatory loosed. Chicago and New York chambers of commerce are mere sheepfolds with this. Here again, we also attracted attention and we modestly withdrew. We strolled on toward the opera house, and made several ineffectual attempts to deposit mail in fire alarm boxes. The system of mailing letters in Paris is a mystery yet.

There are some phases of Parisian life peculiar, to say the least. There are four places in Paris where you can get a drink of water and 400,000 where you can get wine. Bananas cannot be bought in Paris. You can drop a nickle in a slot and get a cup of hot chocolate. If you sit down beneath the Eifel tower an old lady comes around with a receipt for two sous and collects it, too. But our sight seeing. After the Opera, with its magnificence and grandeur of architecture, we went to the Madeleine, the edifice surrounded with monster Corinthian columns and with an interior which awes and overwhelms by its solemnity and the suggestive sacredness of every adornment. Pictures and descriptions of these places are so numerous that I pass them with haste. After visiting numerous smaller places of interest, we returned to our hotel, and on the following day rode out to St. Cloud, Sevres and Versailles. At the latter place we lingered some time in the magnificent gardens, where every artifice has been tried to make a prince happy. The Gallery of Battles, and the apartments of the queen next, and the Salle del' Oeil Boeuf, scene of famous intrigues. At noon, post haste back to Paris. A visit to the Trocadero, Eifel Tower, Champs de Mars, and an hour in the Luxembourg art gallery. Sunday was the French national fete day, celebrated much like our 4th of July, and because it happened on Sunday was celebrated with so much more vigor. Early we visited the Place de la Bastile, finding that and all the streets extravagantly decorated with the tricolor. Then to the Pere Lachaise cemetery where so many world-famous men are buried, and from here we rode our wheels through an intricate throng of cabs, hacks and trucks to the Arch of Triumph. Unless one is as much at home awheel as on foot, one can not venture on Parisian boulevards or narrow streets on a bicycle. The hackmen delight in shouting and attempting to confuse a wheelman. We saw a cavalry parade and the President of France in his carriage followed by numerous other men of note. Every park was occupied by venders of useless toys and by fake shows of infinite variety. But the evening. Then Paris celebrated and we went afoot, both in the swell quarters and the slums. Bacchus ruled supreme; everyone was drunk or verging upon it. Gangs of students from the Latin quarter, with girls, paraded the street. The girls threw one arm about their fellow's neck and made drunken gyrations with the other. Hacks and cabs rolled by with shrieking companies of girls and men. The trees in parks were thickly hung with red chinese lanterns, which threw a fiendish glow over these riotous proceedings. Beneath the trees danced soldier boys with drunken girls. Old men passed us with their girlish captors whom they ogled and smirked at hideously. One girl, dressed in bloomers with pockets in them, swaggered insolently down a main boulevard shouting and singing, while her hands were plunged in her pockets.

To us this was all a feverish dream, a phantasma, and wearied at last we retired and on the following morning, after seeing the tomb of Napoleon, we left Paris to recover from its debauchery and rode out into the quiet and peaceful country toward Brussels.

THE THIRD MATINEE.

The third matinee, held last Saturday, was unquestionably the most successful one held here this season, or any other season, for that matter. The weather was delightful, and the prizes offered and the several specialties advertised brought out a large number of entries and a large concourse of spectators. The popularity of this day's sport may be testified from the fact that the aggregation of complimentary fence viewers was almost as great as on bicycle day. Everything passed off smoothly and satisfactorily. Ezra Simmons ran into a sulky and was thrown off; then he was run into and thrown again; both times uninjured. His horse got away and finally sized up the surroundings and, concluding that the stables were the most attractive feature of the grounds, made haste to get there.

The novelty race and foot race were the features outside of the horseracing. Banker Rothchilds did not take part, as advertised, being lame from a strained tendon. Hambletonian Star went an exhibition half in 1:16 1-5. Star is 21 years old and can still set a pace for many of his sons and grandsons. Wellington, driven by F. D. Teachout, won the third named race in three straight heats. The horse is not yet three and is a very promising colt, owned by Smead Bros., of Blissfield. The summaries are given below.

PIONEERS OF OLD LENAWEE.

Joint Meeting of the Lenawee County and Fairfield Societies in Baker's Grove at Fairfield.

The local pioneer societies of the townships of Fairfield, Madison, Palmyra and Ogden held their regular annual session in Rufus Baker's grove on Friday of last week, Aug. 9th. Although the weather was rather torrid it proved to be a fine day for an outdoor gathering, and a larger crowd than ever before participated in the meeting. The County Pioneer Society accepted an invitation to meet with the local society and a fine program, embracing both forenoon and afternoon was the result.

As early as ten o'clock the capacious grove was filled with teams and visitors and shortly after that hour President Quick of the local society called the assemblage to order, and announced the forenoon's program. After music by the Adrian city band and reading of the minutes by the secretary, Mrs. Bessie J. Strong, prayer was offered by Lewis Wilcox, and vocal music followed by the Fairfield choir.

Hon. Geo. B. Horton then gave the address of welcome, which was a brief but most appropriate welcome to the vast audience present and especially to the old pioneers in attendance. Rev. Geo. Humphrey responded in an equally appropriate address, and then Frank Harvey of the Adrian band gave a fine tenor solo.

The memorial committee, consisting of one from each township, next presented their report as follows:

N. J. Strong, for Madison, said the mortuary list for the past year was brief, having only three deaths to record, Mrs. Thomas F. Moore, who came to Michigan in 1840; her daughter, Mrs. Warren Beal, who died January 3, '95, and William Schaeffer.

Palmyra was represented by Minor T. Cole, who reported the deaths as follows: Mrs. Maria M. Smith, aged 72; Mr. Wm. M. Graves, aged 72; Mrs. Nancy Harvey, aged 85; Mrs. Electa M. Southwick, aged 47; Mr. Nathaniel Gleason, aged 81; Mrs. Electa Plunket, aged 73, Mr. Jesse Rogers, Mrs. Mattie Mitchell, Miss Eunice Welch and Jacob Purdy, aged 47.

G. P. Robertson, of Ogden, said there had been only one death in his township, Mrs. Hannah French, aged 90.

The mortuary record as given by J. H. Cole was larger than usual, 17 deaths being recorded, and of this number it was found that 1 was born in England, 3 in Ireland, 1 in Vermont, 1 in Michigan, 6 in New York, 1 in Connecticut, 1 in Maryland, 1 in Scotland and two in Ohio, and one in regard to whom he was unable to get any statistics. The average age was 77 years, and the names and ages are as follows: Hannah Ray, aged, 95; Job Scott, 89; Wm. Upton, 90; Alice Maynard, 46; Josiah Quick, 84; John M. Goodale, 68; Hannah Hurlbut, 78; Ezra Cole, 87; Abram Carpenter, 85; Porter Negus, 94; Jane Nelson, 80; Adelia Smith, 91; Henry King, 75; Sam'l P. Knapp, 84; Louisa Barnes, 74; her daughter, Frank Barnes aged 52; Catherine Wilbur, 70, and James Smith.

Lewis Smith then gave a recitation, "How I did My Courtin," which was greeted with hearty applause.

The nominating committees were then appointed as follows:

For the township organization—C. R. Porter, Madison; G. B. Horton, Fairfield; B. W. Tetter, Palmyra; G. P. Robertson, Ogden.

For the county organization—Rufus Baker, Fairfield; G. B. Horton, Fairfield, and J. L. Knapp, city.

After music by the band, a recess was announced for dinner, and the way the provisions vanished during the next hour was a caution. The big crowd however was well supplied and the fragments gathered at the close of the feast would have filled many baskets.

The afternoon program was begun with music by the city band, followed by the reports of the nominating committees.

The following persons were named as officers for the ensuing year for the Fairfield society

President—Rufus Baker, Fairfield.
Secretary,—Mrs. Bessie Strong, Fairfield.
Vice Presidents.—M. T. Cole, Palmyra, J. W. Woolsey, Madison, John Cole, Fairfield, B. L. Hicks, Ogden.

President—Norman Geddes, city.
Secretary—S. C. Stacy, Tecumseh.
Ass't Sec'y—J. H. Cole, Fairfield.
Treasurer—J. L. Knapp, city.
Executive Com—C. H. Dewey, Cambridge; J. C. Porter, Seneca; Dr. Geo. Hovell, Tecumseh.

The regular program of the afternoon was then introduced with an ocarina quartette from the Adrian City band, followed by a recitation from Miss Knowles.

Rev. Jacob Baker then gave a fine address, presenting a brief historical sketch of the four townships, which was replete with reminiscences of the old settlers.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Johnson gave a duet, "Mrs. Mulligan's Pie," which was heartily applauded.

Hon. T. F. Moore, President of the County Society, then assumed charge of the meeting and after a song by the Weston Quartette, he favored the gathering with one of his characteristic addresses relating some of the early history of the society. He stated a fact which we think was new to most of his hearers, that John J. Adam, of Tecumseh, was a class-mate of Wm. E. Gladstone at the university of Edinburg, Scotland, and out of a class of 400 they took the price for scholarship, Gladstone standing first and Adam second. The speaker then referred to the position Lenawee county and Michigan held in the war, the county sending 4,000 out of 92,000.

B. P. Thomas sang a song, which drew an encore, and Miss Mable Graves gave a recitation, 'The Debating School' which turned the entire audience topsy turvey.

President Quick then read a paper on the early clergy of Lenawee County, which had been carefully prepared and contained much matter of historical value.

The Darius Cross Martial band gave a rattling selection with drum and fife, which tore the audience all to pieces. They had to repeat the music about five times before the crowd would release them. Mr. Cross is now 81 years old. A quartette from the City Band closed the formal exercises of the day.

The crowd present was estimated by good judges at 5000 or upwards, and some called it 7000. At all events it was the largest gathering and the best meeting ever yet held by the Fairfield Society.

ONE MAN'S SUFFERING.

The Trials and Tribulations of a Battle Creek Citizen—How He Comes to Tell This Story.

(From the Battle Creek Moon.)

Among the moulders at the works of the Michigan foundry company can be found Mr. Amos Maynard; he has lived in Battle Creek for over ten years, is honored and respected by all who know him; such is the man who makes this statement, he says: "I have had kidney trouble for years, and it has made my life miserable. The heavy lifting, necessary in my business, made me worse. I have been compelled to lie in bed in a helpless condition for as long as nine days at a time; the greatest pain was from my back, which sometimes felt as though a bayonet was being run through me in the region of my kidneys; many citizens of Battle Creek knew how bad I was. I could not move without the greatest caution, for as soon as I attempted to stoop over, bend to one side, or even turn in bed, the pain was simply unbearable. I wore porous plasters constantly for the little temporary relief they brought me. Whenever I caught the slightest cold it went straight to my kidneys and made me worse. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and got some. I have taken in all four boxes of them, and I now feel as active as ever. A few months ago I would have ridiculed the idea of being cured so quickly, and being able to work as I can now. All the long-standing pains are gone, and the former traces of kidney disorders found in my urine have disappeared. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many friends who were troubled as I was, and in every case I have learned they proved as beneficial as with me. Doan's Kidney Pills would be cheap to me at almost any price."

For sale by all dealers, price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

"M. Quad." the Famous Humorist, Takes his Old Place on The Free Press.

We find great pleasure in announcing to our readers that Chas. B. Lewis, the famous "M. Quad." has resumed his former place upon The Detroit Free Press. Since his retirement from The Free Press four years ago Mr. Lewis has been writing for one of the leading syndicates. His preference for direct newspaper work, however, led him to abandon that connection, and hereafter his popular writings will appear only in The Free Press. Mr. and Mrs. Bowser, Brother Gardner, Arizona Kicker, Zeb White, Abe Crofoot, Mrs. Gallup, and many new characters will appear regularly.

The publishers are making a special four months' trial offer of the Semi-Weekly Free Press for 25 cents to introduce their paper to new readers, and we would advise those looking for a great bargain to send in their subscription at once. The offer is good only until August 1.

Nervous Prostration

Complete Recovery by the Use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"Some years ago, as a result of too close attention to business, my health failed. I became weak, nervous, was unable to look after my interests, and manifested all the symptoms of a decline. I took three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to improve at once, and gradually increased my weight from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred pounds. Since then, I and my family have used this medicine when needed, and we are all in the best of health, a fact which we attribute to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I believe my children would have been fatherless to-day had it not been for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, of which preparation I cannot say too much."—H. O. Hixson, Postmaster and Planter, Kinard's, S. C.

We would like to look into the pleasant face of some one who has never had any derangement of the digestive organs. We see the drawn and unhappy faces of dyspeptics in every walk of life. It is our national disease, and nearly all complaints spring from this source. Remove the stomach difficulty and the work is done. Dyspeptics and pale thin people are literally starving, because they don't digest their food. Consumption never develops in people of robust and normal digestion. Correct the wasting and loss of flesh and we cure the disease. Do this with food. The Shaker Digestive Cordial contains already digested food and is a digester of food at the same time. Its effects are felt at once. Get a pamphlet of your druggist and learn about it.

SNATCHED FROM THE GRAVE—A Warning From the Living.

Emissions Cured. "At 15 I learned a bad habit. Had losses for seven years. Tried four doctors and nerve tonics by the score, without benefit; I became a nervous wreck. A friend who had been cured by Drs. Kennedy & Kergan of a similar disease, advised me to try them. I did so, and in two months was positively cured. This was eight years ago. I am now married and have two healthy children." C. W. LEWIS, Saginaw, Mich.

Varicocele Cured. "Varicocele, the result of early vice, made life miserable. I was weak and nervous, eyes sunken, bashful in society, hair thin, dreams and losses at night, no ambition. The "Golden Monitor" opened my eyes. The New Method Treatment of Drs. Kennedy & Kergan cured me in a few weeks." I. L. PETERSON, Ionia, Mich.

Syphilis Cured. "This terrible blood disease was in my system for eight years. Had taken mercury for two years, but the disease returned. Eyes red, pimples and blotches on the skin, ulcers in the mouth and on tongue, bone pains, falling out of hair, weakness, etc. My brother, who had been cured of Gleet and Stricture by Drs. Kennedy & Kergan, recommended them. They cured me in a few weeks, and I thank God I consulted them. No return of the disease in six years." W. P. M., Jackson, Mich.

A Minister Recommends. The Rev. W. E. Sparks, of Detroit, says: "I know of no disease so injurious to the mind, body and soul of young men as that of Self Abuse. I have sent many victims of this lustful habit to Drs. Kennedy & Kergan for treatment. I can heartily endorse their New Method Treatment which cured them when all else failed."

A Doctor Recommends. "I know nothing in medical science so efficient for the cure of Syphilis and Sexual Diseases as the New Method Treatment of Drs. Kennedy & Kergan. Many cases which had baffled scores of physicians were cured in a few weeks. I have seen this with my own eyes and know it to be a fact." T. E. ALLISON, M. D.

BIG PROFITS ON Small Investments

Returning prosperity will make many rich, but nowhere can they make so much within a short time as by successful Speculation in Grain, Provisions and Stock.

$10.00 FOR EACH DOLLAR INVESTED can be made by our Systematic Plan of Speculation.

originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system.

It is a well known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by systematic trading through Chicago brokers make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to $50,000 to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand.

It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading.

Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time.

WRITE FOR CONVINCING PROOFS, also our Manual on successful speculation and our Daily Market Report, full of money-making pointers. ALL FREE. Our Manual explains margin trading fully. Highest references in regard to our standing and success.

THE KIDS' BICYCLE DAY.

Wednesday was a great day among the kids of Tecumseh—it was bicycle day for them, and to say it was a howling success, would be stating it mildly. The meet was gotten up and carried out to a successful completion by boys under 15 years of age, and everything went off without a hitch or an accident. In the forenoon occurred the road race of two miles, open to boys of 15 years or under and the time made shows that there are a number of fast kids in Tecumseh. Following are the winners and time made in the road race:

Harry Rosacrans 1st, 6:44; Floyd Williamson 2nd, 6:52; Lavern Smith scr. 3d, 6:00; Levi Owens 4th, 7:31; Harry Pattison scr. 5th, 6:24; Jesse Lee 6th, 7:06; Lavern Pattison 7th, 8:48; Wade Jones (age 10) 8th, 9:00.

The races at the track in the afternoon were all good, and especially so the mile handicap, it being as pretty a race as one could see among professionals, if the time made was not so fast. At the track Bert Garlinghouse and Philip Keusch acted as judges, Bert Garlinghouse and Fay Anderson, timers; W. B Olion, scorer; Ralph Bidwell, starter and Fay Anderson, announcer. Following are the events and winners:

Half-Mile Dash—Harry Rosacrans, 1st Floyd Williamson, 2nd; Levi Owens, 3rd. Time, 1:32.

One Mile, 2-in-3—First heat—Floyd Williamson, 1st; Lavern Pattison, 2nd; Levi Owens, 3rd. Time, 3:38. Second heat—same winners. Time, 4:07.

One Mile Handicap—Wade Jones, (age 10) 1 min., 1st; Lavern Smith, scr., 2nd; Lavern Pattison, 40 sec., 3rd; Harry Rosacrans 20 sec., 4th. Time, Jones, 3:46, Smith 2:46 1-2.

Fay Anderson rode an exhibition one-fourth mile in 37 seconds.

Lavern Smith and Harry Pattison gave a very pretty half-mile race in 1:26.

One-Fourth Mile Dash—Harry Rosacrans, 1st; Floyd Williamson, 2nd; Lavern Pattison, 3rd. Time, 41 seconds.

Attendance about 200. The kids had a surplus after paying all expenses and are thinking of making Kid's Day an annual feature of Tecumseh hereafter.

Tecumseh High School.

The summer vacation of the public schools is nearing its close; two weeks from next Monday, Sept. 2, the fall term of the Tecumseh Union School, as well as most other public schools, will begin. While many of the resident pupils in the various school districts are making preparations to resume their studies at home, there are others who have completed the courses there and are looking for some higher institution of learning in which to complete their studies. We therefore beg leave to call attention to the Tecumseh High School as one of the most desirable in this part of the state, that young men and young women can find to attend. As we look over the large list of graduates and the still larger one of those who have studied here, and see the positions of honor and trust now filled by so many of them, we feel that we can speak with pardonable pride, not only of the excellent work that has been done, but that is being done here.

The three courses of study, Latin, Scientific and English, lead to corresponding courses in the State University and various colleges, and a diploma from the High School admits the holder to any of them without examination. Those who are not able to take a full course of study, or do not desire to do so are permitted to select such studies as they can pursue to advantage and thus get the greatest good for the time spent here. The schools are well equipped with apparatus and a reference library, and with a good corps of competent teachers. We do not believe any better opportunities are anywhere offered to do high school or preparatory work for college than in the schools of the attractive village of Tecumseh.

The indications now point to an increased attendance of foreign pupils at the beginning of the next school year.

A telephone was recently installed between Berlin and Potsdam by trotting cavalry. The distance is about twenty miles and the work occupied four hours.

THE COLLEGE BOYS.

They Listen to an Address From John G. Woolley About Christian Politics.

I count on securing your approval at the onset by announcing that I have no baccalaureate reflections to dispose of, no advise, compliment or apostrophe to education. I have been to college and consider it almost indispensable to one who would get on about as well without going, but almost worthless to one who could not get along without it. So not as college men, but as men I greet and congratulate you, and if I do not mistake the motive of the meeting you want me to speak to this splendid company of your guests rather than to yourselves exclusively. And so I am going to talk to you about Christian politics.

Not party politics. Perhaps it will put some of you at ease if I promise at the outset not touch that. It makes some people nervous, and tonight I want you to be calm. I aspire to make you think, and no man thinks about his party. That is a state of the blood or matter of almost pure feeling, heredity or natural selection—nobody knows exactly what—but at all events one no more thinks his way into or out of a party than a tadpole thinks itself into a frog pond.

We hear sometimes of men who are better than their party, but such statements can only be justified by poetic license—which perhaps is the least obnoxious form of license—for politically no man is either better or worse than the party feather he flocks withal, and the platform is the official analysis of the essential and composite virtue of the party. Whatever is not there is not in the mixture, or is so delicately gaseous as to evade the manipulations of political chemistry.

Upon this basis if you examine the Democratic platform you will find that there is nothing in it for us, and that the Republican party carries a hypodermic syringe with which to fight the gatling gun of the saloon.

A Christian man may—indeed is apt to—think in his heart that he is better than his party. This is not vanity, but absent mindedness as to his sublunary condition. But as a matter of fact, as a man thinketh into a ballot box so is he politically.

Any given party is the best thing that can be made of the component materials at the time. If it ever improves, it will require better stuff. You cannot make a whistle out of a pig's tail. In point of fact parties do not improve, but die of childbirth like an egg. The practical politician can rebuild the shell perhaps, but he cannot breathe into it the breath of life. He has not that kind of breath.

One of the sad, sure, solemn facts of human existence is that every free agent is, almost without exception, where he belongs—morally, socially and politically. The worst thing about the drunkard is not that he is in the gutter, but that he belongs there. The gutter, like congress, is sole judge of the eligibility of its members. The worst thing about the roue in fashionable circles is not that he is there, but that, according to the average social ethics, he belongs there. The worst thing about a thief in the city council is not that he is there, but that he represents the voting strength of the public estimate of larceny and belongs there. The worst thing about the saloon keepers in the Republican party is not that they are in it, but that they belong in it.

The Southern member who propounded the grave inquiry, "Where am I at?" illustrated a profound philosphy—for indeed there is the question as to a member of congress or a Christian voter, not history or his feelings, but "Where is he at?"

The worst of the 250,000 saloons is not that they are, but that our voting Christianity is of such a sort as not only to tolerate, but to declare them politically right at so much a head per annum.

So a man is in the Republican party because he is a Republican, or he is in the Democratic party because he is a Democrat, or in the Prohibition party because he is a prohibitionist. There is no thought about it. No man by thinking can find out whether he is a Republican or Democrat. It is nonsense for a Democrat to call himself a Republican, or a Republican to call himself a Prohibitionist, or for a Prohibitionist to call himself something else. We do not choose our parties. They choose us on the distinct basis of fitness for their purposes, and the need of the hour is not first of all a better party, but an accelerated individual Christian conscience of sufficiently bony structure to articulate into something like a workable.

The party question will adjust itself, for when the principles a man stands by get to be better than his party he is turned out nolens, volens, by the automatic compulsion of truth, manumitted then and there by the inherent and irrepressible veracity of things, liberated on the spot by the truth which makes men free. But to our principles we come by thinking, and in that view I venture to speak of Christian politics, mainly for the reason that there isn't such a thing, but there ought to be. To say there is no such a thing is inaccurate, but there is not enough of it.

FIVE DAYS AT CAMP DEVLIN.

The Daily Routine of Camp Life and Special Incidents of the Annual Outing.

Co. C left for the annual encampment at Island Lake, Tuesday, Aug. 6, via the L. S. & M. S. Ry to Dundee, thence over the T. & A. to Howell Junction, going from there on the D. L. & N. This year a new system was introduced. The baggage was not sent ahead with cooks and quartermaster to prepare the quarters and dinner for the tired troops, but the boys were made to go in more after the custom of the regulars and "pitch" camp upon arrival. The tents were put up however, but the baggage had to be hustled over, the cook's shanty arranged, the quarters settled and supper prepared after arriving, and all done in a heavy rainstorm; but what difference to a soldier. Rain or shine, cold or hot, he takes his work or his pleasure without murmur.

The rain was slightly moist for pitching camp, but it added much toward making this camp the pleasantest ever held by the Michigan brigade. It saved the camp from being hot, dry and dusty, and this was what Co. C most feared—Co. C can stand anything but hot, dry and dusty weather.

Upon arriving at quarters the arms were quickly stacked, the baggage hustled in and a good, warm supper was served in due season. The first and last night a detail for guard duty was pulled from each company. The intervening time each company did guard duty for the regiment by itself, the tour of duty being twelve hours. The guard discipline this year was very thorough and effective, the company on guard each day being thoroughly inspected by Gen. Walsh and Capt. Vernou. The first place in efficiency was accorded to Co. — of the 5th. Co. C also received many compliments on its acquaintance with the details of this important duty of the soldier.

The work on the field was mostly confined to batallion drill. One forenoon our batallion, Major Howell commanding, indulged in extended order drill, moving across the field with firing line, support and reserve, finally charging on the enemy in the woods. This drill was highly complimented in the Detroit papers.

Sunday was, as usual, gives up to inspection, Governor's review and divine service. A memorial service in memory of Gens. Eaton and Devlin was also held. The inspection was in the company streets, the arms stacked, with the clothing and equipments displayed in the tents. The brigade was justly praised by Capt. Vernou who marked an increased steadiness and soldiery bearing in the men over last year.

Sunday night was the last night and the fact was regretted by nearly every member of the militia. That evening everything was packed except blankets and guns. The dishes were packed, the stoves crated, helmets, dresscoats and overcoats packed, and nothing was left to eat except sandwiches and nothing to drink except water. Everything was astir at 4 a. m. Monday and Co. C was the first company in the brigade to have its baggage at the depot. A Lake Shore car was awaiting which carried the boys home without change, making this the pleasantest return ever experienced by the company. On arrival the company was entertained at the Lilley House for dinner. The arms were taken to the armory, and the experience of Camp Devlin was a thing of the past.

NOTES.

Camp Devlin can justly be given the credit of being the most quiet and instructive camp ever held by the 1st brigade, and the citizens of this state may well be proud of its soldiery.

A detachment of the 19th was the guest of the Michigan brigade, and its officers and men did much to make the camp the success which it proved to be. They marched to and from the camp.

The Wheatland band was a feature of Camp Devlin.

Capt. Hayden was the guest of Co. C during the latter half of the camp. Several of our wheelmen came up Sunday.

The 4th and 1st were quartered side by side in camp, and the posts of their sentinels were somewhat near together. Col. Latimer, of the 4th invited an officer of the 19th and others to inspect one of his sentinels. The sentinel halted the party, advanced them, answered all questions relative to his duty and recited his general orders promptly and correctly, with much satisfaction to the officers. "What is your company?" said the officer. "C, of the 1st," said the sentinel.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

A ten pound girl came to gladden the hearts of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Henderson, last Sunday.

This morning Robt. Owen, who has been a sufferer from consumption for many months, died at his father's residence in the village. The date for the funeral has not yet been decided.

Chas. A. Ham, a Jackson dry goods merchant, and a former resident of Tecumseh, Wednesday closed his store, filing chattel mortgages for $5,720 in favor of creditors. Geo. W. Millen, of Detroit, has been appointed assignee, and will endeavor to realize 100 cents to the dollar indebtedness. Hard times caused the trouble. Mr. Ham has numerous friends in Tecumseh who will regret learning of his reverses.

Britton vs. Tecumseh.

Yesterday Britton and Tecumseh played off the tie for this season which resulted in an easy victory for the visitors. The game was good up to the fifth innigs when the score stood 3 to 2. The errors were few, but wild throwing and poor disposition of Tecumseh's players seemed to let that side go to pieces. Several very good plays were made on both sides. Following is the score:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R	H	E
Britton	0	2	0	0	6	3	0	3	9	23	27	5
Tecum'h	2	1	0	0	0	0	1	3	0	7	10	3

Batteries, Briggs and Lowe, Stinson and Gillen. Earned runs, Tecumseh 1, Britton 8. Two-base hits, Hause, Lee, Larrabee 2, Kelly, Easlick, Wheelan, Hicks, Kennedy. Home run, Kelly. Double plays, Spalding to Wheelan, DuBois unassisted, Kelly to DuBois, Kelly to Lee. Struck out by Stinson 4, by Briggs 5. Stolen bases, Britton 5, Tecumseh 3. Umpire, Sutfin. For want of time and space this report is limited to the above.

New York World—Thrice-a-Week.

The twice-a-week edition of the New York World has been converted into the Thrice-a-week. It furnishes 3 papers of 6 pages apiece, or eighteen pages every week, at the old price of one dollar a year. This gives 156 papers a year for one dollar and every paper has 6 pages eight columns wide or 48 columns in all. The Thrice-a-week World is not only much larger than any weekly or semi-weekly newspaper, but it furnishes the news with much greater frequency and promptness. In fact it combines all the crisp, fresh qualities of a daily with the attractive special features of a weekly. Club rates with the HERALD.

OBITUARY.

JULIA A. WARING.

Mrs. Julia A. Waring, wife of Albert Waring, died Aug. 7th. She was the daughter of George W. and Frances Sisson. Mrs. Waring requested that if any at all, a short obituary be written, making very little mention of her name. She left four sisters, Mrs. Eva Dougherty of Ypsilanti, Mrs. Frances Eckert of Tecumseh, Misses May and Mabel Sisson of Detroit, and one brother, Edward Sisson. They were all present at the funeral. Mrs. Waring showed remarkable courage, struggling with her severe affliction for fourteen years, more than half of which time she was confined to her home. In spite of all that medical skill could do the fatal hour came. She had a host of friends, who sympathized with her during her illness, and who formed a large procession following her remains to their resting place in the beautiful cemetery of Tecumseh.

The Adrian Times had better stop poking fun at our lawyers, which it did the other day in this language: "W. C. Burridge's horse ran away at Tecumseh the other day, wrecked the buggy and leveled a couple of rods of fence. The copy for a brief which Mr. Burridge accidently dropped in front of the equine was responsible for the disaster."

Adrian cut quite a figure last week in the bicycle prize-contest conducted by the Chicago Times-Herald. Miss Julia J. Brown and Miss Isabel Larwill each took awards of $5, while Miss Aggie Jewell and Mr. M. P. Brown were given awards of $2, in the consolation class. Miss Jewell is an ingenious and untiring competitor, having once or twice before won honorable mention in this connection.—Adrian Times.

The barns on the farm of John Seymour, near Hudson, were struck by lightning and burned to the ground Sunday. Loss 15,000. Mr. Seymour will commence suit for damages against the city for not turning in an alarm and trying to save his property. He says members of both fire departments were present and just sat on the fence and laughed at him when he asked their assistance.—Adrian Times.

Our neighbor of the Petersburgh Sun is hungry and this is the way he feels: During these days as the market gardener's wagon rolls into town and the driver ladens the breeze with cries of his products, we are pleased to note fine varieties of fruits, vegetables, etc., and the ownership of cash quickly changes hands therefor. Did we say pleased to note? No; 'tis with a long felt want, a tired feeling at the gizzard, an insurmountable depression and sympathetic affection of the pocket. D'ye think we can live on potatoes at $1.25 per bushel, with beefsteak smothered in onions, and cheese, melons, confections, to the end of the menu?" The printer simply isn't in it and, what is worse, they are not in the printer, nor is the price, nor anything but delinquent promises from last fall's crops.

It first appeared serially in McClure's Magazine, and is now published in a handsomely printed cloth-bound volume, with 250 illustrations. The book is having an enormous sale at $1.00 per copy. Public Opinion, (New York City) is actually giving away this fine volume to new subscribers. Write for particulars.

The following dispatch from Lansing last Monday indicates that the Mackinaw road will build its extension from Addison to Jackson at an early day: "The Jackson & Cincinnati railroad, which will build a line from Jackson, Mich., to Addison Junction, Lenawee county, filed articles of association here today. The road will connect Jackson with the Cincinnati, Jackson & Mackinaw road, forming a straight line to Cincinnati. The new company has an authorized capital of $160,000."

The members of the Lenawee county G. A. R. association held their 6th annual reunion at Lawrence park, Adrian, last Tuesday. The meeting was a success in every way. Commander Stearns of Woodbury post, was unavoidably absent and, in consequence, President J. H. Reynolds welcomed the guests in well chosen words. Hon. J. D. Shull, of Tecumseh, responded with much enthusiasm, as is his wont when reviewing the deeds of his comrades. Col. Deyo was the orator of the day, and in his speech the comrades lived over again the scenes of war. Rev. J. M. Getchell also made recruits in his usual happy style. The election of officers resulted in the following choice:

Prest.—Byron Stansbury, Blissfield.
Vice. Pres.—M. T. Cole, Palmyra.
Sec.—Geo. W. Westerman, Adrian.
Treas.—J. N. Chappell, Morenci.

The next reunion will be held in Deerfield, Aug. 22, '96.

The September number of The Forum will contain an unusually interesting paper by Mr. Clarence King, entitled, "Shall Cuba be Free?" Mr. King paints the treatment of the Cubans by their Spanish masters in the darkest of colors and makes an eloquent appeal for Cuban independence.

Not since "The Anglomaniacs" has there been so clever a society satire as Henry Fuller's, "Pilgrim Sons," which is published in the August Cosmopolitan. The problems involved in woman's use of the bicycle are so startling and so numerous, under the rapid evolution of this art, that one welcomes a careful discussion of the subject by so trained a mind and so clever a writer as Mrs. Reginald de Koven. The Cosmopolitan illustrates Mrs. de Koven's article with a series of poses by professional models. A new sport, more thrilling than any known to Nimrod, more dangerous than was ever experienced by Buffalo Bill, is exploited in the same issue in an article on "Photographing Big Game in the Rocky Mountains," before shooting. The idea that ten cents for The Cosmopolitan means inferiority from a literary point of view is dispelled by the appearance in this number of such writers as Sir Lewis Morris, Sir Edwin Arnold, Edgar Fawcett, Tabb, W. Clark Russell, Lang, Sarcey, Zangwill, Agnes Reyplier, etc.

The excursionists from Richmond, Ind., who have visited Sand Lake for some few years past are now there for a stay of several weeks. They form a colony nearly forty strong, and brought with them this year as a part of their equipment six handsome carvel built boats. Two families are located in leased cottages on the west side, the others having established themselves in a pretty grove near the Kennedy Bros. hotel, where they have had three handsome and capacious cottages built, one double one being especially roomy. These tourists come some two hundred miles to enjoy a stay by the shores of Sand lake. Among the number are the sheriff, county clerk and many leading business men with their families, several fine singers, and a young miss who is a phenomenal elocutionist. There are also seven young ladies, all in their seventeenth year. These have composed and set to original music "The song of the seven." All in the party are members of the society of Friends. Sunday school and regular services in the grove, to which all are welcome, is a stated part of their weekly program.—Adrian Times.

STEVENS' DEATH A MYSTERY.

Died in a Poorhouse Without Investigation and His Body is Cut Up.

ANN ARBOR, Aug. 12.—A man died in the poorhouse under circumstances indicating foul play. He came from Toledo Monday evening evidently drugged. He died and was turned over to a medical college without investigation. He has since been identified as John Stevens, of Kalamazoo, who, with his brother-in-law, Frank Clancy, went to Toledo last week in search of Clancy's wife, who eloped with a Kalamazoo married man named Pat Boyle. The guilty pair were traced to Toledo under the names of "James Dillon and wife." Mrs. Boyle thinks they are now in Chicago, and hence not connected with the crime. Clancy is still missing, and Stevens wore his clothes and carried his grip. The mystery does not clear away. The final inquest will be held Wednesday. A post mortem examination was held, but there were no discoveries.

ANN ARBOR, Aug. 13.—The coroner Monday found the body of Frank Clancy in a pickling vat at the University Medical college. A body supposed to be that of John Stevens was found to be that of John Hudgins, who died a natural death in Detroit. Attendants substituted this body for Clancy's in order to save both for the college. The body substituted looked like that of John Stevens, and was so identified by friends. The college loses both bodies.

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 14.—A Kalamazoo newspaper man discovered Patrick Boyle here Tuesday and he was immediately arrested and held to await trial for the injuries that resulted in Frank Clancy's death in Ann Arbor one week ago. Boyle confesses that Mrs. Clancy joined him here with her children, and says that she stayed for a week, leaving for a lake trip July 30. Clancy came here August 3, and Boyle says he talked with him, but that Clancy did not know of his wife's whereabouts. A message from Ann Arbor states that the autopsy shows that Clancy died from concussion of the brain. Boyle claims that Mrs. Clancy is hiding in Windsor, Ont.

WHEAT CROP NOT LARGE.

Estimates Show Condition Below the Average—Other Crop News.

LANSING, Aug. 10.—Estimates on the Michigan crop for August, issued by Secretary of State Gardner, are based on more than 800 returns received since August 1.

Wheat is estimated to yield an average of 10.91 bushels per acre. One year ago the estimates were for an average of 15.47 bushels. The reports as to the quality vary greatly from the same and adjoining localities.

The number of bushels of wheat reported marketed in July is 437,804, as compared with 847,972 reported marketed in July, 1894, and the amount marketed in the twelve months, August-July, is 11,007,691 bushels, as compared with 15,146,278 bushels in the same months last year.

Oats are estimated to yield 22 bushels per acre in the southern counties, 23 in the central and 17 in the northern, the average for the state being 21.

The estimated yield of hay per acre is only three-tenths of the yield in average years, and the condition of meadow and pastures is but 31 per cent. of condition in average years. Clover sowed this year is nearly an entire failure; the estimates showing condition but 13 per cent. of an average.

Apples promise scarcely more than one-fourth an average crop.

Foiled.

JACKSON, Aug. 13.—It has leaked out that an attempt was made one day last week by Forger Stonewall J. de France and Frank Hayes, who is serving a life sentence for the murder of a drug clerk in Detroit, to escape from prison. Hayes, who is a pharmacist, was employed in the hospital department. De France feigned illness and was taken to the hospital for treatment. They concocted a plot to escape, part of which was to saw the bars to the window. The plot was discovered before it had fully matured and both men are undergoing punishment in the "solitary."

SHOT HIS FATHER-IN-LAW.

Crime of an Enraged and Abandoned Husband in Michigan.

DETROIT, Aug. 13.—Mrs. William Haas left her husband a week ago because of his abuse of her, and went back to her parents' home to live. Monday morning Haas walked into the kitchen where his wife and children and her father, Michael Kreig, were sitting. "Are you going to live with me?" he asked his wife. She replied: "No," and Haas drew a revolver. Mrs. Haas picked up her baby and ran into another room shutting the door behind her. Haas attempted to follow her, when Kreig interfered, and Hans fired two shots at him, one taking effect in the left breast just above the heart, and the other passing clear through the left shoulder. Kreig will probably die. Haas was arrested.

HE BLAZED THE WAY.

Father Marquette's Memory Honored by Michigan Citizens.

ST. IGNACE, Aug. 8.—The streets of this city presented a remarkable and beautiful sight Wednesday, the occasion being the demonstration to raise funds to build a suitable monument to the memory of Father Marquette, the great missionary explorer.

Father Marquette died 200 years ago when on his way to this place from establishing a mission among the Indians in the neighborhood of the present city of Chicago. His remains were brought here by the Indians and placed in the vault of the little mission church which he built here, and after the burning of the church early in the eighteenth century, when the Jesuits abandoned this field of labor, the site was forgotten and for many years the exact place was unknown. About twenty years ago Father Jackson, pastor of the church at this place, now dead, discovered the remains of the church and the bones of the missionary. He erected a modest monument to mark the site, and a movement was started to raise funds for a monument of suitable proportions. Considerable money was raised, but the interest lagged and the movement finally died out. The exercises Wednesday were for the purpose of reviving interest and to raise money enough to warrant going ahead with the monument.

The town was profusely decorated, every business house and dwelling being covered with bunting. Memorial arches covered with evergreens and bunting and bearing appropriate inscriptions were numerous. The formal exercises were held on the heights of Sco-Bo-Go-No-Wis, overlooking the town, and were opened at 2 o'clock. Father J. A. Keul read an address on "The History of the Grave of Marquette in St. Ignace." Hon. T. A. E. Weadock, of Saginaw, and Judge William M. Springer delivered eloquent addresses, both of which were of great historical interest. Weadock spoke on "Marquette the Explorer," and Springer on "The Explorations of Father Marquette and Others on the Mississippi River." Gov. John T. Rich and others also delivered addresses. More than 15,000 persons were present during the exercises.

A new monument association was formed to which the money subscribed some years ago was turned over. A large sum was subscribed Wednesday and the monument to Father Marquette is assured. The formal exercises were followed by a grand parade in which everybody joined with bands, native Indians in the costumes of 1671, historical floats, etc. There was a fireworks display in the evening.

Y. The money was never turned over to the college.

Lesson For the Week Beginning Aug. 18. Comment by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M. Topic, Healing the Centurion's Servant.

SCRIPTURE READING.—Math. viii, 5-13; Luke vii, 1-10.

The two evangelists relate the same incident, though Luke gives the details so much fuller as to make him seem, at first sight, to refer to a different incident.

The centurion may have been a Roman in charge of a small garrison at Capernaum, or he may have been one of Herod's soldiers. He was a man who had special regard for the Jews, and so much reverence for their God that he had built them a synagogue in the city. This was far different from the ordinary Roman. Yet he does not appear to have been a proselyte. His humility in sending a deputation of Jewish synagogue officers instead of making the request in person, and his firm belief in Jesus' power to heal his paralytic servant, even though he was apparently dying, all impressed the Lord most deeply. The second company sent when he heard Jesus was coming gives greater emphasis to his faith and real humility of heart.

Christ declares that this heathen showed deeper faith and truer insight into spiritual things than had been shown by any Israelite. It furnishes him the occasion to declare the unlimited extent of the kingdom of God to include real believers in all nations. This teaching was particularly distasteful to the scribes and Pharisees, to whom ceremonials were more important than heart piety.

Inspiration of Travel.

Not the least valuable result of the great Boston convention of Christian Endeavor was the uplift given to multitudes by the excursions to historic sites. Bunker Hill had been to many only a name. Their visit to the spot fixed forever in memory the events which the granite shaft is intended to commemorate. The trip to Plymouth and visit to places made sacred by pilgrim toil, the excursion to Lexington and Concord, the very sight of the Old South church and the Old North and a score of other localities left an impress indelible on memory and knit up the loose fibers of patriotism.

It would be an excellent plan for any League to spend an evening in the study of historic Boston or Plymouth. Have essays on various phases of the subject, reading of poetical and prose selections and appropriate music. Then arrange to make an excursion to the localities studied. A taste for good reading and real study will thus be given, and every opportunity for travel, however limited in scope, will furnish new inspiration to learn things worth knowing.

The Third Methodist Bishop.

Richard Whatcoat came to this country with Dr. Thomas Coke to assist in founding the Methodist Episcopal church. He was nine years older than Francis Asbury, having been born in England in 1736. He had had much experience in preaching in England, Ireland and Wales, and was ordained elder by Mr. Wesley before coming to America in 1784. He traveled extensively through the colonies, preaching and administering the ordinances.

Mr. Wesley wished him made a bishop in 1787, but the conference feared if this should be done Asbury would be recalled to England, and so refused to elect him. In 1800 the health of Asbury was such as to demand an assistant, and the conference elected and consecrated Whatcoat to the office of bishop. The vote was almost evenly divided between him and Jesse Lee.

Bishop Whatcoat rendered heroic service for six years following, and died in 1806. He was buried under the altar of Wesley chapel, near Dover, Del.

What to Read.

The multitude turn in summer to light reading. In too many cases this means trash; sometimes it is even worse than rubbish. It is a mistake to think that novels alone are fitted for summer reading. Many of them are unfit to be read at all.

There is much of fiction which may be profitably taken up in these days, but there are other great realms of literature equally fascinating and no more taxing to mind. What interest can be awakened in the study of our common garden and field flowers, insects, birds and rocks? In the shortest country ramble or even a walk in city streets there is enough of nature to be seen, if one knows how to use his eyes, to furnish amusement, study and recreation for days together. Books abound which will aid to open one's eyes to this unrealized world which surrounds us. This kind of literature is helpful and not harmful and yields results of permanent benefit.

Work.

Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do that day which must be done whether you like it or not. Being forced to work and forced to do your best will breed in you temperance, self control, diligence, strength of will, content and a hundred virtues which the idle will never know —Charles Kingsley.

State Teachers' Institute.

The State Teachers' Institute for Lenawee county will be held at Adrian, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m., Monday August 19, and closing at 4 p. m. Friday, August 23

There is no doubt as to the value of a good live institute. Experience proves that, as a rule, the most successful, alert, progressive teachers are those who avail themselves of the work given at such meetings.

The persons in charge of the instruction at these institutes are those who have had practical experience in school work and know how to impart to others a portion of what they have gained in this experience. Effort has been put forth to give the county the best institute ever held.

The work will combine professional and academic instruction. The institute will be divided into sections, and the instructors will conduct classes for the purpose of reviewing some studies, and also to illustrate certain methods of instruction. The workers have been urged to arrange for calisthenic exercises, singing, marching, and the like, so as to make the work move off cheerily and without fatigue.

The time for study at the institute will necessarily be limited, and in order to permit the most profitable of class exercises the following topics are suggested, so that those who purpose attending may make some preparation:

ARITHMETIC—1. Mental Arithmetic drill 2, applications in percentage.

GRAMMAR—1. Substantive clauses, 2. synopsis of verbs, 3. analysis of sentences selected from Vision of Sir Launfal.

GEOGRAPHY—1. Michigan, 2. model outline of Europe.

HISTORY—1. 1789—1815, 2, slavery, 3, political parties, 4, important current events.

PHYSIOLOGY—1. The skin, 2. health lessons—see manual for country schools 3 circulation of the blood, 4. the eye.

CIVIL GOVERNMENT—1. Legislative officers of the nation, state, county, city, village, 2. compare duties of governor and president, 3. prohibitions on states, on congress.

PEDAGOGY—The sixth and seventh chapters of Putman's Primer, or its equivalent.

READING AND ORTHOGRAPHY—Vision of Sir Launfal. A spelling match will be conducted on Michigan Test and fifty technical words of physiology and geography.

The preceding topics are given to aid in a proper preparation for the work. Bring any text-books. Be thinking and studying along the lines of the topics suggested, and even a week's institute may be made very profitable with class work and lectures combined.

The institute law allows teachers, whose schools are in session at the time appointed for the county institute held under the direction of the State Superintendent, to close their schools during continuance of such institute without forfeiting their wages for as many half days as they are in attendance at the institute.

There will be no enrollment fee, and every wide-awake pedagog should arrange to attend every session. Try to be present at the first session.

Full particulars in regard to board, etc., may be obtained upon application to the local committee.

LAGGARD IN LOVE.

Sara, belle though she was, thought herself the most unhappy of human beings as she stood on the steps beneath the shadow of the linden trees and felt herself clasped for the first time to her lover's breast.

"Oh, if you should forget me, I should die," she said earnestly as she looked up at him. His was a fair, frank, open face enough, but there was a flash and sparkle in the blue eyes that spoke of faithlessness even then.

"Forget you!" he said, with a light laugh. "Have I not sworn myself away to you for ever and ever? And where among all the Spanish senoritas and Mexican donnas shall I find a face and form more beautiful than yours? Sara means 'princess,' you know, my pretty one, and never was the name more fitly given."

Well, it is all very true. She was beautiful even then in her unformed girlhood. Her glass and the eyes of her admirers had told her so a score of times, and she had been pleased ere this to hear her lover praise that beauty. As the last caress was given she felt that she would rather have heard some more earnest words than the praises of her beauty.

The stony hearted train bore Oliver Clayton away from his boyhood's home the next morning, and Sara Graham, watching at her window as it passed, was rewarded by one brief glimpse of the bright, handsome face that was all the world to her. How gay and happy he looked! And yet he was leaving her!

Still, could she blame him? He was young, ardent, ambitious, and the world was now before him. So she excused him to herself and to others when the days and weeks and months rolled themselves slowly into years, and his letters, frequent and loving at first, became cool and few and far between.

She waited, "hoping against hope," and keeping her trust and faith in him still, in spite of his long silence and his apparent coldness.

But the years of absence grew slowly from one to five, and still he came not. In his place many another would have wooed the still lovely belle, but her answer was to all alike. Heart and hand were pledged to this "laggard in love" and might not be reclaimed, save at his own request.

It came at last! He loved another and would be set free from early vows. Sara released him in a few cold and quiet words.

And then for a long time life and love seemed alike dying within her heart. When health and strength came back once more, she married the wealthiest of her suitors and removed to New York.

* * * * * * *

It was five years afterward, and when she was in the very height of her beauty and her power, that she met Oliver Clayton once more. He had returned from California a wealthy but a lonely man, for his young Spanish bride had died in their honeymoon, and he had never tried to fill her place. Perhaps some vague hope of finding his early love free and unfettered still had prompted his return. Be this as it may, he met her for the first time at a grand ball and had the felicity of seeing her followed and flattered by half the men in the room and of hearing that her husband loved her to distraction, and that her home was a perfect haven of peace and comfort.

On that evening he found it impossible to speak to her, but three nights after they met at a private party, and he found himself near her at the entrance of the music room just as she had consented to sing.

She had heard of his arrival and was therefore forearmed. If he had expected any display of emotion on her part, he must have been cruelly disappointed.

"Mr. Clayton," she said, with a look of well bred surprise and without offering her hand, "is it possible that you have returned? How delighted all your friends must be!"

And she sailed on to the piano without another word. He lingered to hear her voice once more. She lifted her eyes and saw him standing there. And this is what she sang:

"Close to my dreaming heart
You stood that day.
The time of my life had come
To hear yea or nay.
I looked into your face,
But you turned it away,
And if ever hope had lit my heart
It died out that day.

And then she rose from the piano, listening laughingly to the praises of her friends as she drew on her gloves. She left the room, leaning on the arm of the British embassador.

And as she passed by where Clayton was still standing he heard her say, in answer to some low remark from her escort:

"Oh, my lord, I might have sung that song with proper feeling once! But that was many years ago. Time works wonders, as you know, and if I give the right expression to the words now it is but a trick of a successful actress. Give me credit for nothing more!"

Her dark eyes rested full on the handsome face of her early lover as she spoke—rested as they might have done upon a picture, or even a wall! She gave him a quiet little bow of recognition as she passed, but look and smile and bow all said plainly, "We are strangers!"

Stung and mortified, he rushed from the room and out of the house. The words of her song still rang in his ear, and before his eyes rose up the vision of that little white cottage up amid the hills, and the dark eyed girl who stood with him there beneath the linden trees, so many years before!

"And she might have been my wife!" he said, with a kind of groan, as he stepped up to a lamppost and lit a Mexican cigar!—New York News.

AN ALPENA MIRACLE.

MRS. JAS. M. TODD, OF LONG RAPIDS, DISCARDS HER CRUTCHES.

In an Interview with a Reporter She Reviews Her Experience and Tells the Real Cause of the Miracle.

From the Argus, Alpena, Mich.

As is well known by many of the people of Alpena county, Mrs. Jas. M. Todd, of Long Rapids township, has been a great sufferer and a cripple for many years with that terrible affliction, rheumatism. Some two years ago we became somewhat interested in Mrs. Todd's case, and, in common with Alpena people, rejoice that this great sufferer has at last found relief, and is now in a fair way to a permanent cure. Knowing of the substantial benefit Mrs. Todd had received, and that she was at last regaining her health and strength, we sought to hear her story from her own lips, and here give it to our readers, in her own language.

"As you know, my name is Mrs. Jas. M. Todd, and for the benefit of suffering humanity I wish, through the ARGUS, to tell the world at large what may seem to them, as well as myself, a miracle.

"Eight years ago I was afflicted with what doctors called nervous prostration. The following spring I was taken with rheumatism, commencing first in my arms and hands, and leaving them it would go directly to my head and heart. I cannot describe what I suffered. The only way I could get my breath was to sit where the air would blow directly on me. Thus I lived and suffered for two years, when the affliction left my arms and went directly to my feet. Again I was taken to doctors, and they said I had inflammatory rheumatism in its worst form. My feet were so swollen that it was impossible for me to wear anything upon them, my hands were drawn out of shape, and I could only sit up a few minutes at a time, and often wished death would end my suffering.

"Then another year of misery, doctoring all the time, and using every remedy I could hear of, when, as a last resort, I went to Ann Arbor where I could have the advice of not only one, but many physicians. They pronounced my trouble inflammatory and muscular rheumatism, said it was brought on by hard work, and if rest did not cure me nothing would, for medicines would not do it. I again went to the city, and was treated by one of our best physicians, but grew more helpless, and at last went to live with my daughter, thinking I could not live long. I was then as helpless as a child, and after lying down awhile, I could not raise my arms to cover myself, nor speak until shaken or lifted up. One of my limbs was entirely helpless, and the skin was dry and cracked until it would bleed.

"From a tall, straight woman of over five feet, I was drawn all out of shape, my eyes were swollen shut more than half the time, my knee joints out of place, no strength to raise or dress, for eighteen months had been held up by one on each side of me to dress or undress. Another year passed when my attention was called to a case similar to mine cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was urged to try them and at last did so. In three days after I commenced taking Pink Pills I could sit up and dress myself, and after using them six weeks I went home and commenced working. I continued taking the pills until now I begin to forget my crutches, and can go up and down steps without aid. I am truly a living wonder, walking out of doors without assistance.

"Now, if I can say anything to induce those who have suffered as I have to try Pink Pills, I shall gladly do so. If other like sufferers will try Pink Pills according to directions, they will have reason to thank God for creating men who are able to conquer that terrible disease, rheumatism. I have in my own neighborhood recommended Pink Pills for the after effects of la grippe and weak women with impure blood, all with good results."

Mrs. Todd is very strong in her faith in the curative powers of Pink Pills, and says they have brought a poor, helpless cripple back to do her own milking, churning, washing, sewing, knitting, and in fact about all of her household duties, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

The following letter to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. refers to the above, and will be read with much interest:

LONG RAPIDS, MICH., Jan. 12, 1895.
Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N.Y.

Gentlemen: "Some time ago I gave to the editor of the Argus a full account of my sickness, with the exception of one thing which I withheld after writing to you about my case, viz.: I took seventeen boxes of your pills then I stopped. Seeing Mr. Vial, the editor, one day, I told him what the pills had done, but told him I thought they would help me no more. He said they would and that I must keep on taking them. He sent me altogether twenty-four boxes of pills, and also cheerful letters of encouragement, God bless him. If it had not been for him, I verily believe I should have been in my grave. And also I bless God he ever created men that could combat with rheumatism. It has occurred to me that one person cured as I have been, and who would go from one large city to another and tell of the experience with your pills, their sale would be doubled, as half the world does not believe what they read of your miracles. But when they see a poor twisted body like mine, hear from living lips the medicine that cured me, the most skeptical could not help but believe. Already in this country place double the pills have been used since I commenced to take them. If I had the means to start on I would spend the next six months in treating the worst cases in Bay City and Saginaw and Detroit. I believe I could do a great amount of good in this way, and perhaps make a little money. Please do not think that I am a grasping woman for I am not, but I am poor and destitute, and I should like to help suffering humanity to health and strength for both can be had if they only know about Pink Pills. God bless you and keep you long, is the prayer of

Yours very gratefully,
MRS. J. M. TODD.

The foregoing is but one of many wonderful cures that have been credited to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Diseases which heretofore have been supposed to be incurable, such as locomotor ataxia and paralysis succumb to this wonderful medicine as readily as the most trifling ailments. In many cases the reported cures have been investigated by the leading newspapers and verified in every possible manner and in all cases, has the least semblance of fraud been discovered. Their fame has spread to the far ends of civilization and there is hardly a drug store in this country or abroad where they cannot be found.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

WOMAN'S DRESS.

An Essay Read by Fern DePuy at the Farmers' Union Picnic, June 21st, 1895.

"Strive as you will," says Garret Smith, "to elevate woman, nevertheless the disabilities and degradation of her dress, together with that large group of false views of the uses of her being and of her relations to man, symbolized and perpetuated by her dress, will make your striving vain."

They say it is for beauty's sake that woman submits to the discomfort and restraint of her costume. But how many of the styles of dress depicted in a quarter of a century's file of fashion plates can stand the test of Keat's fameus line, "a thing of beauty is a joy forever?" Each one is declared ugly when it has gone out of fashion. In the language of Emerson, I am warned by the ill fate of many philosophers not to attempt a definition of beauty. I will rather enumerate some of the qualities.

We ascribe beauty to that which is simple; which has no superfluous parts; which exactly answers its end; which stands related to all things; which is the mean of many extremes. It is the most enduring quality as well as the most ascending quality. The fashionable dress has none of these qualities, yet the delusion rests like an evil spell on the public imagination, that women are in zealous pursuit of the beautiful when they go zizzaging after the fashion.

The catechism teaches that the chief end of man is to glorify God and enjoy him forever; but society teaches that it is the chief duty of woman to make herself beautiful and attractive to man. This manner of reasoning implies that it is not in woman's nature to be beautiful and attractive, but she may become so by alterations of her natural shape with disguises dictated by fashion.

No one exhorts the rose to try to be fragrant, or beseeches the lambs to cultivate gentleness.

I have no quarrel with society, nor fashion; the present age is so promised, since science has been unlocking the silent chambers of nature and bringing to light a world's story of life and evolution. While invention has been knitting nations and races into one great family, and establishing means by which our earth may be transformed into an Eden as soon as the savagery of man's passion and the selfishness of his instinct are subdued. A few generations ago, he who had the temerity to even tentatively put forth the right of woman to enter upon any of the hundreds of walks which today she treads with honor and distinction, courted social ostracism and raised a storm of indignation, in which one heard much about social and moral disorganization of society and degradation of womanhood; the distruction of the home and the righteous wrath of God which would follow those who so lightly treated the solemn admonitions of his servant, Paul Now those days are memories only of a well meaning but dim-visioned past, and woman has successfully, step by step, passed into the van of civilization's onward moving column. That which was forbidden yesterday is grudgingly granted today; while on the morrow, even conventionalism tries to forget that she ever opposed the just demand. And so today, as we study unfolding womanhood, only beginning as yet to appreciate the splendid possibilities that lie before her, I am thrilled with exultant hope in her progress and in the dawning consciousness of her power and her rights. I see the prophecy of higher and purer civilization. The day star of reason and sober judgment is breaking upon the vision: she is ceasing to be a mere echo of husband, father, brother, or a reflex of conventional thought; she is no longer swayed solely by sentiment; she is now asking herself, when questions arise which relate to her and about which she has never seriously thought before, Is it right? Is it just? Is it in accordance with common sense? The dead past, over whose aged mounds she has so long knelt, no longer holds her inthralled. The impulse of new life, strong as the voice of spring to budding trees and springing flowers, is urging her forward, and not the least of these questions which is pressing upon the thought of our leading women is that of rational dress, and to add a word on this subject was the motive that prompted this paper.

In the logic of recent events and the trend of multitudinous potent agencies now at work I see the prophecy of an early triumph of sober reason and common sense in the question of woman's dress over a conventionalism deep rooted in the soil of ancient orientalism, and springing from the old time barbaric idea that woman was inferior to man. Indeed the prospect for positive and sensible reform in the dress of women was never half so bright as today, and I believe there are forces at work which will bring about, at a far earlier day than most persons imagine, as great a revolution in public sentiment as that which overcame conventionalism in regard to the sphere of woman. I think it is fair to say the battle for woman's emancipation from tyranny of absurd health destroying and grotesque fashions is more than half fought.

With fear of trespassing beyond my allotted time, I wish very briefly to state a few reasons which lead me to believe that the triumph of this reform is near at hand. The preliminary skirmishing is over. The battle which has raged around some of the noblest and most far-sighted souls of our century has spent its fury. Ridicule and caricature, prudery and conventionalism, the greed of fashion makers and the confederate interests, which fatten on woman's folly, have done their worst. Reason, the all-conquering, the master spirit, the ultimate victor, is asserting herself. The small, still voice crying in the wilderness has broadened and swelled into the fearless demand of millions of our best thinkers and the forces are ever augmenting in strength.

I have no doubt as to the ultimate victory of this great movement of rational dress. The agencies working for its success will prove irresistable. The only question is, how soon can the reformation be accomplished.

In behalf of art, grace and beauty, which have been so remorselessly outraged by fashion during the past generation; in behalf of that comfort of body and physical development which are absolutely essential to the proper unfoldment of the soul life; and in behalf of the physical life and health of the rising generation of womankind, as well as the race of the future, let the marching orders be given and let no retrograde step be taken.

THROUGH FRANCE TO GERMANY

Our Wheelmen Take Breakfast at Waterloo and Tarry the same Night in a Dutch Town.

COLOGNE, GERMANY, July 20.

DEAR MR. EDITOR:—We were leaving Paris when last I wrote you. The gate by which we departed was not such a one as we entered. The fortifications are very plain here and the great wall with the moat, looks very formidable. St. Denis, the burial place of the French kings and an extremely uninteresting place otherwise, was the first city on our route. We entered the ancient cathedral, which has been destroyed and rebuilt, has decayed and been rebuilt, until it is a curious mixture of architecture. There was an atmosphere of awe and majesty which quite quelled my democratic spirit. After untangling the French streets, we resumed our ride towards Brussels.

How amused you would be to see Harry and me wheeling along in our happy-go-lucky fashion. Now removing a turnip carefully from its bed (and discovering that it is a green beet,) now gathering a few cherries and getting a volley of French oaths, wholly inoffensive to us because we don't understand a word; then again, seated by a stone wayside fountain with its grand semi-circle of trees. The town pumps are such odd edifices—for they are edifices about 12 feet high; made of stone or brick or iron, 4 feet square and having an ornamental roof. The handle varies from six to ten feet in length and gives an enormous stroke. It is handled much like a base-ball bat—with a mighty sweep of both arms. Roads paved with stone but with good sidepaths extend from Paris to Brussels. On both sides of the road, there are continuous rows of trees which furnish a most agreeable shade for a wheelman.

We passed Chantilly where is the beautiful chateau and park of the famous Conde'l and then Longpont with its antique, crumbling and unroofed cathedral. We stopped for the first night out of Paris at Tubise. Here we were requested by the good landlady to remove our shoes before going up stairs to bed. We complied and found our shoes at the foot of the staircase in the morning. We took breakfast at Waterloo, next morning, in sight of the Lion and the Prussian monument and commented learnedly during our repast upon the famous battles. From there to Brussels, where, upon our first entrance to the city, it seemed a bedlam of market women. Even on the road leading into the city was a long line of small carts drawn by dogs of every pedigree and size. In the carts were brazen milk pails varying in grotesque shapes. The streets of the city were thronged with women, venders of a sort of clams, of vegetables in all stages of decay, and of old clothes and live eels. But when we passed to the front of the magnificent Hotel de Ville, we found a boulevard where all was gaiety and the squalor and vileness of lower town unknown. Riding along the ostentatious boulevard, we viewed the public buildings and then wheeled away into the country toward Aix la Chapelle. We soon discovered that the language was changing. The French of western Belgium was getting mixed with Dutch and the compound was so hopeless a jargon that we nearly despaired. At forks in the road, one man would tell us in vehement French to go one way and another, in emphatic Dutch, to go the other. Then a fellow who spoke a mixture of both, would tell us to go either. We were fortunate, however, and went the direct route to Aix la Chapelle.

At one time, my tire was badly cut on a sharp stone and as it was raining we took refuge in an old flour-mill which was run by a huge windmill. What a quaint old place it was, with the stolid Dutchmen sluggishly moving here and there to adjust machinery. They reefed the sails of the windmill while we were there and we studied the whole operation. This old-fashioned method is strange, but when we see all the reaping done by hand with a sickle, and the threshing done with a flail, and the women, with brawny, weather-beaen arms, doing more than half the work, we are thankful that we live in progressive America. Men, women and children are all experts in balancing on the head, jugs, trays, baskets and anything portable. There is a curious uniformity in the leather bags which each of the myriad school children carries on his or her shoulder.

They have a remarkable hydrant in this country. You press a button and the hydrant does the rest with full force at once. There is no adjustment but the water makes a terrific rush. It is funny to see us try to catch a drink "on the fly." We apply our mouths to the side of the torrent, and inbale, as it were.

We had a great surprise as we neared Aix la Chapelle. I went into a post-office to get a stamp and was told my Belgium money was not good. Then I discovered that we were passing thro' a strip of Holland. It is a surprise, I assure you, to turn up suddenly in a country which you never expected to see. The small villages through this region were so full of pigs that we could not avoid running over them as they scurried about. The inhabitants and pigs took that good-naturedly, so we did. We are getting accustomed to running over small boys, pigs and dogs.

I haven't time to tell the harrowing particulars of how we tried to eat the famous German black bread; nor Harry's chargin when he found one evening that his hair had grown so long, he could not remove his sweater. I can only briefly suggest the appearance of a Dutch village with its slim, pointed church spires and little, dirty, white-washed houses with red-tile roofs. Some of the chateaus are charming. In front of one, I remember a small pond of clear water, a small island covered with foliage; and just above the verdure a charming sculptured Venus rose. Enough now, but more soon.

THE SLANDERER.

"A lie that is half a lie
Is ever the blackest of lies—
A lie that is all a lie
May be met and fought outright,
But a lie that is half a truth
Is a harder matter to fight."
—Tennyson.

Was Cain a murderer?
Are they also who hate
A brother without cause?
And his, their doom and fate?
More lenient their sin,
And easier to forgive,
Than that which kills the soul
But lets the body live.

A thousand deaths they die
Whom slanderers defame;
The victims of a lie,
Bereft of hope or name.
The tale is glibly told,
Be it, or false, or true,
None careth to inquire,
It harms not me, nor you.

But is there none it harms,
Stealing along by stealth,
Despoiling of its charms
A name more dear than wealth?
A brother's choicest gift,
A sister's hope and all,
Swept by that idle breath,
Years never can recall.

Before the Judgment Seat
Where shall the slanderer stand,
To see recorded there
The work of his own hand?
The agony and tears,
The grief and hopeless sighs,
And vain attempts to trace
His labyrinth of lies.

The malice mixed with truth,
The careless sneer or gibe,
The blasted hopes of youth
The tears that never dried,
The smile that came no more,
The hearts made desolate,
The lost—upon that shore,
How terrible to meet!

THE BOGUS CHECK RACKET.

"Ever get left on the bogus check racket?" repeated the hotel clerk. "Only once.

"It was just after I came here. A stranger alighted from the bus and called me by name even before he entered the door. He was asking me how I liked Buffalo and telling me that Jimmy, the bartender, and Dave, the head waiter in the hotel where I used to work in Pittsburg, had sent their regards to me, even before he registered. I was kicking myself because I couldn't remember him, but, of course, I didn't give myself away. The name he put on the register didn't enlighten me any, either.

"The next morning when I came on watch my new friend was ready to depart. He greeted me with 'Hello, old man! Just tell your cashier this check is all right, will you? I want to settle my bill. I've got to run down to Rochester, but I'll be back with you tomorrow.' The check was for $50 and was signed by one of the best firms in Pittsburg. I told the cashier to take it. He didn't happen to have enough money at the time, and my gentleman began to bluster: 'If you don't want to cash it, he said, 'I'll take it down to the Mansion House, where I used to stop. They'll take it fast enough.' That ought to have aroused my suspicions. Men whose credit is good are not ready to resent fancied slights on their financial stability. But I argued to myself that the man had only come to our house on my acconnt, and that we should lose a customer if he was not accommodated, so I was more anxious than ever to oblige him. I held him till the cashier got the money and gave him his change, $47.

"A few days afterward the check was returned to us as a forgery. I have heard that the fellow played the same game all over the country. He evidently made a specialty of posting himself on the history and personal appearance of hotel clerks, and the desire of our class to be known as everybody's friend did the rest."—Buffalo Express.

Mr. and Mrs. Sailor and daughter Edna, who have identified themselves with the aforesaid, are expected to partake of Clinton hospitality at the home of Mrs. C. A. Clark to-day.

The Episcopal ladies said they would, and they did, in spite of circumstances which seemed to be to the contrary. Some time ago as stated in these columns, they decided to repair and renew the whole inside of the church. Their male associates in parochial endeavor rather doubted their ability to carry out the undertaking, but were finally coerced into passiveness and even formulated extensive plans for raising money to re-seat the church. The fair church workers have performed their task to the letter and the church is now decked with new paper, new carpets and new paint, giving the whole inside the appearance of a new edifice. And now, behold, they have ordered new seats in place of the old ones and they will be put in without delay. The ladies of St. Johns are to be highly complimented on their perseverance and tact in this undertaking.

The Shakers have made a great hit. Their Digestive Cordial is said to be the most successful remedy for stomach troubles ever introduced. It immediately relieves all pain and distress after eating, builds up the feeble system and makes the weak strong. The fact is, foods properly digested are better than so-called tonics. The Cordial not only contains food already digested, but is a digester of other foods. Food that is not digested does more harm than good. People who use the Cordial insure the digestion of what food they eat, and in this way get the benefit of it and grow strong. The little pamphlets which the Shakers have sent druggists for free distribution, contain much interesting information on the subject of dyspepsia.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

"M. Quad," the Famous Humorist, Takes his Old Place on The Free Press.

We find great pleasure in announceing to our readers that Chas. B. Lewis, the famous "M. Quad," has resumed his former place upon The Detroit Free Press. Since his retirement from The Free Press four years ago Mr. Lewis has been writing for one of the leading syndicates. His preference for direct newspaper work, however, led him to abandon that connection, and hereafter his popular writings will appear only in The Free Press. Mr. and Mrs. Bowser, Brother Gardner, Arizona Kicker, Zeb White, Abe Crofoot, Mrs. Gallup, and many new characters will appear regularly.

The publishers are making a special four months' trial offer of the Semi-Weekly Free Press for 25 cents to introduce their paper to new readers, and we would advise those looking for a great bargain to send in their subscription at once. The offer is good only until August 1.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Diamondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last for hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recomended Dr. King's New Didcovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in resnlts." Trial bottles free at Orr & Temple's Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. 1

Stop suffering! Try Dr. Miles' Pain Pills.

STOP IT NOW!

Stop It Quickly, Just the Same as Did Mr. Charles H. Hoffman, of 132 Ten Eyck Street, Jackson.

If you have a pain in your back, stop it! A lame back, stop it! An aching back, stop it! Do you want to know how? Let us tell you! In the first place, never try to rid yourself of pain without knowing the cause. If pain or ache exist there is reason for it. Find out this reason and get after it. Strike cause a stiff blow with the right weapon, and its allies, pain and ache, will flee like chaff before the wind. To get right down to it, backache is indicative of kidney disorders, a spy placed there by nature; listen to his warnings and take up the weapon, strike before disease is reinforced with allies that can not be routed by hand of man, such as Bright's disease. Let us introduce to you this weapon! Let us prove its superiority to all others! Here is a blow it struck:

Mr. Charles H. Hoffman is a fireman on the M. C. R. R., and resides at 132 Ten Eyck Street, Jackson, Mich. He says: "I have suffered for a long time from a kidney and bladder disorder which has at times rendered me incapable of work; have been at the hospital for my complaint and discharged from there as cured, but the old complaint has invariably come back again. Some time ago I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I began taking them, with most gratifying results. Urinary complaints which bothered me greatly are very much improved, and the pain I suffered in my back has entirely left me, my general condition is much improved. I would not like to be without Doan's Kidney Pills, I think others should know what a valuable remedy it is."

For sale by all dealers, price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

TURNING GRAY AND THREATENED WITH BALDNESS

The Danger is Averted by Using

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

"Nearly forty years ago, after some weeks of sickness, my hair turned gray and began falling out so rapidly that I was threatened with immediate baldness. Hearing Ayer's Hair Vigor highly spoken of, I commenced using this preparation, and was so well satisfied with the result that I have never tried any other kind of dressing. It stopped the hair from falling out, stimulated a new growth of hair, and kept the scalp free from dandruff. Only an occasional application is now needed to keep my hair of good, natural color. I never hesitate to recommend any of Ayer's medicines to my friends."—Mrs. H. M. Haight, Avoca, Neb.

Last Sunday morning while Frank Wintersteen and family were away from home attending church, two rough looking men broke into their house, stole two razors, a large butcher knife, jewelry, clothing and a number of other articles, besides helping themselves to a good square meal of vituals. Leaving the house after they had taken all they wanted, they were seen coming down the road by Henry Karcher, who lived close by, and Ed. Smith, of Toledo, who happened to be visiting at Karcher's, a relative of his. When they came nearer Smith recognized one of the men as belonging to the party who broke jail at Toledo last Saturday. Smith told Mr. Karcher of his suspicions and the two men started for the thieves, who, seeing them, broke into a run across a corn field. They were pursued for some distance and then all track of them was lost. Deputy Stevens, of Tecumseh, was at once notified. Mr. Wintersteen did not learn of his loss until he returned from church.

You Get Strong,

if you're a tired out or run-down woman, with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. And, if you suffer from any female complaint or disorder, you get well. For these two things—to build up women's strength and to cure women's ailments—this is the only medicine which, once used, is always in favor. Therefore, nothing else can be just as good for you to buy. The Prescription regulates and promotes all the natural functions, never conflicts with them, and is perfectly harmless in any condition of the female system. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and vigor. For periodical pains and every chronic weakness or irregularity it's a remedy that safely and permanently cures. 1w

Death has again visited our town taking for its victim Mrs. Jas. Ash, who has been a sufferer from consumption for four months and died August 15th. She was buried from the Friend's church, Raisin Center, the 17th, inst., and a large audience attended, showing the deep sympathy they had for the husband and six little children to mourn the loss of a devoted mother and wife, the youngest being four months. Rev. Maynard, of Sparta Center, Michigan, officiated and Mr. Everiss and daughter Maggie and Mrs. Regina Winship of Adrian, furnished sweet music and it was one of the saddest funerals ever held in this community. BIG PROFITS ON Small Investments

Returning prosperity will make many rich, but nowhere can they make so much within a short time as by successful Speculation in Grain, Provisions and Stock.

$10.00 FOR EACH DOLLAR INVESTED can be made by our Systematic Plan of Speculation.

originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system.

It is a well-known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by systematic trading through Chicago brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to $50,000 to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand.

It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading.

Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time.

WRITE FOR CONVINCING PROOFS, also our Manual on successful speculation and our Daily Market Report, full of money-making pointers. ALL FREE. Our Manual explains margin trading fully. Highest references in regard to our standing and success.

THE STAR COURSE FOR 1895-6.

Tecumseh may not be much of a "show" town, but we have for several years supported an entertainment course second to none in the State. This season the management have determined to improve, if possible, their former lists and with that end in view have made their selections early, thereby securing the very best talent in the market.

The first concert will be given by the Redpath Grand Concert Company, which is booked for Saturday, Oct. 19. This troupe consists of four artists, artists in the full meaning of the term, any one of whom would alone be an attraction even in a Tecumseh Star course. Mrs. Genevra Johnstone-Bishop, the soprano, Miss Maud Powell, the violinist, Mrs. Clara Murray, the harp virtuoso, and Mr. Rudolph VonScarpa, an Austrian pianist, complete the quartette. The expense of this company will necessitate putting the price of single admission at $1.00. Buy your season tickets early and get in on this concert.

The second will be Geo. Kennan, the Siberian traveler, writer and lecturer, whose work and reputation are too well known to need description. Nov. 9th is his date for Tecumseh.

The third will be Leland T. Powers, Tecumseh's favorate impersonator. The more our people see of him the more they want to. Dec. 10, is fixed for Mr. Powers' appearance here.

John Temple Graves will lecture here Jan. 27, '96. This man is new to our audiences but his reputation as "the most eloquent Southerner of to-day" has become national.

Edward Remenyi occupies the 5th place for Feb. 5. It is a matter of exceptional favor that a Tecumseh audience ever has the opportunity to hear so great a master of the violin as this renowned Hungarian. Remenyi is supported by able associates.

The sixth and last will be Prof. John B. DeMotte. Everybody who heard DeMotte last year wanted to hear him again the very next night. Those who did not hear the lecture talked about him so much that they have been living since simply to hear DeMotte before they die. They will all be there on March 28, if they live through the winter.

The season tickets at $1.50 each will soon be on sale, and the above array of talent will assure their ready disposal.

Correcting a Misapprehension.

In our issue of July 5th, this item appeared:

Gus Cummins is something of a rider too. He came in Monday on his wheel from Chicago, having been just 12 hours on the road, a distance of 220 miles.

Gus came on the Lake Shore train and rode from the depot to the house on his wheel. People here understood the joke, but some outsiders misconstrued it, as the following note will show:

DETROIT, Mich., 7-22-'95.

EDITOR HERALD—Dear Sir: Refering to clipping shown from "Herald" July 5th, the writer is an old long distance wheelman and has looked in later issues of the "Herald" for a correction of either of the distance or the time, as 19 1-6 miles an hour on the road, is too near passenger train time to be credited by very many readers, as a continuous run, and the writer infers that some one has made an error in the riding time, or that the rider rode on a passenger train for part of the distance, or made too many halts for refreshments on the way. I would also say that the time is faster than that of the Cleveland-Pittsburg road-race of a few days ago. Yours very truly.

THE COLLEGE BOYS.

If Paul were to visit this country and be as frank as he was with the Athenians, he would say, "I perceive, O Christian men of America, that ye are too superstitious!" The word is Latin, compounded of "super," meaning over, and "stare"—to stand—to stand over. Now it is just as true in law, logic, religion and politics as in Latin that one who stands over a thing does not understand it. Which is to say that a superstitious person is uppish, stilted, uncertain or unsound, with wild, exaggerated or grotesquely foreshortened views of things. To go up in a ballon is a very poor way to see the world, and that is our trouble. Our common Christianity suffers for an application of Solomon's old fashioned, expressive, but infallible specific for nonsense, acute or chronic—to wit, "Get understanding." That of course would be quite impossible for some of us, and it would be difficult for many and not nearly so easy for any of us as it sounds.

But the rub is to get rid of our overstanding. Some of us keep such a sharp lookout for God that we fail to see people. Others of us so diligently observe the wind that we forget to sow. We get so carried away by the thought of having a preacher sent to the heathen that we never notice that there are 30,000 gallons of whisky on the same vessel. We watch so for the coming of the Lord in the air that we ignore his footprints in the dust and soil of the earth, but that is where they are or nowhere, and his own word is, "He that will come after me, let him take up his cross and follow me." Which by the usual interpretation means to speak in class-meeting or the like, and it may be that, but is much more. You will not think I cast a slur upon any custom, interest or doctrine. I am contending that our best people are prone to overlook close, present, unpopular, disagreeable, dangerous crosses just as we are apt to be busier about the faults of others than our own. The drunkard sees his wife's ill temper; she sees his drunkenness, and each grows worse.

Take up your cross.
Yours is a hod; shoulder it!
Yours is a broom; sweep with it!
Yours is a pick; strike with it!
Yours is pen and paper; write!
Yours is a flag; fly it!
Yours is a song; sing it!
Yours is a sword; smite with it!

But there is one common cross to all citizens; I mean the one we place against men and measures on a ballot slip. We must take up that and follow him to the capitol.

But the road is through Gethsemane and Calvary and so instinctively we follow the way of the world and make detours to avoid trouble. It is all very fine to follow Jesus to a wedding, to raise Lazarus, to visit Mary and Martha, and be caressed. But to be crucified—that is different. That is where we lose power.

Paul said "Be not conformed to this world"—Latin for "spoon fashion." Be not "spoon fashion" to a saloon keeper in the ballot box! There is the saddest phase of the saloon question, that the voting church is spoon fashion with the drink shop. But be transformed—cross-formed. I remember in Gounod's opera where Valentine would avenge poor Margurite and finds his sword useless against the foul find, but suddenly reverses it and holds up the hilt, which is a cross, and the fiend crouches and flies. So in the presence of a church transformed by real, operative, unwavering faith in God, wrong shrivels, crawls and dies, but all the powers of sin revel in the coy conformity of Christians.

When the steeple stoops to shake hands with the saloon upon election day it is out of plumb, and out of plumb for a day is out of power for a year, and it is no answer to say it is trying to make the saloon look up.

You ask me to preach the old gospel and draw drunkards into the church. Stop! Let me ask you where does the pastor stand upon this question? He does not stand—he sits upon it.

He would not dare read a W. C. T. U. notice in his pulpit or pray at a Prohibition convention. I say he is not a good pastor for a drunkard. Where is the membership? They are for high license! A drunkard must find a higher level, or he will go back to drink. Show me a clean church, and I'll devote my life to getting men into it, but I will exhort no drunkard to join a church that winks at or consents to a saloon.

I do adjure you to put the cross of Christ upon your ballots. We do intend to—next year. But there is such procrastination, in consequence and up-in-the-airness about much of our religion that some of us never get the relations of terrestrial things upon the level. Ages of rolling up our eyes have given us astigmatism: perpendicular lines are vivid, but we are blind horizontally.

The Christian Endeavor society held a lawn social at the Presbyterian church last evening, which was well attended. Ice cream and cake were served and Wills' quartette favored the crowd with their presence.

Harry Nay, aged 18 years, 2 months, 24 days, died in his mother's house in Holloway, Wednesday night, supposedly from concussion of the brain, or from the bursting of a blood vessel in the brain. It is a great loss to his mother. Last winter she buried her oldest son and now is called upon to part with her youngest so suddenly. He was a young man of promise and was liked by all who knew him. His death is a great surprise to his many friends. He will be buried beside his brother in the Tecumseh cemetery from the home in Holloway, Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

Last Monday occurred a very pretty wedding ceremony at the Methodist church whereby John Barkwell and Miss Minnie Doolittle were united in marriage. Both of the contracting parties are natives of Canada. They came to Tecumseh from Mt. Pleasant and have won a goodly circle of friends and acquaintances since residing here. The groom was recently associated with Mr. Stickle in the steam laundry and the bride is a sister of Mrs. Stickle. Mr. Barkwell will simply change partners, and the HERALD joins in congratulations and in wishing the new firm success and happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Barkwell, after a short trip to Detroit and Windsor, have returned to Tecumseh where they will reside.

The young people of South Macon will give a carpet ball social at Grange hall, Friday evening, Aug. 30. The ladies are requested to bring a ball with their name written on paper inside the ball. The balls will be sold to the gentlemen at 25 cents each. Proceeds to go towards painting the hall. Refreshments, peaches and cream, etc. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

The game last Saturday between Tecumseh and Clinton was a little ragged on both sides, although quite well enjoyed by those who witnessed it. It also turned out pretty evenly, the score standing 16 to 15 in favor of our boys at the close. Some very good plays were made, but want of practice makes wild throws and errors, which allows a side to go to pieces now and then, while their opponents are scoring. More practice and both teams will be O. K.

The great bicycle race event in Michigan will be the tri-state meet to be held at the fair grounds in Jackson, on Wednesday, Sept. 4. The races are nearly all for class A men and the prizes that have been hung up by those having the arrangements in charge, include a rich lot of diamonds and gold and silver trophies. The program is a fine one, special championship races being arranged with fast men to start. Some of the fastest men on the track will be present. Perfect arrangements for the reception and entertainment of bicycle men have been made. Jackson will do herself honor in the eyes of Michigan bicyclists. T. W. Chapin is president of the meet; W. A. Tinker, treasurer; H. R. Earle, secretary.

"Prosecuting Attorney John E. Bird has sprung a genuine surprise on his friends in this city. At noon today, at the home of the bride's parents in Troy, New York, Mr. Bird and Miss Katherine Brown were united for life. The bride is a prepossessing young lady, intelligent, highly educated and will grace with dignity the home of the prosecuting attorney. They first met two years ago at Ocean Springs, Miss., where Miss Brown was visiting her uncle, Lon Sheldon, a half brother of Wm. M. Sheldon of this city, and Mr. Bird was spending a time on account of the health of his mother. The young people will spend a couple of weeks in a trip around the lakes, to Mackinac and other points, and return to Adrian, where rooms at the home of Geo. R. Morey, of Toledo street, are awaiting their arrival." Above is from the Telegram of Wednesday. The groom has a host of friends in Tecumseh and in this section of the county who will unite in extending their congratulations. Mr. Bird has already acquired a fine legal practice and all that he needed now to make life happy was a better half to share his happiness with him. The happy pair will please accept the HERALD'S best wishes for their success in life.

OBITUARY.

MRS. KITTIE MARSH.

Last Saturday morning occurred the death of Mrs. Kittie Stevenson Marsh, wife of W. W. Marsh. Mrs. Marsh has been a sufferer from consumption for many months. Some weeks ago, in company with her husband she took a trip to relatives in New York State, in hopes that the change would be beneficial to her failing health. However, such was not to be and the sufferer was compelled to return home where, in spite of every attention she gradually failed until the end. The deceased was born in Seneca county, New York, Aug. 5th, 1851, died Aug. 17, 1895, at her home in Tecumseh, Mich., aged 44 years and 12 days. She was the mother of seven children, five of whom together with her husband survive to mourn their irreparable loss. Mrs. Marsh was an exemplary wife and mother, and little else need be said in praise of any woman. The funeral was held Monday afternoon at the house, Rev. J. P. Varner officiating.

MRS. LOVISA CLARK.

Lovisa Walker was born in Madison county, N. Y., Dec. 21, 1814. On the 7th of June, 1833, she became the wife of Henry R. Clark, and for over thirty years the family lived on a beautiful farm near Earlville, Madison county. In 1866 they came to Michigan and bought the old Goodrich farm at Newburgh, where she found a happy home until 1883. Her husband passed on to the higher life in 1875. In 1883 she came to this village where she lived for seven years. In 1890 she left her home in Tecumseh and took up her abode with her brother, Scovel J. Walker, in the township of Norvel, where her declining years were happily spent and where she passed peacefully to her final rest on Tuesday, July 23d, 1895. She was never blessed with children and her household duties seemed to be only a pastime for her. She possessed a peculiarly cheerful disposition, was friendly with everyone and never knew an enemy. For over fifty years she was a firm believer in the beautiful philosophy of Spiritualism, which made her earthly pilgrimage bright and happy, her transition joyous and peaceful. The funeral obsequies were held at Mr. Walker's residence on July 25th, conducted by H. C. Andrew, an inspirational speaker, of Bridgeport, Mich., assisted by Rev. J. Merrifield, the Universalist minister of Manchester. The remains were then conveyed to Tecumseh and deposited by the side of her husband's on the family lot in our Evergreen cemetery. Let us trust that her spirit is already communing with the loved one who has gone before.

Card of Thanks.

W. W. Marsh and family wish to extend thanks to all those who kindly assisted with help and sympathy during their recent bereavement. Also, to the Masonic brothers in recognition of their beautiful floral offering.

The survey has been completed and a new company has been organized to build the road. The new company name is the Addison & Cincinnati, but the same men are back of it that are interested in the C. J. & M. It is necessary for Brice to organize a new company, as the C. J. & M. is in the hands of a receiver, but when he steps out the two companies will be consolidated. Until that time both lines will be under the management of the C. J. & M. The extension will be from Addison to Jackson, a distance of twenty miles. At Jackson it will connect with the Grand Trunk.

The Evening Telegram of Wednesday says; Daly and Munda, two of the prisoners who escaped from the Toledo jail on Saturday have been heard from. Yesterday morning while Sheriff Tual, of Lucas county, and his deputies were busy mailing circulars containing descriptions of the "birds" he received a telegram from Chief of Police Raitz, who has been on the still hunt in Michigan, near Tecumseh. The telegram announced that the Chief had forwarded a coat for identification and stated that Munda and Daly had been seen in that vicinity. The chief instructed the sheriff to send all instructions to Sheriff Judson, of Ann Arbor.

The University of Michigan has fallen heir to six scholarships of $200 each, to be derived from the income of property bequeathed by Henry Phillips, Jr. of Philadelphia. By his last will and testament Mr. Phillips gives four pieces of property in Philadelphia to the regents in trust asking that it be neither mortgaged nor sold, as it will in time become of considerable value, being in the heart of the city. The scholarships are to be known as the Phillips scholarships. Phillips was a great friend of the late Prof. Frieze, and was intimate with President Angell. He is not an alumnus of the university. He stipulates that the scholarships shall be given to students who spend at least one-fourth of their time in the study of Greek and Latin. Mr. Phillips was secretary of the American Philosophical society. It is not known in Ann Arbor whether he is dead or not, and the university will probably not realize on the gift for some time.

Six prisoners escaped from the jail at Toledo last Saturday. One was soon recaptured. The other five, including John Munda, with whose deeds and history Tecumseh people are familiar, are still at large. Rewards aggregating $1,000 are offered for their capture and return. The local constabulary here have been somewhat active this week, as it is believed that Munda and one of his pals were located Sunday one mile north of Ridgeway. While the family of Frank Wintersteen were at church, tramps entered the house, helped themselves to refreshments and exchanged a coat and trousers for one found in the house. The cast off garments were concealed and when found were supposed to belong to Munda. However this may be, the former wearer left no part of his person in the cloths and so far has taken good care to keep himself out of sight. The reward is still good, and here is a rare chance to make a bundle.

MICHIGAN MINES.

Strikers Decline to Accept Offers of Settlement—Mines Ordered Closed.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Aug. 20.—The striking miners at their mass-meeting Monday decided not to accept the company's terms, and will not return to work. This has caused great dissatisfaction among the men, and many of them have declared their intention of returning to the mines to-day and asking for work under protection. This, it is believed, will break the strike.

NEGAUNEE, Mich., Aug. 21.—The Star of the West mine, near here, resumed work at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, paying full schedule demanded by the miners' union. The big mines remain recalcitrant and several have stopped pumps. The miners regard this as a big bluff, and are preparing for a sixty days' further strike. The men remain peaceable with very little drinking, but are fully determined.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Aug. 21.—All the pumps in the Lake Angeline, Salisbury, Cleveland, Lake Shaft and Number Seven mines of Lake Superior are stopped. The fires are out of the boilers and the machinery is being painted to prevent rusting, and the buildings are being boarded up. The companies have decided that they will remain idle till winter.

WAYNE COUNTY CELEBRATES.

Her Ninety-Ninth Anniversary Observed at Detroit.

DETROIT, Aug. 19.—Sunday was the ninety-ninth anniversary of the issue of letters patent that brought Wayne county into existence, and on Saturday thousands of people held a celebration on Belle isle. Wayne county at the time of its organization included all the states of Michigan and Minnesota and parts of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Wisconsin. Fifty years ago there was a similar celebration at which Belle isle was named and the only surviving pioneers who were present at that event are ex-Senator Thomas W. Palmer, John Sabine and J. Willis Moore. At the formal exercises Saturday, after addresses by W. C. Maybury and others, the audience joined in singing the same songs that were sung half a century ago, together with "Auld Lang Syne." Perhaps the most honored of the guests was Mrs. Steven B. Mason, widow of the first governor of the state of Michigan, who now resides at Toledo.

Legion of Honor Meets.

DETROIT, Aug. 21.—The biennial session of the supreme council of the Order of the American Legion of Honor opened at the Hotel Cadillac on Tuesday. The meeting will last four or five days. There are forty-nine delegates present. John M. Gwynnell, of Newark, N. J., supreme commander of the order, called the first session to order. The entire session was taken up by the reading of reports of officers and the presentation of documents from different states, principally proposing amendments to the by-laws. Supreme Treasurer Kendrick reported his receipts for the two years to be $234,235.31 and disbursements $192,364.11, leaving $41,861.20 on hand June 30, 1895.

Didn't Know It Was Loaded.

NILES, Aug. 18.—An accident which will probably result fatally occurred here Saturday afternoon. Three young boys—Herman Wirtz, aged 16; John Walker, aged 13, and Bert Welling, 15 years old—while in swimming were approached by Garfield Finley, a colored boy, who carried a shotgun which he claimed was not loaded. In a playful manner he pointed it at the boys and pulled the trigger. The gun went off and the three boys were struck by the flying shot. Wirtz was only slightly injured, but Welling and Walker were badly hurt by the shot. The doctors say the wounds may cause death.

PRISON FOR LIFE FOR A BOY.

First Degree Verdict Against George Chesebro, a 17-Year-Old Murderer.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Aug. 20.—George Chesebro, the 17-year-old youth who was convicted of murdering his grandmother, Mrs. Levi Pierce, on July 8 last, was sentenced to life imprisonment at Jackson Monday.

[Six weeks ago, in the town of Talmadge, Mary E. Pierce, a woman aged 54 years, was found dead in her kitchen, frightfully mutilated. Mary I. Pierce, the youngest daughter, and George C. Chesebro, the grandson, were arrested for the murder. The trial of the latter took place this week. Before the justice he confessed the deed. The boy is 17 years of age and the girl 13. The trial of the girl will take place at this session of the court. She is supposed to be the real prime mover in the crime, but it is doubted if she can be convicted. She appeared as a witness against her nephew and a more hardened and dogged witness never appeared on the stand.

According to the story told on the witness stand by the girl her mother was mopping the kitchen floor and became angered at some remark which the daughter made. She procured a switch and was about to apply it when the grandson interfered and killed her. The grandson's testimony agreed with the daughter's as to the beginning of the trouble. He said his grandmother came at him with a knife and when he took that from her she grabbed a stick of wood. He pleaded self-defense in using the poker, but did not explain the necessity of beating the old lady until her neck and head were covered with bruises and then jumping upon her prostrate body with his feet.]

When the squall came portions of the front and rear walls collapsed, several men being hurled from ladders and scaffold and buried in the ruins. Frank Senova was on a scaffold outside the rear wall when the crash came. The scaffold fell and Senova was buried under two feet of brick and mortar. Death must have been instantaneous, for his body when dug out was found to be badly mangled.

THE ONWARD MARCH

of Consumption is stopped short by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, if you haven't waited beyond reason. There's complete recovery and cure.

Although by many believed to be incurable, there is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its earlier stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cod liver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps. You can then write those cured and learn their experience. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N.Y.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning Aug. 25. Comment by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M. Topic, The Demoniacs In Gadara.

SCRIPTURE READING. — Math. viii, 28-34; Mark v, 1-20; Luke viii, 26-40.

After stilling the tempest on the lake of Galilee Jesus and his apostles arrived at the southeastern corner of that sheet of water in the country of the Gerasenes, not far from the city of Gadara. Passing up the rocky road to the town built on the hill, on either side were seen caves, partly natural and partly artificial. Some of these were used as burial places, and some even then, as in later years, served as dwellings. The insane and demoniacal suffered little restraint, but were allowed to wander where they pleased. Two such approached the party from Galilee. One was particularly violent, and his cure by Jesus had much after influence on the community. The demons when driven out of the man entered a herd of swine and destroyed them in the lake.

Alarmed by such manifestations of power and disturbed by the loss of the swine, the people of the place, with much earnestness, asked Jesus to leave that region. Semiheathen, if not wholly so, they did not discriminate clearly nor see the great deliverance which had come to the man hitherto possessed with evil spirits, but felt severely the loss of their property.

The healed man was refused permission to go with Jesus, but was told to go home and tell how great things the Lord had done for him. In this way the gospel would be preached where Christ would not then be received and the way opened for a return at some future day.

His Mark In Their Foreheads.

Bishop Galloway, writing from southern India to the boys of The Epworth Era, speaks of the many and peculiar marks on the foreheads of the people in that land. "Some have a round red dot in the center of the forehead; others paint it white. Then there are lateral and vertical white and red stripes, and also marks at different angles. These have a religious significance, denoting the god they worship, the sect to which they belong and the fact that their devotions have not been neglected."

Is it not some such custom as this which is referred to in Rev. xiv, 1, and xxii, 4? What depth of spiritual meaning underlies this custom. Truly one shows in his face the mark of the God whom he serves. He needs not to paint it, for all life forces of body, mind and spirit co-operate, and he is surely transformed into the likeness of that one whom he has in his heart enshrined.

Worship the Lord of life and let his glory change you daily more and more into his likeness.

Expenses.

It cost in 1894 to support all grades of our ministers, pay the current church expenses, repairs and improvements on church property, $22,184,209.

The total contributions to connectional benevolent societies was $2,370,650. Of this sum $1,323,600 was expended on work in the United States and $1,047,000 in foreign fields.

The Missionary society received $1,184,109. Yet so vast is the work and so pressing the need that the financial depression has seriously affected the treasury, and a debt of $175,000 has necessarily been incurred to keep up work already begun. How easily this could be met if the individual members of the great Methodist host would each lift a little! What immense advance would be made if each would do his proportionate share according to his ability and his pledged word of honor given to God and the church when he joined in full!

Value of a Vacation.

Some are good and some are good for nothing. It is not the time one has to spend, but what he does with it which shows the length and value of one's recruiting time. All busy workers need occasional change of occupation and scene. Energies become exhausted by too long continued application in the same line. It is unwise to neglect too long a needed rest. Many a one has been made foolishly sensitive at the remark that the devil never takes a vacation. Well, suppose he doesn't! What of it? Are we to follow him, or shall we do as Jesus bade his disciples, go apart a little while and rest? Use your vacation wisely, so as to return to work with vigor and spring, and not jaded out by a feverish whirl of excitement.

A Good Excursion.

Many of the railroad and steamboat lines run cheap excursions at this season of the year. It is a good idea to get a company of Leaguers together and make a trip either to some seaside, country or mountain resort. Appoint one person as mineralogist for the trip, another as botanist, some to collect shells or bugs, some to be geographers, others chroniclers, and so give to as many as possible some special work to do. Let each one learn all possible of the subject assigned. Then have an evening when the results of all committees shall be given in short papers or talks. These can be illustrated with photographs taken on the trip, cuts from books and papers, drawings or diagrams.

Boxed Up.

A little girl, in rummaging in a trunk, found her mother's church letter, which had long been neglected and never handed to the proper church officer. Rushing up to her mother, she cried, "Oh, mother, I've found your religion in your trunk!" That is where too many keep their piety as well as their church letters.

Let It Alone!

In the summer time some are tempted by physical weakness to use beer or some mild stimulant who would be shocked to think themselves in any danger. Many a one has found this the opening of the road to dissipation. Better not meddle with it. Rest, recuperate, but let beer alone.

MONTANA'S SILVER STATUE.

The firm of W. L. Milner & Co., of Toledo, have a unique daily show at their store, commencing with the week of August 12. The world-famous Silver Statue sent by the State of Montana to the World's Fair and admired by hundreds of thousands of people at Chicago, will be on exhibition in their store free of charge. This is the same statue for which Ada Rehan, the famous New York actress, posed as a model; the same statue that cost the State of Montana for silver alone $64,800; the same that has been shown in all the big cities of the United States, and which people have come miles to see. The figure is nine feet high, every part delicately and beautifully modeled from purest silver. The figure stands, as in the illustration, upon a globe of gold, the scales of Justice in one hand and the sword of right and retribution in the other. This statue created a greater sensation before it was first shown at the World's Fair than any other attraction the big exposition produced. Columns upon columns of matter were written concerning the beautiful model Ada Rehan, the jealousies of other actresses who aspired to the honor of posing, concerning the men who sent it from Montana, the industries represented, the novelty of the idea, etc. It has never ceased to be a tremendous drawing card throughout the United States, and is certain to attract a throng of people in Toledo. In order to make the exhibition of the statue in this city an event to be remembered a remarkable contest will be conducted to decide the temper of the people of Northern Ohio on the all-important question of Free Silver or No Free Silver!

Every legalized voter seeing the statue will be given a ballot marked either "For Free Silver" or "Against Free Silver." Careful record of the votes will be taken and the results published in the papers from day to day. No repeating will be permitted. Each legalized voter will be permitted to cast only one ballot, and one ballot only. The votes will not be juggled. The contest will be strictly on its merits. The firm of Milner & Co. are desirous of knowing just how the people of that city feel on the coinage question, and they have taken the quickest and best way of finding out.

"M. Quad." the Famous Humorist, Takes his Old Place on The Free Press.

We find great pleasure in announcing to our readers that Chas. B. Lewis, the famous "M. Quad." has resumed his former place upon The Detroit Free Press. Since his retirement from The Free Press four years ago Mr. Lewis has been writing for one of the leading syndicates. His preference for direct newspaper work, however, led him to abandon that connection, and hereafter his popular writings will appear only in The Free Press. Mr. and Mrs. Bowser, Brother Gardner, Arizona Kicker, Zeb White, Abe Crofoot, Mrs. Gallup, and many new characters will appear regularly.

The publishers are making a special four months' trial offer of the Semi-Weekly Free Press for 25 cents to introduce their paper to new readers, and we would advise those looking for a great bargain to send in their subscription at once. The offer is good only until August 1.

COIN'S FINANCIAL SCHOOL.

This little book is one of the most extensive treatises on the money question that has ever been written. It shows up the evil effects of our present monetary system in a most emphatic manner. Every voter in Lenawee county, regardless of party affiliations, should read it. The Chicago Times says: "A book that will create a profound impression throughout the United States." The New York Recorder says: "It mercilessly scourges the money changers in the Temple of the Republic." The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "This book tells its readers more about gold, silver and currency, generally, than any other publication we know of, and in a way that every man can fully comprehend." A supply is kept on hand at the HERALD office. Single copies 25 cents. Every new advance paying subscriber to the HERALD will receive a copy free. Now is your time to get good reading cheap. Pass in your orders.

New York World—Thrice-a-Week.

The twice-a-week edition of the New York World has been converted into the Thrice-a-week. It furnishes 3 papers of 6 pages apiece, or eighteen pages every week, at the old price of one dollar a year. This gives 156 papers a year for one dollar and every paper has 6 pages eight columns wide or 48 columns in all. The Thrice-a-week World is not only much larger than any weekly or semi-weekly newspaper, but it furnishes the news with much greater frequency and promptness. In fact it combines all the crisp, fresh qualities of a daily with the attractive special features of a weekly. Club rates with the HERALD.

FLIGHT.

Marcus Hulings, with his wife and baby, was a settler in the Juniata in 1755. While plowing one day Hulings was informed by a Mohawk Indian that a band of hostile savages was but half a day's journey away.

In the next valley, three miles across the mountain, a settler named Hugh Glen had taken up a grant of land in the previous year. The family consisted of a man and wife and two full grown boys. The Mohawk admitted that he had not warned the Glens, and he refused to do so now, as he had to push on as quickly as possible to the main river.

He advised Hulings to flee at once. But the Swede was too brave and unselfish to abandon his neighbor to almost certain butchery.

"What shall I do, Elsa?" he said. "My first duty is to you and the child."

"You must warn the Glens, Mark," was the plucky woman's reply. "There is still plenty of time if the Indians are half a day's journey off. While you are gone I will get ready to start for the fort."

Hulings kissed his wife and child and hurried from the house with his musket over his shoulder. It was 4 o'clock when he reached his neighbor's clearing.

Hugh Glen lay dead inside the door, almost within touch of the body of his wife. The boys, James and Archibald, lay near the window.

For a moment a mad thirst for vengeance drove all else from Hulings' mind. Then, with a keen pang of anguish, he remembered his defenseless wife and child and instantly he was out of the house and speeding like a deer across the clearing.

Twilight was shrouding the blue river when he staggered across his own clearing. He saw the black horse saddled and bridled and tied to a sapling. Then the door flew open, and Elsa came out with the baby in one arm and a musket on the other.

"All is ready," she said. "In that bundle on the floor are some things we must take along. I hid the cradle and a good deal else in the bushes and drove the cow and sheep back into the woods. Our poor, kind neighbors!"

He helped his wife into the saddle and gave her the sleeping child and the bundle. Then, with a last look at the deserted home, he strode into the forest, leading the horse after him.

After an hour the fugitives reached the Susquehanna and forded a shallow stretch of water to an island—now known as Duncan's island—that lay abreast of the mouth of the Juniata. There was yet the main channel of the river to be crossed—a three-quarters of a mile wide surface of swift and troubled water. Then eight miles down the other shore was Fort Hunter and safety.

"Here, take my gun, Elsa," he said, "and stick tight to the saddle. I'm not going to mount till I get across. I can pick the way better on foot."

But just as he entered the water his wife checked him with a low cry of dismay. "Oh, Mark, the money! It is still in the crack of the logs beside our bed. How could I have forgotten it?"

Huling had never doubted that the money was in the bundle or in Elsa's bosom. For a moment he was vexed and inclined to sharp words.

"Give me the musket," he said. "I am going back. Twenty gold sovereigns are well worth the journey. We have saved them for three years, and now the time of need is coming. We will be obliged to start afresh if the savages destroy our home and crops."

His wife begged and entreated him not to go, but he judiciously reasoned with her and finally won her reluctant consent. She firmly refused, however, to push on to the fort alone, and this point he had to yield.

Hulings helped his wife to dismount with the sleeping child and placed them and the horse amid thick bushes a little back from the lower end of the island. Then, musket in hand, he hurried to the upper point and waded noiselessly to shore.

On reaching the clearing Hulings found his fears realized. A bar of yellow light was flashing on the ground before the cabin door. He crawled on hands and knees to the rear end of the cabin and peered through a crevice in the back room. Here he saw a painted warrior holding a blazing torch in one hand, while with the other he ransacked a chest of drawers.

He quickly decided what to do. Gliding to the door, he entered and gained the threshold of the inner room without detection. Then the Shawnee straightened up with a start, to find himself covered by Hulings' musket.

Just then Hulings discovered a bloody scalp dangling at the savage's belt, and he recognized Hugh Glen's iron gray locks. His blood boiled with rage, and he was about to reverse his musket and brain the assassin when he made a startling discovery. A looking glass that hung over the bed showed him a second Indian creeping up behind him with raised tomahawk.

Like a flash Hulings wheeled about with a yell and fired point blank. He saw the savage reel and fall, and instantly he turned again to confront the Indian in the back room.

The latter had by this time grabbed his gun from the bed, but before he could raise it to shoot the maddened settler was upon him with clubbed musket. There was a dull crash, and Hugh Glen's murderer lay sprawling on the floor with a broken skull.

Hulings snatched the Indian's gun and jerked the bag of gold from between the logs. As he dashed for the cabin door a third Shawnee stepped upon the threshold.

The Indian hurled his tomahawk, but Hulings dodged the weapon and then fired. Without awaiting the result of his shot he fled to the inner room, slammed the door shut and trampled out the torch. He took his own gun from the bed and dropped the other. With two blows he demolished the window sash and shutter and leaped through. As he sped across the clearing behind the cabin he heard yells and the reports of half a dozen guns.

Hulings made a short detour toward the mountain before striking the bridle path. Then he hastily reloaded his musket and started off with long, rapid strides. In running he was a match for any Indian.

He was far from exhausted when he reached the Susquehanna and started to wade to the island.

He pushed on, alternately swimming and wading, and came safely to the east bank. Then he imitated the cry of a screech owl, a signal of long standing between himself and wife, and almost immediately he got an answer from a little distance.

Hurrying down the shore, he found Elsa and the child on the horse, and in a canoe near by were Gideon Galbraith and his son, neighbors who lived ten miles up the Juniata.

The whole party reached Fort Hunter in safety that night and remained there during the perilous and trying weeks that followed.—Exchange.

AVERY & CO.

ALONG THE BEAUTIFUL RHINE.

A Visit To Some of the Old German Castles and Cathedrals.

FRANKFURT, July 25, 1895.

ED. HERALD:—My last letter closed with an attempt to describe Holland, or the strip into which we innocently strayed. A peculiarity which I omitted is the frquently seen stone towers, round and teapot shaped or truncated cone. They seem absolutely useless, and just hanging around, as we say. They look fully as intelligent as the round shouldered, sluggish Dutchmen who stare at us as we pass. Pharaoh's chickens are the only bird I can see that the latter resemble, and they are as impervious to impressions as an armidillo. The country is perfectly level, so they never have to look up nor down, and therefore gaze churlishly and gloomily ahead.

We were nearing the German boundaries, and as our fears by day and our nightmares by night had been of the German custom-house, we had many and ominous thumpings about our hearts and we quaked inwardly. At last we sighted the dread monster and advanced with unsteady wheels to the ordeal. A big, smiling faced German in an awe-inspiring uniform accosted us and we said we were Americans and began fumbling for our passports. The monster said in good, honest German; "All right, gentlemen," waved his hand majestically and let us pass without seeing a paper. We hastened along until out of sight and then went into convulsions and pounded each other for joy.

Aix la Chapelle is inhabited by people endowed with more than human curiosity. No sooner were we well in the city than we were surrounded and gently mobbed. Small boys fought and bled for a sight of us and we feared police intervention. At last, by leaving our wheels at our hotel and taking refuge in an old cathedral built by Charlemagne, we escaped the crowd and witnessed one of the most impressive services imaginable. In that vast nave, amid hundreds of devout worshipers, with the solemn hush followed by the chant of the choir, reverence and awe was all one could feel.

On the following morning we set out for Cologne, 50 miles away, and though it rained continually yet the roads were perfect and at noon we reached our destination. What can I say of the Cologne cathedral? One can only think that grand edifice. Gothe said of gothic architecture, that when we look up and think of climbing there, thought itself slides off, and indeed it does here. One cannot grasp its immensity mentally. Only the physical activity of walking and climbing convinces one of the real dimensions. I don't burden you with all we see in cities because Baedecker or Bayard Taylor or Mark Twain can furnish that so much better, but I assure you that, with true American enterprise, we get a rapid view of all the guide book calls for.

As we neared the famous bridge of boats we got our first glimpse of the Rhine, and our eyes, loyal then to the Hudson, saw only a muddy, narrow stream not to be compared with the Hudson. But wait! Even patriotism succumbs to the charms of the upper Rhine and I have more to say. We left the city of perfumes, all of which, I assure you, are not sweet, and began to ride on the most wonderful road, as we believe, in the world. From Cologne to Bingen this road follows devotedly the curves of the river, level as a table and smooth as marble. Rain or shine—and we had both in rapid succession—the road is perfect. It is, as I said, a marvelous road and I would encourage every enthusiastic American wheelman to make that ride, if he has to sell his bicycle to get home. It would be a pleasure to ride there if both sides of the road were walled high with empty tomato cans. But when the mind and eye are delighted with every beauty that nature, art and antiquity can lavish, then the journey becomes a dream or a fantasy of beauty.

Our dream was much as follows: A short ride to Bonn brought us to the most picturesque portion of the river. From the west bank where we were throughout we saw the ruin on the Dragon Rock. This rock beetles over the broad, swelling Rhine and the vine-covered hillsides and the banks of trees and the cavern where Siegfried, the hero of the Low Countries, slew the dragon. The wine produced near here is called the dragon's blood. By bathing himself in the dragon's gore, Siegfried became invulnerable. I suppose that is what those who soak themselves in wine in this region are seeking to do. On Basaltic rock beyond and on the west side is Roland's arch, a castle remnant, about which clings a legend which I must briefly tell you. It relates how brave knight Roland saw and loved and wooed the daughter of the lord of the Seven Mountains. Then Charlemagne summoned him to the crusades. Hildegrunde, the maiden, heard sad rumors of his capture by infidels and she entered a cloister. Roland returned and found that Hildegrunde was lost to him. He built this castle, whose crumbling arch remains, and lived in solitude, watching daily the pensive nun at her devotions. Then he missed her and after the funeral procession assured him that she was gone he spoke no more and at last was found dead with his lifeless eyes fixed upon the convent walls.

Our eyes feasted long upon the seven blue mountains whose graceful outline changed with every new point of view. Villas and the enchanting spires of old and modern churches pass constantly before the vision. Again and again, history animates a twice or a thrice dead ruin and the magic presence of Frederic Barbarossa or Charlemagne or some other mighty Teuton fires the imagination. The Apollinariskirche stirs the fancy with the associated tale of the ship which refused to go down the Rhine until the head of St. Apollinaris was deposited there. Frederic, the Red Bearded, was sending the head to Cologne.

For supper that first evening on the Rhine, we purchased rolls and a little butter, some eggs and a few cakes and we ate our meal while sitting in Nature's vast dining room with three romantic castles perched high above, and amid bird songs and rushing vine leaves. It was enough to make a poet out of a man. We seriously thought of climbing up and sleeping in one of those old castles that night, but thoughts of rheumatism and other possible ills deterred us and we very prosaically went to a hotel.

The next day we passed castle after castle, ruined walls and temples built by the Romans in their greatest days, churches and abbeys built by the sturdy Teutons, and the steep cliffs rising perpendicular from the wall. At one point, we climbed down the rocky wall and took a swim in the romantic river. While we thus disported ourselves, a passenger boat passed us and when they saw our wheels on the bank, the people seemed much amused. German curiosity still exercises itself upon us and it is an actual fact that they stopped a street-car which ran out to a suburb to allow the passengers and crew to examine us while we were oiling our wheels. Our pilgrimage resembles a pageant as we pass through villages and towns. Men and women in front and a tapering line of children in the rear. Perhaps a comet serves the metaphor better. Chimes of bells often greet us as we enter a town but we are modest enough to interpret that as merely announcing the hour. I can't tell you more now, but in my next letter I shall take you with me up to Bingen.

C. H. VANTINE

CORN CUTTING BEE.

The Trial of the McCormick Corn Binder at Frank Bryan's Farm.

C. A. Slayton, our agricultural implement dealer, has a deep feeling of sympathy for his overworked patrons who sow the seed and reap the golden, etc., and so he determined that all should have an opportunity to witness the operation of the latest labor saving device. This is the McCormick corn harvester. It was advertised to appear on Frank Bryan's farm Saturday afternoon and then and there, to cut and bind the standing corn—and this is just what it did. It actually cut and bound the corn without food, drink or watermelons. The performance drew like a circus and about 200 witnessed the new machine. When you get a machine or contrivance that will let a farmer out of corn cutting you will see him wide-awake and interested every time.

It is useless to attempt a detailed description of the machine here. To appreciate it you must see it, or go cut corn some hot, dry and dusty day yourself. The harvester is drawn by two horses. The corn is drawn over two stationary knives by endless chains and from thence upright to the binder which is very similar to that on the wheat harvesters. The machine is very simple with comparatively little gearing or complicated parts. The spectators were mostly practical farmers and well pleased with the machine and its work. Its practical utility and success as a corn-cutter is an established fact. It seems to be particularly useful and expeditious in cutting ensilage or fodder corn, and leaves the stalks in good shape for handling, and its advent will doubtless make the growing of fodder corn in quantities much more cheap and practical. Where large areas of field corn are grown this machine will soon become as indispensable as the small grain binder, as the saving in fodder will be immense. The only question here is the price. It will do the work, if the crops grown will warrant the purchase. If you wish to see the machine, get descriptions, etc., call on C. A. Slayton.

Prof. Ramsay's last conclusion is that argon and helium contain as a common ingredient a gas not hitherto identified.

JACKSON vs. TECUMSEH.

One of the Best Games of the Season On the Home Diamond.

Last Saturday the Jackson Athletic base ball team crossed bats with the home team on our grounds. This is the first time that a team from the Central City has played here for some time, though we have had many games with them in the course of our base ball history and good games they were generally. The last was no exception, being a very interesting game and perhaps as well enjoyed by the spectators as any played here this season, not excepting the league games. Though in former contests with Jackson our boys have a good majority of successes they were defeated in this by the odd score. Up to the last half of the 6th innings the game was all that any one would ask for, standing 5 to 8 in our favor. When the visitors took their 6th they set the ball rolling, and by good batting, with a little ragged, rattled playing and wild throwing by their opponents, they run in 8 scores. They did not get another, but this was enough. When the home team came to the platethey had vengeance of the same kind, with 5 scores, which was not enough, as they only got one more in the 8th.

Tecumseh took first innings with Scofield to the bat who got his base on balls and stole 2nd. Harris hit a grounder to Stinson in the box, who assisted the batter out at 1st. Gillen then made a safe letting in Scofield. Chambers popped a little fly to first, closing the deal with one score.

Mix took the first stick for the J. A. C. opening with a two-bagger to left. Mack made a single and Murphy let in Mix with a sacrifice hit being put out on 1st. McCleary, after 2 strikes sent a hot grounder to Chambers who made a good stop assisting Mack to the bench at 2d. F. Stinson made a safe, McCleary had stolen 2nd, and got 3rd. Cahil struck a grounder to Spaulding, he to Gillen, who retired the side by putting out Stinson at 2d. while McCleary scored on fielder's choice.

Spaulding opened the 2d. by striking out and Vecelius quickly followed him to retirement. It looked bad, but Hicks and Kennedy got bases on balls when Hughes drove the latter out for a chance to cross the plate. Now Scofield put a fly straight toward A. Stinson in center field, who made a hard run on the fallow. The effort was good but he didn't hold it, and Hughes and Kennedy got home, making 3 scores for the side, which was relieved when F. Stinson got Harris' grounder and shut him off at 1st.

A. Stinson fanned. Neesley got 1st by error to 3rd. and 2nd. on wild throw; another error at 3rd let Mix get 1st, when Mack made a safe and let in Neesley. Murphy then tryed a safe to left but Hughes got it, made a fine double to 2nd, retiring Mack and the side with one score.

The 3rd. and 4th innings were sooners, only 6 men to bat on a side in the two, and no scores. In the 5th each got a count making it 4 to 5. Good game. Tecumseh didn't count in the 6th, but Jackson—eight. They made six safes. They got hit twice by pitched balls one of which forced a man home. Errors and wild throws did the rest. Hughes took in a fly and Harris struck out two, finally ending the misery after 13 men had been to bat.

In the 7th our boys retrieved their fortunes partially and had it their own way till 5 were run up in their favor. Gillen found it for a two-bagger; three singles were made; three errors and a little wild throwing also assisted.

Only one score was made after this inning. The visiting team played very good ball and played all the time. Stinson seems to so pitch the ball that it comes back to him, he making 6 assists to first during the game. The following is a summary:

DOG DAYS.

Every dog
Has his day,
Of several of them.
These are our
Days, these hot ones.
I'm a dog and I
Don't like hot weather.
But I'm not going mad.
Why should I, when I
Can lie in the shade
Of the woodshed
And study the flies?
In August I feel like
An alderman.
Every one suspects me.
If I let my tongue hang out
The children scream.
Yesterday I growled.
What of it?
Every one growls in this weather.
But the woman next door
Heard me growl.
This morning I saw her
Put some white powder on meat.
The meat's over there
By the fence.
It can stay there.
I know a thing
Or two.
If I pass a hydrant
Without taking a drink
Some one points me out
And says I am mad.
I see men pass hydrants.
No one accuses them.
How about it?
I musn't slobber
These days.
Well, I should say not;
I can slobber all winter
And no one will Offer an objection.
But let me slobber
In August
And I have to begin
Ducking bullets.
Also I have to walk
Very slowly.
If I trot
Some wise guy yells
And tells every one to Look out!
Oh, but I have
To be careful.
Yesterday I smelled of
A boy's leg and
A large, frantic mob of Men, women and children
Chased me a mile.
Hello, here comes a policeman,
Now watch me.
Keep quiet.
I am not mad.
I am not mad.

A HANDFUL OF LACONICS.

To be a good listener is to possess as great an art as to be a good talker.

The girl who is the close confidante of her father makes, in nine cases out of ten, the best kind of a wife.

A pretty woman with nothing but her fairness to offer, invariably attracts men. But she seldom holds them.

It is singular and yet a fact that the virtues we are most loath to believe possessed by others are those we are incapable of ourselves.

It is a habit with some people when they wish their own virtues to look the whitest, always to use the faults of others as a background.

GONE HOME.

The quaint saying, "Death loves a shining mark," was never more aptly illustrated in this community than when the Angel summoned Genevieve Burroughs from her earthly to her heavenly home.

Genevieve Lancaster, the daughter of Franklin L. and Mary Lancaster, was born in Bridgewater, three miles east of Clinton, May 21, 1864. Five years later the family moved into the village of Clinton which, with two brief intervals, has since been her home.

She was a pupil in the Clinton high school and graduated therefrom with the class of '80. She then taught school for several terms in country districts and in the Clinton school. She was united in marriage to Charles S. Burroughs May 10, 1883, and began her matrimonial voyage with bright skies overhead and a happy little circle at her own hearthstone. One child blessed this union; Frank, now eleven years of age. In March, 1890, the family moved to Kokomo, Ind., but remained there only a short time. In September, 1894, she joined her husband in Oklahoma, remaining three months, and her health was much improved by the trip. For the past few years she has been a great sufferer from tuberculosis and for a few months her friends have been hoping against hope that a favorable change might ensue which would permit her to tarry with loved ones here below many years longer. Providence, however, had decreed otherwise, and on Thursday, Aug. 22, death came to her relief. These few words contain a recital of her earthly pilgrimage, but who can measure in words the happiness that reigned supreme in her household? Who can tell all the good deeds which she scattered like beautiful flowers along life's pathway?

The funeral obsequies were held at her father's residence last Saturday afternoon. Rev. W. R. Blachford read the burial service from the Episcopal ritual, and the members of Golden Rod chapter rendered the funeral service of the Eastern Star at the grave. Grace Smith, Minnie Hard, Carrie Draper, Libbie Scovell, Lina Jones and Grace Stevens, all dressed in white, acted as pall bearers. The display of floral emblems was profuse and beautiful, by which her sorrowing friends testified their love for the departed one.

The deceased was a woman of bright intellect and rare domestic virtues. In the relations of daughter, wife and mother she illustrated the highest type of womanhood. It is hard for the bereaved husband and friends to reconcile themselves to this dispensation; but they know that the best medical advice obtainable and the most watchful care were lavished upon the object of their devotion; they can always cherish in fond remembrance her Christian example, their best legacy on earth; they can look for consolation to Him, who alone has the power to comfort the sorrowing and to wipe away the tears from their eyes.

A Book for Young Men.

An immeasurable amount of suffering and injury to the human race, is due to the ignorant violation of physiological laws by the youth of our land. Ruinous practices are indulged in, through ignorance of the inevitable injury to constitution and health which surely follows. By every young man, the divine injunction, "Know Thyself," should be well heeded. To assist such in acquiring a knowledge of themselves and of how to preserve health, and to shun those pernicious and most destructive practices, to which so many fall victims, as well as to reclaim and point out the means of and cure to any who may unwittingly have violated Nature's laws, and are already suffering the dire consequences, an association of medical gentlemen have carefully prepared a little book which is replete with useful information to every young man. It will be sent to any address, securely sealed from observation in a plain envelope, by the World's Dispensary Medical Association of 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y., on receipt of 6 cents in stamps (for postage,) if enclosed with this notice. 1w

Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Orr & Temple's drug store. 2

CROSS-EXAMINATION

Could Not Weaken Such Testimony As This.

(From the Kalamazoo Telegraph.)

The following statement is one of great interest to many a citizen of Kalamazoo, and a man as well known as Mr. Wallace should carry more than ordinary weight with our readers. Here it is as taken down by our representative:

"My name is John A. Wallace. I am a member of the firm of J. A. Wallace & Co., doing business as tinners, etc., at 106 Eleanor Street, Kalamazoo, in which city I also reside. For the past nine or ten months I have been having attacks of kidney complaint, the pain in my back over my hips was very severe at times; my urinary system was also in a bad state of derangement, sometimes the urine was scanty and then again the amount would be excessive, and a difficulty of passage always existed. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills at a time when I felt that I was going to be sick, but their use warded off an attack, and I am now feeling very much better; the urinary organism has regained a normal condition, and the terrific pain in my back is much reduced in severity, while it is now fast going away altogether. I am continuing the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, with positive feeling that they will effect on me a permanent and speedy cure. I have unbounded confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills as a remedy for all kidney ailments; have good reason to be, as they have done so much for me."

Can you ask any more than this? Doan's Kidney Pills are relieving more backs of the burdens they have been forced to bear through the kidneys than all other means devised, and, better still, they are doing this right here in Michigan. Ask any one who has ever taken them and see what they will say.

Although L. C. Hoagland has been driving buggies at a song, yet some of the young bloods insist on making a one horse buggy do double duty after dark. Now why not chip in and get one built for her?

The Knights John Britton, Sam Underhill and Geo. Smith, accompanied by their wives, and Wm. Britton, are in Detroit this week attending the grand lodge conclave. We venture the assertion that they are enjoying themselves.

HEART DISEASE, like many other ailments when they have taken hold of the system, never gets better of its own accord, but Constantly grows worse. There are thousands who know they have a defective heart, but will not admit the fact. They don't want their friends to worry, and Don't know what to take for it, as they have been told time and again that heart disease was incurable. Such was the case of Mr. Silas Farley of Dyesville, Ohio who writes June 19, 1894, as follows:

"I had heart disease for 23 years, my heart hurting me almost continually. The first 15 years I doctored all the time, trying several physicians and remedies, until my last doctor told me it was only a question of time as I could not be cured. I gradually grew worse, very weak, and completely discouraged, until I lived, propped half up in bed, because I couldn't lie down nor sit up. Thinking my time had come I told my family what I wanted done when I was gone. But on the first day of March on the recommendation of Mrs. Fannie Jones, of Anderson, Ind., I commenced taking Dr. Miles' New Cure for the Heart and wonderful to tell, in ten days I was working at light work and on March 19 commenced framing a barn, which is heavy work, and I hav'nt lost a day since. I am 56 years old, 6 ft. 4½ inches and weigh 250lbs. I believe I am fully cured, and I am now only anxious that everyone shall know of your wonderful remedies."

Dyesville, Ohio. SILAS FARLEY.

BIG PROFITS ON Small Investments

Returning prosperity will make many rich, but nowhere can they make so much within a short time as by successful Speculation in Grain, Provisions and Stock originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system.

It is a well known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by systematic trading through Chicago brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who operates a number of two hundred dollar shares up to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand.

It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest the time they would otherwise understand system trading.

Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers it so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormous sums in short time.

A FINE FARM HOUSE.

One Sunday in May, 1894, the dwelling house of Horace Eaton, located on his farm about a mile east of Tecumseh, was destroyed by fire. The loss was a serious one to him, but he did not propose to go without a home any longer than necessary. He moved his family back to the Raisin farm and began work last fall upon a new and larger house upon the old site. The foundation and brick walls were put up last year and the interior finish has been progressing since. The work is so nearly completed that the family will move into their new home next week.

While going to Ridgeway the other day we halted a few moments to inspect the building and found Mr. Eaton himself there, superintending the arrangement of the water works. The main part of the house is a square, brick edifice, two full stories high with slate roof. This part contains a vestibule, two parlors connected by folding doors, a dining room and a family room. A wing in the rear contains a kitchen and wash room, bath room and closet. There is a cellar underneath the entire house, which is divided into four compartments, each having a cement floor. One of these contains the furnace and the others will be used for milk and ordinary kitchen purposes and a store room. A Floral Queen furnace has been put in for heating the house, and it has a hot water connection from which pipes run into the bath room. A large reservoir has been constructed above ground of solid stone walls, which will hold 75 barrels of water, and feed pipes run from this to both the house and barn. This reservoir will be fed by the windmill and is so constructed that the water will be kept cool in summer and kept from freezing in the winter. Lew Waldron is now doing the plumbing and getting the water connections in proper shape for use. This feature will be a great household convenience. The kitchen is arranged with a cistern sink, cupboards and other conveniences, which will make it a pleasure to get a meal. The whole interior finish of casings and doors is done in hard oil, showing the natural color of the wood, giving a tasty and cheerful appearance to the rooms. The carpets are being laid in the front rooms this week. When the details are all completed Mr. Eaton will have a beautiful home. May he live long to enjoy it.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

TWENTY-THIRD ANNUAL PICNIC

The Farmers' Picnic Did It. The Best Rain of The Season.

It rained,
It rained all the time.

But it didn't rain early enough, nor hard enough, nor long enough to spoil the picnic. It spoiled any quantity of dresses, foot-wear and frizes, but the picnic was a success.

It was neither hot, dry nor dusty. We have had hot, dry and dusty weather all summer, and what better diversion of the elements than a good, long, steady rain for a farmers' picnic. If a picnic dinner tastes good in the sun and flies, imagine how keenly appetising the same is when eaten in the buggy with rain water, mud and horse hairs.

Of course everybody wasn't there. The timid, embroidered-gown agriculturist was scared out by the sullen skies of the morning. But the hardy, horny-handed sons of toil, who dig prosperity and poor potatoes from the soil of those parts, were there. The fellow and his best girl, father and mother and the hired man were there, and they all got wet, muddy and hungry. However, that made no difference. Father had uncovered the summer-fallow and mother had set the wash tub under the eve-trough, and the harder it rained the more thankful and good natured the crowd become.

Probably not more than one-half the crowd paid admittance to the grounds that would have been there had the day been fair and propitious for out door amusement. Still it is safe to say the popularity of this annual gathering brought out over 8000 people to picnic and see each other at the lake. They could not picnic to any great extent, but they saw each other to complete satisfaction. Oh! those white, airy, fairy, picnic skirts. Oh! those cute new patent leather shoes. The rustic clothes lines of Lenawee will tell it all today in a vivid panoramic reality. Where were the disciples and advocates of dress reform? They should have been there, for surely no greater object lesson in that line will be seen. Even some stern men will be converted when they come to pay for those dresses.

The program which had been prepared for the occasion was very fine. But they didn't indulge in programs. Programs want nice, dry, ideal weather. The weather yesterday wasn't that kind. The program will be given next year. The balloon didn't go up nor the parachute drop. They will be saved until next year also, along with the white duck pants. They probably won't be worn again this year if ever.

Eight coaches took up the excursionists on this branch and they were all full. Large excursion trains also came from the south and west, and the grove seemed to be nearly as full of teams as ever in these picnic days. The crowd did not fill the grove to the usual extent, but they mostly congregated under shelter and there it seemed enormous.

The Devils Lake Farmers' Picnic is one of the great events of the season. What they lost in pleasure they knew they gained a hundred fold by the benefit of the rain and they and their friends will all be there next year.

Four pickpockets were looking for those fat wallets which some always carry to large public gatherings. They came off the C. H. & D. where they had operated the day before. The gang got off at Devils Lake by mistake, came back to Tecumseh for some unknown reason, and missing the freight were conveyed to the picnic by Garlinghouse Bros. They were a little late to operate at the grounds but began early on the trains by relieving a citizen of Macon and Ridgeway of their surplus cash.

Notice of Infringement.

A bill has been filed in the circuit court of Barry Co. (Hastings Mich.) by Drs. Mixer against C. M. Tower who it is alleged has been infringing on the trade-mark of Mixers Cancer and scrofula Syrup. A temporary injunction has been allowed by Judge Clement Smith restraining C. M. Tower from further use of said trade mark.

Hastings, Mich. Aug. 23, 1895.

To the wholesale and retail druggists throughout the country. We desire to give you notice of an infringement on our trade mark for Mixers' Cancer and Scrofula Syrup put up by one C. M. Tower and under the name of "Drs. Tower and Mixer Medical Co." Hastings Mich. Said Tower having no right or authority to use our name, "Mixer." The wrapper of this bogus medicine bears Dr. Mixer's portrait and is very similar to our genuine wrapper, but in every case can be detected, for on the face and back of our wrappers (which contains bottle) is our signature, "Drs. Mixer" in a bold back handwriting, every bottle also has Mixer's Cancer and Scrofula Syrup" blown in three sides, the bogus medicine being put up in plain panel bottles.

We earnestly request all persons using our C. & S. S. to be particular that they buy genuine goods, for the bogus medicine is put up without regard to merit. Examine the bottle which you now have and if it is not lettered as stated, and the signature of Drs. Mixer" on both wrapper and label return the same to your druggist or agent and exact genuine C. & S. S. In all cases avoid any medicine or circulars put out by "Drs. Tower and Mixer Medical Co." or C. M. Tower. Any person coming in contact with bogus medicine as heretofore described will confer a great favor by communicating with Drs. Mixer, Hastings, Michigan.

Very respectfully yours in the interests of right and justice to all the afflicted. DRS. MIXER.

We have been cleaning house at the HERALD office lately. The up-stairs rooms have been renovated and George Matteson was drafted into the service to do the necessary painting and papering. It is needless to say that his part of the job was done in a prompt and workmanlike manner, as usual. When you need anything in the painter's line, you can't miss it by calling on Matteson.

The entry list for the tri-state bicycle race meeting to be held in Jackson on Wednesday, September 4, will be a long one. Perfect arrangements are being made for the entertainment of riders and strangers. This is to be the last grand bicycle tournament of the season. Sid Black, the champion trick rider of the world, will give an exhibition. Fast riders will be there and several special races be put on.

Sir Knights Bresie and Johnson of Ill., and Ind., started Wednesday for the triennial conclave at Boston. The two knightly adventurers boarded the Devils Lake excursion at Toledo by mistake. Though somewhat disappointed at first, they had a royal day's outing, called it a good joke, and have signified their intention of attending the big picnic every year in the future. The Michigan rain water seemed to do them good.

Toledo Blade, 26: An amusing incident occured on a C., J. & M. excursion train returning from Devils lake last evening, and many passengers on board thought for a time the train was being held up for the purpose of robbery. Three bold tramps were the cause of the trouble, and they kept the trainmen busy for a time. The hoboes were trying to steal a ride on the trucks and were put off several times, but managed to return to their births on the bumpers. At Monroe Junction the train was stopped for the purpose of getting rid of the fellows, and there occurred a brief fight. This it was that alarmed the passengers and an incipient panic resulted.

An effort was made last Saturday evening to get the stockholders of the Tecumseh Library Association together at the reading room to discuss the feasibility of turning the library over to the school district as has been done in Adrian, Jackson, and many towns in the state, making it a free library and combining it with the present school library to the decided advantage of both, but as usual there was not sufficient interest manifested to get out enough of the stockholders to accomplish much. Mr. Kellogg gave valuable assistance by his advice, as did also Dr. Steinhoff. It was decided as the only way to reach a majority of the stockholders to get their consent legally to this plan, to have some forms prepared for proxy votes to be signed by them, which has been done. An adjourned meeting was appointed to be held next Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at the Reading Room when it is hoped there will be a good attendance. If the library is turned over to the school district no charge will be made for books, but every person in the village can draw books. A tax of one-seventh of a mill on a dollar's valuation, will support a free library and reading room.

The Wit and Wisdom club held a picnic Tuesday afternoon. If they had solely desired to sharpen their wit, they would have gone to the farmer's picnic. As it was, their wisdom prevailed and they went by themselves on a fair day.

Miss Clara Temple was married Wednesday at her father's residence in Ridgeway to Mr. Wm. McCrimmon, of Luther. A company of about forty witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. H. Cansfield. Miss Temple has long been a social favorite in Ridgeway and also has many friends in Tecumseh, who will unite in their congratulations and good wishes.

Dr. J. F. Jenkins' residence was the scene of a pleasing social event last Wednesday morning, when his daughter Mabel was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. E. Young, of Chicago. Rev. C. M. Brown tied the knot in his usual happy manner in the presence of a few family relatives. A wedding breakfast followed and the bridal couple took their departure on the Lake Shore train for Chicago. After a lake trip, they will take up their permanent abode at 230 43rd street. The groom is engaged in the dental supply business on Wabash Avenue. The bride has hosts of friends in Tecumseh who will extend their congratulations on this auspicious occasion and tender their best wishes for her future happiness as she leaves the old home. In these good wishes the HERALD heartily joins.

SHOT BY THIEVES.

Detective Is Killed While Trying to Arrest Train Robbers.

GRAND RAPIDS, Aug. 23.—Detective Powers was seriously and perhaps fatally shot in the head while arresting two of the train robbers who held up the Chicago & West Michigan passenger train Tuesday night near New Richmond, in a smoker of the 10:40 north-bound Grand Rapids & Indiana train Thursday night.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 26.—Detective George W. Powers, of the city police force, who was shot Thursday night, presumably by one of the Fennville train robbers on a Grand Rapids & Indiana train, died Friday morning.

McBAIN, Mich., Aug. 26.—A man supposed to have been one of the Chicago & West Michigan train robbers, and the murderer of Detective Powers, was shot dead Saturday night. He came here from Clare Saturday night. He was known here as John Smalley. His description tallies closely with that of the murderer of Powers, and his actions were such as to arouse suspicion.

About 8 o'clock Gillis McBain, of McBain, and Bert Spafford, of Cadillac, stepped to the open door of the house of Chip Brown, brother of Smalley's wife. Smalley was sitting in a rocking chair slightly behind and at the right of the doorway. McBain and Spafford called upon Smalley to throw up his hands. Instead of complying he threw his hands toward his hips and at the same time slammed the door shut with his feet. McBain and Spafford each shot through the door with their Winchester rifles. The man rose from his chair, took half a dozen steps toward the rear of the house and fell dead into the kitchen.

It was found one of the bullets went clear through his body, entering the left breast. The other entered his neck. On his person were found two big revolvers with all the chambers loaded. He had been arrested once before on a charge of train robbery, but was discharged for lack of evidence. It is known that Smalley was a member of the Cook gang in the Indian territory and while there his place was a rendezvous for the desperadoes of that section.

Detective Way, who was with Detective Powers at the time he was killed, has identified the remains of Smalley as those of the man who murdered Powers.

DETROIT, Aug. 27.—At the inquest at McBain Monday it was proved by Conductor Rice and Detective Jackway that Smalley, the dead train robber, was not only the murderer of Detective Powers but the leader of the gang.

SALVATION ARMY PEOPLE HELD.

Pontiac Arrests Causing Great Indignation Among the Citizens.

PONTIAC, Aug. 27.—The arraignment of the eleven incarcerated Salvationists was anticipated with a good deal of interest by many citizens. At 2 o'clock Monday the prisoners were brought in. In the case of five of the eleven the case was nolle prossed. Capt. Teed, his wife and four comrades were held for examination September 11 on a complaint for resisting the officers and were released on their own recognizance. There is evidence of much indignation with the authorities at their course in the arrest. The indignation meeting at the opera house Monday evening was attended by fully 2,000.

Miners to Get More Money.

HOUGHTON, Aug. 23.—Quincy, Wolverine and Kearsarge copper mines announce a 10 per cent. raise in wages, effective from August 1. The other six active mines in the district had previously announced an advance from the same date. The increase in Houghton county will amount to nearly $50,000 a month. The advance was voluntary on the part of the mine owners.

A Swamp Fire.

NILES, Aug. 24.—Fire has been raging fiercely in the large marshes between Galien and Three Oaks for the past few days and is spreading to surrounding woods. Many miles of fence has been destroyed, and farmers are in a state of despair, for fear the flames may be communicated to their homes, as everything is as dry as tinder. Men are working night and day trying to extinguish the fire.

Buried at Grand Rapids.

GRAND RAPIDS, Aug. 24.—The remains of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Greiner, the victims of the Gumry hotel horror at Denver, arrived in this city Thursday night over the Lake Shore road, and were interred in Greenwood cemetery Friday afternoon. The funeral at the German Lutheran church was one of the largest ever held in this city.

Says She Saw Him Die.

KALAMAZOO, Aug. 25.—During Friday night Mrs. Corydon Beach, of Galesburg, awakened her husband telling him that his brother Lysander Beach, of Hastings, was dead. SAND BEACH, Aug. 23.—The crew of the schooner Wanderer, which ran in for shelter, reports that they lost the captain, Alexander Spence, and a seaman named John Boby in a heavy gale [illegible] day.

MICHIGAN HAY.

The Crop This Year Shows a Heavy Shortage.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.—A hay famine in southern Michigan is one of the agricultural curiosities which the present week has developed. Ordinarily Michigan raises an immense amount of fine timothy. But this year, instead of sending to Chicago large quantities of hay, Michigan is keeping local dealers and shippers busy sending over the product of Illinois, Iowa and other states. A local dealer, who is making large shipments, explained the situation as follows:

"Michigan's crop of hay this year will not exceed one-fifth of a normal growth, and as a result the farmers must buy in order to have feed for their stock during the winter. I think as much as 2,500 tons have been shipped from here in the last few weeks. Most of the hay comes from Iowa, but Illinois contributes a fair share and some of it comes from Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas. Another reason for the increased demand from Michigan is that the corn crop is very poor there, and the usual quantity of fodder is not available for stock food."

FATAL FIRE AT MENOMINEE.

Two Children Will Die and Their Parents Are Injured.

MENOMINEE, Aug. 26.—Fire caught in a bed at a Michigan avenue boating house Sunday afternoon, kept by John Anderson, and his two boys, John and Mathew, aged respectively 7 and 5, who were asleep, were so badly burned that both will die. The father also was severely burned while rescuing the children and the mother jumped from a second story window with a little baby and fractured one of her legs. The house was partly destroyed.

C. Rankin, Lapeer, conductor; at St. Ignace, September 9, W. N. Ferris, Big Rapids, conductor; at Iron Mountain, October 3, W. H. Cheever, Milwaukee, conductor; at Detroit, September 3. The Detroit institute will be in charge of a prominent Boston educator.

Death of J. James L. Edson.

DETROIT, Aug. 26.—James L. Edson, head of the large wholesale dry goods firm of Edson, Moore & Co., died Sunday evening, aged 65. A week ago Wednesday Mr. Edson suffered a stroke of paralysis, and his life has since hung in the balance. He was born at Batavia, N. Y., and began his business career in Buffalo. He came to Detroit and entered the employ of Zach Chandler. In 1871 he, with Messrs. Moore, Burchar and Gillis, started for themselves, and to-day it is the leading dry goods firm in Michigan.

Formally Transferred to Michigan.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Secretary Lamont Tuesday issued an order turning over to the state of Michigan for use as a state park the military reservation, buildings and lands on Mackinac island, Mich. The transfer was authorized by an act of last congress and was made at the request of Gov. Rich. The lands are to be used only for park purposes, and whenever the state ceases to use them they are to revert to the United States.

Judge Long Served with Notice.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 28.—Judge Charles D. Long, of the supreme court of Michigan, who appealed from the decision of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia in his pension case to the supreme court of the United States, has not yet perfected his appeal by filing the record, and the attorney general has served notice on him that unless he does so by September 10 he will have the appeal dismissed.

Woman Mysteriously Disappears.

HOUGHTON, Aug. 28.—Mrs. Philip Schuermann, wife of the manager of the C. Schuermann Brewing company, left the residence of John Nelson in West Houghton at 9:30 o'clock Monday night to walk home, a distance of less than 2 miles. No trace of her whereabouts have been found, and foul play is feared. Searching parties are hunting for clews, and the lake may be dragged.

Tree Wrecks a Passenger Train.

KALAMAZOO, Aug. 24.—The passenger train on the Kalamazoo & South Haven road, due in this city at 6:20 o'clock p. m., was wrecked 3 miles east of Grand Junction at 5:40 o'clock p. m. Friday night, by a collision with a large tree which had been blown across the track by a storm. The engine went into the ditch.

Flames in a Packing House.

MONROE, Aug. 22.—About midnight flames were discovered in the cellars and packing house of I. E. Ilgenfritz & Sons, just west of the Lake Shore depot. The upper part of the buildings, which were frame, burned so fast that the firemen could save nothing. They were practically new and cost about $15,000.

Thereby "labor" and the period of confinement are greatly shortened. It also promotes the secretion of an abundance of nourishment for the child.

MRS. DORA A. GUTHRIE, of Oakley, Overton Co., Tenn., writes: "When I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, I was not able to stand on my feet without suffering almost death. Now I do all my housework, washing, cooking, sewing and everything for my family of eight. I am stouter now than I have been in six years. Your 'Favorite Prescription' is the best tonic before confinement, or at least it proved so with me. I never suffered so little with any of my children as I did with my last."

A WHITE PARASOL.

The day that Harold Barnes said goodby to the office force and went into the country for two weeks' summer vacation his numerous friends nodded to each other and remarked that it was about time that popular young man got away from work and worry, for of late he had grown thin and white and was looking fairly wretched. They were sorry to see him go for their own sakes, but glad on account of his, and the farewell greetings were filled with wishes for a restoration to health and all sorts of good luck and fortune and rest. And, feeling as if he would like to take all of them with him—for many of them needed rest as well as he—Harold thanked them heartily and bundled himself off into the country, leaving the city and the office, with all their manifold trials and tribulations, far behind.

It was a quiet, old fashioned little farmhouse where the health seeking young man finally decided to stop, with a motherly little woman who had "seen better days" in charge, and with acres of sloping lands and rich fields rolling away from it in every direction, while meadows of waving grass wound through by gurgling brooks and inhabited only by birds and little animals of every description stretched far away back of the low, never painted little home. An ideal spot the young man thought it the day he drove up to the gate to ask for a drink of buttermilk, and an ideal spot he found it when, a few hours later, his telescope trunk and valises were put down in the clean, best room and he himself ensconced there for the holiday. Before Harold Barnes had become a mere slave in the mercantile world he had achieved some little reputation among those who knew him as an indifferent poet, and though the last few years of his life had been such as to drive all that sort of thing out of him, when he found himself settled in this picturesque old spot, there came a sort of aftermath of his former harvests in the fields of rhyme and he went to work again lazily scrawling verses whenever the fancy struck him. And scrawling verses being conducive to retrospection, the past began to parade itself before his mind one day and bring back a great many things he might wish to forget.

There are very few men of Harold's age who have not either had or are at present going through with a love affair of some sort or other, and he, being a rather up to date young man, had left his far behind him. A long train of differences, misunderstandings and hot words caused by too little thought on her part and too much on his had caused the breach between him and Beatrice Harland. He had gone his way in a sort of dazed but determined belief that she was wrong and he right, and she had done likewise. When he found that she did not ask him to come back, he only plunged deeper into work and tried to forget, and she plunged deeper into society and did forget—for the time being. A few months later her father went west and soon after sent for his family, and thus the two who might have been happy lost sight of each other.

Young Barnes had dreamed of what might have been for awhile after the estrangement, but only for a little while, and today as he wandered slowly down the little crooked path leading out into the cool meadow, with here and there a sunny spot lighting up the long grass into more vivid hues, there was little thought of regret for the past in his contented mind. If he had not forgotten entirely, as men are so often accused of doing, he had put away that portion of his life so far it did not recur to him, until he reached the gnarled apple tree down by the brook, a quarter of a mile from the house. Then a sudden flood of memories came over him, and he stopped still and gazed before him at the object that had brought them back.

It was a little white parasol, so like the one she had once carried, and under which she had sat when the last quarrel reached its height, that his heart beat fast and his self possession fled like a cloud before the sun. The fluffy thing of lace and silk, stuck so jauntily in the ground near the old tree, drew him on as a magnet the steel, and before he knew it he was sitting with his back to the tree, looking longingly and with mixed emotions at that emblem of the long ago. For half an hour he moved not, while picture after picture of that past came before his mind. Then the handsome eyes closed, the pencil and pad of paper, with a half finished poem on it, dropped from his hand, and this romantic young man, who would have scorned to do such an unromantic thing had he known it, fell quietly asleep as if his heart had never been broken by any one.

Ten minutes later he woke to find the sun beating down on him—but through the white parasol, which had been carefully raised and placed where it would intercept the hot rays. Red with anger at himself, he started to his feet, when another bit of white silk caught his eye, this time just on the other side of the tree where he sat. For a moment he debated what to do, and then there stole out from under that white bit of finery a still whiter hand—a hand which he could never forget, asleep or awake. It was the same little fingers, the same little wrist and the same little pink palm.

Harold's heart was in his throat, and the love that had so long lain dormant sprang to life again in the moment that followed. Slowly the hand crept toward the white parasol, and slowly his crept toward the little one. A moment it hesitated there, and the next his strong, brown fingers had closed about hers, and a muffled little scream came to his eager ears.

"Beatrice!" he cried, springing to his feet and striding around the tree, "is it you indeed?"

To which very foolish remark she made no reply at all, though her eyes spoke volumes. The next moment the little white parasol had turned over and was sailing cheerily down the meadow before a merry breeze, while its owner was being crushed to a certain young man's breast and hearing all sorts of wild, sweet statements poured into her pretty ears.

And when Harold Barnes returned to work again a few weeks later his friends one and all assured him he looked 50 per cent better than he had for the last three years, to which he replied that he felt so too. As for the white parasol, you may see it any day in a certain pretty little hallway of a certain pretty little cottage, which is presided over by a certain very pretty little matron, whose calling cards read "Mrs. Harold Barnes."—E. J. Appleton in Cincinnati Post.

Had Learned the Lesson.

"At last I understand," sighed Mr. Homeflat wearily as he put a slat in the bedstead and saw that it didn't fit.

"Understand what?" said his wife, hammering the tack into the carpet.

"At last," answered Mr. Homeflat, "I understand the true force of that phrase 'a moving scene.'"—Chicago Record.

THE COLLEGE BOYS.

Out on the void and primitive chaos of the temperance reform one mountainous fact emerges to wit: That the issue between the church and the saloon is political. And the sword of the spirit of republican government is the ballot, which makes it imperative that we hit upon some chemistry to participate our super Christianity into ballot boxes. Not so much that it may at once control elections as that for the greater convenience and assurance of the politicians it may be known where and what it is in case they should see fit to coin it into statutes. It will be a great day for this country when the virtue of the church shall be expressed in available power against the wrong rather than in raising the price of licenses.

"God so loved the world"—that is politics—"whosoever believeth," that is personal rescue. Politics first, then personal rescue. "Then began he to upbraid the cities," etc., that is politics. "Come unto me," etc., that is personal rescue. Politics first, then personal rescue. The city, then the man. The lesser thought out of the greater. And it seems clear to me that when Jesus said, "Greater works than these ye do," he had in mind the larger life of later ages and the consequent adjustment of atoning service to a scale so large that they to whom he spoke, having never had any hand in public affairs or in any hope of it, may very well have failed to grasp his meaning. But times have changed. His disciples rule the world today, or can rule it, and when the Christian voter in dead earnest goes into the battle of the ballots in his master's name he will bring back to lay in the equal hand of womanhood such trophies as no hero ever laid at the feet of any queen.

Very slowly but very truly the truth has begun to dawn upon the church that her field is not alone the man, but the environment of the man, not alone the immortal soul, but the mortal body, the soles of the feet and better roads.

And so it has at length become peremptory that a Christian be a man. Some may think he ought to be a good man, but that is in advance of public sentiment" and fanatical, but he ought to be a man and not a paroxysm. A man I say, for I am speaking of voting, and as to that he would as well be an alien, an idiot or a baboon as a woman. Indians and aliens may be naturalized, convicts may be pardoned, but idiots and women can only be "protected." I mean no disrespect for our Christian civilization. We have done much for women, we men, we have abolished polygamy and brought divorce within the reach of all at a low price; opened many occupations to her at half the wages paid to men for like service. There is even a movement on foot to admit her to the ministry notwithstanding the horrible thought that she may by superior merit dislocate some men, God forgive her.

It seems a prevalent and most mischievous theory that the more one is a Christian the less he is a man, but I am persuaded that the more truly spiritual one becomes, the greater bodily impact will he make against the enemies of his soul, his home and his country. A Christian ought to be a man of affairs and power. That does not mean that he should be an alderman or anything disreputable, but he ought to be a whole man, not a mere voter, nor a mere fighter, but a symmetrical man, who, up to the limit of his gifts, will turn his hand to anything, wash weary feet, serve tables, nurse the sick, lead the flock, testify, fight, vote, legislate, for wherever in his providence God can use half a man, a whole one would do better.

In the human body nervous energy is manifested by two sets of nerves, which parellel each other throughout the system. They are called the sensatory and the motor nerves. By the first we get impressions; by the second we make impressions. The first acts from without inward, the second from within outward. By the sensatory apparatus I taste food, but by the motor I get it. The first without the second results in anaemia or starvation. By sense I hear a command; by motion I obey it. By sense I thrill with patriotism; by motion I carry a musket. If the sensatory nerve act one way and the motor another, it is paralysis or ataxy.

The voting church, which by a very poetic and beautiful idealism aspires to be and dares to call itself the body of Christ, is comparatively undeveloped in her motor function, due in part to miasmatic influences suffered by investigating somewhat too closely how the world is to be damned, when what it needs is draining and developing, but mostly to defective assimilation of the bread which cometh down out of heaven, through lack of exercise. She is, in fact, the most perfect illustration extant of pure vaso-motor existence, continuing to live by inscrutable spiritual operations, and owing to circumstances over which apparently she has no control. She does indeed some very pretty things in callisthenics, but it is a fact of triple significance, sanitary, economic and—vital, that she is at last compelled to "go to work for a living."

I must not seem to call her idle, she does work and exquisitely at light housekeeping, taking her meals as it happens," except table d'hote, with all the delicacies of the season, on Sunday, and being mainly occupied in sedentary ways, embroidering dollies, splashers, fascinators and the like, all very fine and very proper, no doubt, but conducive of hepatic lungs and anchylosed joints. The church is dying of tuberculosis, and it ought to start a revival right here for each one of you to ask himself, "Am I a drop of red blood in the body of Christ, or am I only a tubercle?" What she needs is to get out into the open, and have a baptism of immensity, and catch the long swinging strides of power, and feel the expansion of "all truth."

For lack of this Christian politics is in a bad way. Two-thirds of the Christian population are denied the right of suffrage, and nineteen-twentieths of the other third deny themselves the privilege of voting their real sentiments, but perennially yield their convictions to party exigency, and vote as they are voted. The tomato can tramp is not more regularly "voted" than the average Christian man. The tramp is handled in "blocks of five," and gets money or beer, the Christian men are handled in masses and get ease, customers and offices. A very prominent leader of young men and, in his way, the foremost man of his party, recently gave out the official utterance that the peril of their party was the "intolerance of morality." Every Christian member of the party was shocked and disgusted at the contemptible and brutal proposition, but nineteen-twentieths of them voted "amen" to it at the following election. Into the merits of that election I do not go, but leaders need to be taught that Christian conscience is not to be trifled with.

It is not because they are false or fools or weak intrinsically, but because they have not in large simplicity of utter faith received the spirit of truth since they believed.

In the last analysis the trouble is that the Christian voter does not think. Some can't, some are afraid to, because of the expense—it costs pulpits, popularity, customers to think of this thing.

Some distrust their own opinions, and some even doubt their own experiences. The average voter reads a newspaper whose editor smiles at religion and would not recognize an honest conviction if he ran against it; hears a speech, sees the chairman of the central committee, or is seen by the ward boss, and thinks he has thought, but the thought is second hand, stale, cold and paltry, but he rolls it over in his mind and warms it and thinks it is alive and his own, votes it and is in perpetual grief that nothing comes of it. Thus the Democratic politician in the south and the Republican politician in the north have manipulated the enemies of the saloon, and the parties persist and rotate and alternate in office, and the saloon grows sleeker and fatter all the time.

The boy said, "An elephant is a large animal with a leg at each corner and a tail at each end." Our politics is like that, the saloon wags both parties and is ambidexterous, so to speak—equally effective with proboscis or tail. The failure of the voting church is apparently the same case as that of the hen and a china nest-egg—she dosn't think and so contributes regularly to the plunder of her own product—which is an allegory, and a good one. Jeremiah, speaking of avarice, says, "As a partridge sitteth on eggs and hatcheth them not, so he that getteth money without right shall perish in the midst of his years and in the end shall be a fool."

Instead of "getting money without right" insert "casting ballots without thought," and you will have an excellent descriptive roll of the average Christian voter. Now, when a hen 'sitteth on eggs and hatcheth them not,' there is something wrong with the egg—the hen is all right, only she dont think. An egg hatches because there is something alive inside. If there is nothing in it but say, an unpleasant odor, an all wise Providence has made no provision to hatch that, and it is easy for us to see the evidence of design in that, because human wisdom is unanimous that in such a case success would be the worst possible failure, which is a reflection full of sweetness and light—but it is hard on the hen, for the more her eggs do not hatch the more she sits, until she grows morose, weary, dejected and mishen-thropic, and little by little her beautiful maternal instinct becomes acute insanity, and she will sit on anything—a rotten apple, a little gourd—even an old nest with nothing in it. I have carried such a misguided fowl out into the barnyard and put her on the ground, and she would simply settle down to incubate the terrestrial globe—crazy about sitting! And so it goes on until some morning the poor, emanciated body is found dead on the nest and flung over the back fence with the reflection, "Another good old hen gone to Ge-hen-na." Now, when a Christian voter behaves like that he is called very "spiritual," but the true diagnosis is that he is insane about his nest, and it is all one to him what is under him, or whether anything. And so we have the funny but pitiful spectacle of the voting church brooding over the foul straw of an empty nest year after year—and hatching vermin to prey upon her own flesh.

The figure is becoming unpleasant and we would better drop it. The voting church is incubating dead things or wicked things. We raise saloons because saloon men furnish the issues which the voting church incubates.

A TOO MODEST WOMAN!

Is such a thing possible?

It is.

Many a woman suffers month after month, whole years, because she shrinks from talking about her complaints.

Foolish do you say?

No, it is simply due to a natural, commendable modesty. Still she owes it to herself either to consult a good Physician or else to get the Zoa-Phora Medical Book on Diseases of Women and Children, and, after satisfying herself that Zoa-Phora is what she needs, obtain a bottle or a box of it and use it faithfully. Both the book and medicine may be obtained either direct from the Zoa-Phora Medicine Co., at Kalamazoo, Mich. or through your druggist. All correspondence is kept strictly confidential.

Electric Power for September.

Electric Power—always excellent—is unusually interesting in its September issue. The success which was predicted for this magazine at the beginning of the year has more than been achieved, and the high standard of excellence has been maintained and even exceeded. The articles which always treat upon the fascinating subject of electricity are being written in a more popular vein and are easily understood by those who have had no previous acquaintance with the science. The opening article is entitled "How Shall We Educate Our Sons For the Electrical Profession?" and is written by Nelson W. Perry, an eminent authority. The father of every boy should read this article; it may help him decide an important question—important to the boy whose future is considered. Harold McGill Davis continues his entertaining biographies with portraits of the "Editors of the Electrical Journals," and Ira W. Henry contributes an interesting description of "Electrically Lighted Buoys," which explains the lighting of buoys in New York Harbor, Sandy Hook and elsewhere. The usual amount of miscellaneous, literary and patent notes complete the number. The Electric Power magazine is certainly a valuable acquisition to any one's library.

Prof. Bell believes that telephoning by means of a ray of light will yet be commercially practical.

It is said that a fleet of electric launches will soon be in operation on the lake in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. A. T. Lyon of Detroit the Noted Patient, ... She Talks of the Means Used. It is an Interesting Story and Means a Great Deal.

The Same Means Used on Patrick Doyle of Lewiston, ... for Inflammatory Rheumatism and Paralysis with Perfect Success.

THE MOST INTERESTING SUBJECT OF THE DA...

In a neat, home-like cottage at 112 Fifth Street lives Mrs. A. T. Lyon, a remarkably pleasant and motherly lady who tells a very interesting story of her life and, incidentally, speaks of her gratitude for a remedy which has wrought such a wonderful change in her.

Said Mrs. Lyon to a Journal reporter:—"About 30 years ago, before we knew how to pronounce the word diphtheria, I was stricken with that awful disease which left me blind, nearly, and paralyzed in my lower limbs.

"There seemed but little hope for me, but I did improve gradually until I was able to sit in a chair and drag myself around the room by pulling the chair along with me.

"I doctored for years, but was not cured. I spent a great deal of money and tried many of the most noted physicians. They only gave me temporary relief. I never was well. Finally, I began to have dyspepsia. My stomach refused all food. I had the most dreadful feelings. I can not describe them. It was a peculiar burning sensation, as if I had been poisoned. I would fall down in the streets, and became so weak that I could not sit up only part of the time. I suffered intensely. Nothing seemed to do me any good. I became thoroughly discouraged. To add to my misery, I had trouble with my heart.

"One day a lady friend called to see me. She told me about the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I did not want to take them and it seemed foolish to bother with them when physicians had failed to help me. She said so much about it, however, that I was at last induced to try them. After taking the first half of the box I began to feel differently. They made me feel so much better. I continued taking them and they have made a different woman of me. I feel like a new creature. I feel better than I have since I was a girl.

"I am over sixty now, and I am stronger and can endure more than the ordinary young woman. I do my own work and feel well, which I haven't been able to say before for over thirty years."

How Patrick Doyle of Lewiston, Mich., Was Cured of Paralysis.

Paralysis could be well named the king of disease. Its insidious method of attack and terrible results is more than likely to baffle the best physicians. Until within a very few years paralysis was considered absolutely incurable, and as sure to cause death as a knife thrust in the heart or a bullet in the brain; but science persevered; no stone was left unturned in the eager search for a means of conquering this dreaded enemy of mankind. At last from Canada the welcome news was flashed to the far ends of the world that a remedy for paralysis and diseases of kindred nature had been discovered. Physicians doubted, newspapers investigated thoroughly, and it was soon proved that paralysis had been cured. This was the beginning of the fame of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

Since then reports of marvelous cures by this medicine have come from all parts of the world. That Lewiston has not been slighted in this good work is proven by the following as told a reporter of the Journal:

Patrick Doyle, a man more than seventy years of age, called at this office recently and related a remarkable account of his battle with disease and its final recovery. Everyone knows the nature of paralysis and how difficult it is to cure, so that his testimony is extremely interesting. He said:

"About six or seven years ago I was afflicted with inflammatory rheumatism, contracted while at work in a Manistee saw mill, and had to quit work on that account. A Visit to Many Old Castles and Other Objects of Interest Along the Beautiful Rhine.

CARLSRUHE, Germany, July 26, '95.

Dear Mr. Editor:—To resume my travels up the beautiful Rhine, I must begin with the storied old watch tower at Andernach, with its octagonal summit and the huge scar in its side which tells of French cannon in 1688. We stop and stare at such things, while the crowd stares at us. How important we feel to excite more interest than these venerable old ruins. Every town along here has some extraordinary wine. Either some knight of renown or hero died here and improved the wine or some dragon's blood still filters through the vine and gives a magic flavor to the liquor. At Newweid, are the Moravian Brothers, the Quakers of Germany, formerly followers of Huss. 'Love feasts' and the dwelling apart of unmarried brethren are peculiarities of this sect.

One of the charms of traveling in historic old Europe is the gazing reverently upon the tomb of some hero or great man, seeing his birthplace or the house in which some great work was accomplished. At Bonn, we saw Beethoven's birthplace; and throughout the Rhine valley, greater or less celebrities have hallowed many a spot and made it a shrine. The university buildings at Bonn are antique piles, crumbling, cracking, and replete with signs of age, I must hurry you on to Coblenz, where we stood on the Moselle bridge and were hypnotized by the power and majesty of the fortification of Ehrenbreitstein. That huge fortress has the appearance of growing there as it stands in its red sandstone massiveness on a bold, bleeding headland. Nature made it impregnable and man has improved on nature. It is so artistic that it is the charm of the river at this point. We viewed it again as we walked along the beautiful Rhine Promenade. The latter is a paradise for Cupid's victims and also for the less poetic.

Leaving Coblenz, we were soon again riding between the almost perpendicular walls of the river. It is wonderful how a garden is made and thrives on a slope of forty-five degrees. We call them Gothic gardens. The vines are grown on terraces only a few feet in width and as these are faced with flint and basaltic rock. It appears to one looking from below as if the vines grew upon rocks. One huge headland after another thrusts its nose out into the river and holds upon its seemingly inaccessible summit, a mighty ruin which tells of chivalry and, too, of dark ages and oppression. Throngs of historic associations surround the old Konigs Stuhl or king's chair, which stands now in lonely majesty by the side of the Rhine. Here so many German kings were chosen by the electors, who met in this open octagonal edifice of stone, looked upon the Rhine and chose a king for it. Every town along this wonderful Rhine is a picture with its ivy-coved church; its narrow, congested streets; its door-ways where dames as old, it seems, as their dwellings, sit and knit or merely croon; its old men, too, with their fat, wrinkled faces and the long stemmed pipes which smoke away as steadily as volcanoes; and, lastly, the ever present groups of soldier boys. Germany is a vast military camp and we see more young men in uniforms than without.

It is interesting to note the changes time has wrought. Benedictine monasteries and nunneries have become hydropathic establishments or museums; churches have become town halls, and jails, dungeons and wine cellars. The twin castles at Bornhofen have a legend pleasing and pathetic. Conrad and Heinrich, brothers, and lovers, of the beautiful Hildegrade, are the heroes. Heinrich leaves the fair prize to his brother and goes away to the Crusades. The father of the youths builds the legended castles for Conrad and his proposed bride. Love cools. Conrad goes also to the Crusades and returns with a beautiful Grecian bride. Hildegrade shuts herself in a lonely castle room and sees no one. Heinrich returns and chivalrously challenges Conrad to mortal combat. Hildegrade interposes, wins a reluctant reconciliation and retires to the convent of Bornhofen. The Grecian bride is false, Conrad begs his brother's forgiveness and the estrangement ceases; they live in the ancestral castle, while the new one is forever deserted. The Two Brothers, as the castles are called, are charming ruins. Near St. Goar we saw the castle derisively called the "Mouse" by the haughty owner of the "Kats" near St. Goar. We were not initiated according to the good old custom at St. Goar which compelled every stranger to choose one or two ordeals—water or wine. Water, and he got a good ducking in the Rhine. Wine, and he drank a goblet to the memory of Charlemagne, the queen of England, the reigning prince and then became a member of their society upon giving a small donation to the poor. Genial custom! Here attractions came thick and fast. The grand and gloomy, old castle of the Rhinefels, the "Bank," a sunken craig over which the water seethes in rapids and whirling eddies, its companionpiece the "Lurlei," the precipice from which the nymph used to entice the sailor to the cruel waters of the rapids. Heine saw the poetry of this and preserved it in his famous ballad. From poetry to business. There are salmon fisheries near here—oh, yes! and a famous echo.

The rocks of the Seven Virgins stand as a fearful warning to the girl, ambitions never to wed. The god wrathfully wrought this metamorphosis and now these sweet girls have to lie there in the wet forever. A few more castles and then the Pfalz, a tower standing on a rock in the midst of a Rhine stream. This edifice has a pentagonal tower and extremely unsightly roof but is very suggestive of song and story. At Rocharach, is the Gothic trefoil formed ruin of the church of St. Werner, built because the sainted boy, St. Werner, floated upstream after being murdered, and stopped there. Now we saw the most picturesque of all castles, the Rheinstein, and resolved to visit it. We clambered up the zigzag pathway where the rocks have formed in so many grotesque and beautiful shapes and at last stood at the castle gate. The castle has been restored in ancient style and we were piloted by a charming German damsel through armorial halls and massive pinnacled towers. A fine collection of armor and antiquities is shown and we saw the bedroom used by Frederick of Pruss'a. A short way down the river is the Bingen Loch or rapids and then the island with the mouse-tower, so called because the Archbishop Hatto compared the famine suffering people to mice and caused some to be burned in a barn, was pursued by the real vermin even to the tower of refuge and there devoured. Then Bingen, but that must wait until next time.

TWO SURPRISES IN ONE WEEK.

The residence of James Lowry on Shawnee street was the scene of two surprises the past week, which were in marked contrast each to the other.

It being known that Mr. and Mrs. Lowry were to return from Ireland on the Teutonic, which sailed Aug. 21st, some of their friends decided to give them a cordial welcome at their pleasant home on their return. The boat being due in New York Wednesday, Aug. 27th, it was decided to hold the reception Friday evening and preparations were accordingly made, under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Elliott and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cupples. Relatives and friends far out in the country, as well as in town, were invited to be present and make merry. Friday at last arrived and all arrangements were completed. When the noon train arrived without bringing the expected ones but little was thought of it, as but few thought they would arrive before evening. Evening came, and at the stated hour the friends, numbering over seventy, had assembled at Mr. Elliott's on West Chicago street. All were in the best of spirits. The train finally came and Mr. and Mrs. Lowry were not on board. When this was announced there was a change in the countenances of all. The surprise was the wrong way, and the faces of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott and Mr. and Mrs. Cupples were a study. All realized the tables were turned and the surprisers were the ones surprised. The situation was carefully considered and it was decided to devour the fatted calf, as it were, and try it over the following Monday evening. When the matter was settled, spirits revived and a pleasant time followed.

The expected ones arrived Saturday night, and of course soon heard of the joke they unconsciously played upon their friends, and rather enjoyed it. When Monday evening arrived everything worked like a charm and Mr. and Mrs. Lowry were the ones to be surprised. It was a success in all respects and enjoyed by all present in the highest degree.

ANNUAL SCHOOL MEETING.

Last Monday night was the first Monday night in September. Consequently there were a good many school meetings in the state of Michigan. Of course the tax payers of District No. 7 of Tecumseh township indulged in the necessary bit of legislation which it is their privilege and duty to exercise at least once a year. The ladies also had something to say, coming out in force claiming their one opportunity to exercise the right of franchise.

Moderator McKinnon presided at the meeting. Director North, as Secretary of the board, read the minutes of the last meeting, which were accepted. He then presented his report for the last year in detail which was adopted by the meeting. Prof. Kellogg then took the floor to present the estimate which he had made of the probable foreign attendance for the coming year and the tuition to be derived therefrom. He also stated that every graduate of '95 who had taken the teacher's examination had received a certificate, which fact speaks volumes for the thoroughness of the work done in our public schools.

Dr. North was the only trustee whose term of office expired on this day. C. A. Slayton and C. F. Field were appointed tellers and a ballot was taken to fill the vacancy, which resulted in 43 votes, 34 of which were cast for Dr. North. The doctor was then unanimously declared elected to succeed himself as trustee. The essential parts of the report are here appended:

RECOMMENDATIONS.

The Board of Education makes the following recommendations:

That school be held for 38 weeks, commencing Sept. 2d, 1895. That one male superintendent and 14 female teachers be employed. That one of the latter teach vocal music.

That the present grading and standing of the school be maintained.

That special taxes be raised as follows: For general school purposes, $5,000.

The number of children of school age in the district is 533, as shown by the annual census just taken by Mr. Snedicor.

A petition was submitted to the meeting in the form of a proposition from the stockholders of the Ladies' Library Association, the body of which was as follows: "That we will, and hereby do, transfer the whole property of said institution to the Union School District of Tecumseh, on condition that the said district pledge themselves to equip and maintain hereafter a free public library and reading room in said village." It was also provided that the property should be returned to the present owners if not properly maintained. The proposition was accepted and a tax of three-tenths of a mill was voted for its maintenance. This tax will be small and it seems but just to our town and to the ladies who have so well built up the library and reading room to its present efficiency, that we have a free privilege of this kind.

THE FOURTH MATINEE.

The fourth matinee of the season was held last Saturday with the usual satisfaction to a good audience. The weather in the forenoon was cloudy and foreboding, in the afternoon, somewhat chilly. In spite of this 400 people witnessed the amateur sport on the turf and seemed well pleased and satisfied with the events. In races of this kind, the time used up in scoring and preparation is considerable, but the crowd seemed to make all necessary allowance for green horses and inexperienced jockeys, and good naturedly enjoy their fruitless efforts to get the word "go." The track was in excellent shape but the wind was very strong and dead against the horses, foot racers and wheel riders coming down the stretch. Davidson and Clark made a tie for second place in the half-mile bicycle dash and were required to run the heat over in which Davidson won. In the two mile dash, the time limit was 5:25 but on account of the strong wind the prizes were awarded on the second heat made in 5:36. The foot race was very good for amateurs, considering the odds of a stiff head wind. The following is a tabulated summary of the events:

Electric Power for September.

Electric Power—always excellent—is unusually interesting in its September issue. The success which was predicted for this magazine at the beginning of the year has more than been achieved, and the high standard of excellence has been maintained and even exceeded. The articles which always treat upon the fascinating subject of electricity are being written in a more popular vein and are easily understood by those who have had no previous acquaintance with the science. The opening article is entitled "How Shall We Educate Our Sons For the Electrical Profession?" and is written by Nelson W. Perry, an eminent authority. The father of every boy should read this article; it may help him decide an important question—important to the boy whose future is considered. Harold McGill Davis continues his entertaining biographies with portraits of the "Editors of the Electrical Journals," and Ira W. Henry contributes an interesting description of "Electrically Lighted Buoys," which explains the lighting of buoys in New York Harbor, Sandy Hook and elsewhere. The usual amount of miscellaneous, literary and patent notes complete the number. The Electric Power magazine is certainly a valuable acquisition to any one's library.

The Modern Beauty.

Thrives on good food and sunshine, with plenty of exercise in the open air. Her form glows with health and her face blooms with its beauty. If her system needs the cleansing action of a laxative remedy, she uses the gentle and pleasant liquid laxative Syrup of Figs. Sept.

Sunday, September 8th, will be the last of the Sunday service between Van Wert and Manitou Beach, and Toledo and Addison. On and after September 9th the Sunday service will be discontinued. The usual special low rates will be in effect Sunday, Sept. 8th.

He has an elegant store for his use, and no man in Clinton is better qualified to occupy it. There isn't a better store in the county for the clothing trade, and Frank will doubtless receive his full share of the public patronage.

The congregation of St. John's church, Clinton, have made within the past year a great improvement in their little church, by entirely refitting the interior. About $530 will be spent upon the work when all is finished, the greater part of which is already in hand. A fact to note in this effort to beautify God's house, is that over $300 came by direct gift. The people of this congregation are learning that it is more churchly and profitable to give for Christ's work in prompt cash, than thro' the ever-vexing system of socials and entertainments. May the principle prosper and grow.—Chicago Living Church.

Stop suffering! Try Dr. Miles' Pain Pills.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

Look after the Back: A Fall, a Strain, a Constant Sitting or Stooping Position Brings Backache—Do You Know This Means the Kidneys are Affected!

How few people realize when their back begins to ache that it is a warning provided by nature to tell you that the kidneys are not working properly. You have a severe fall, you strain yourself lifting or perhaps you are compelled to maintain a sitting or stooping position for long intervals at a time, your back begins to ache, then your head, you become listless, tired and weary, but do you understand the real cause? We think not, else you would not use plasters and liniment on the back, which only relieve but do not reach the cause. If you would rid yourself of the pain and cure the root of the trouble, at the same time save many years of suffering and perhaps life itself, you will take a kidney remedy that has been tried and proven that it will cure.

Mr. John Robsoln of 661 Russell Street, Detroit, says: "As a result of exposure during the war I have suffered ever since with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Pains would start in my hip and go around to my back. Highly colored urine denoted kidney disorder. The pain in my back was often so bad I had to give up work until the severity of the attack passed away. I have used many liniments and other things, but received very little relief. Some time ago I started using Doan's Kidney Pills and they have worked a wonderful change in me. My back is all right now and I owe it all to the almost magical influence of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Mr. Robsoln was a member of the Fifty-first Illinois Regiment, which served through the war with honor and distinction. Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers—price, 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

The Mount Lebanon Shakers have recently perfected an ingenious cure for dyspepsia. Their Digestive Cordial consists of a food already digested and a digester of foods happily combined. The importance of this invention will be appreciated when we realize what a proportion of the community are victims of some form of stomach trouble. Thousands of pale, thin people have little inclination to eat, and what they do eat causes them pain and distress. The Digestive Cordial of the Shakers corrects any stomach derangement at once. It makes thin people plump. Every one will be greatly interested to read the little book which has been placed in the hands of druggists for free distribution.

NOT A SICK DAY

For Over Thirty Years!

RESULT OF USING

AYER'S PILLS

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills for over thirty years have kept me in good health, never having had a sick day in all that time. Before I was twenty I suffered almost continually—as a result of constipation—from dyspepsia, headaches, neuralgia, or boils and other eruptive diseases. When I became convinced that nine-tenths of my troubles were caused by constipation, I began the use of Ayer's Pills, with the most satisfactory results, never having a single attack that did not readily yield to this remedy. My wife, who had been an invalid for years, also began to use Ayer's Pills, and her health was quickly restored. With my children I had noticed that nearly all their ailments were preceded by constipation, and I soon had the pleasure of knowing that with children as with parents, Ayer's Pills, if taken in season, avert all danger of sickness."—H. Again at 5 p. m. the tables were reset with a fresh supply of cake, ice cream and many other good things which made us all feel that a ride home would be a good gymnastic exercise for our physical natures, and all that was there experienced the feeling that it was good to have this little outing, and it strengthened the cords of our affections and we were all made to feel that life has a great deal of sunshine in it if we will but seek to do our part in casting its shadows. The New York Recorder says: "It mercilessly scourges the money changers in the Temple of the Republic." Is Kentucky a Doubtful State?

The peculiar political conditions that exist in Kentucky have led many people to believe that the State is a doubtful one and that the Republicans have a chance to carry it this fall. For this reason there is great interest, both at home and abroad, in accurate and reliable political news from all parts of the State. The Weekly Courier-Journal is now covering this field perfectly, and it is publishing the news without bias or prejudice. A close reader of the Weekly Courier-Journal should be able to forecast in advance what will be the outcome of the State election next November. In addition to giving all the news of every kind, the Weekly Courier-Journal is offering to its subscribers $6,000 in cash presents for guesses as to the exact vote and closest to the exact vote that will be received by the Democratic, Republican and Populist candidates for Governor of Kentucky. The price of the paper is one dollar a year. Sample copies containing full details of the cash present plan will be sent free to any address. Write to Courier-Journal Company, Louisville, Ky.

From LaGrippe.

How Dr. Miles' Nervine Restored One of Kentucky's Business Men to Health.

No DISEASE has ever presented so many peculiarities as LaGrippe. No disease leaves its victims so debilitated, useless, sleepless, nerveless, as LaGrippe.

Mr. D. W. Hilton, state agent of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Kentucky, says: "In 1889 and '90 I had two severe attacks of LaGrippe, the last one attacking my nervous system with such severity that my life was despaired of. I had not slept for more than two months except by the use of narcotics that stupefied me, but gave me no rest. I was only conscious of intense mental weakness, agonizing bodily pain and the fact that I was hourly growing weaker.

When in this condition, I commenced using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. In two days I began to improve and in one month's time I was cured, much to the surprise of all who knew of my condition. I have been in excellent health since and have recommended your remedies to many of my friends."

LATER EXCESSES IN MANHOOD

MAKE NERVOUS, DISEASED MEN

THE RESULT of ignorance and folly in youth, overexertion of mind and body indulged in by lust and exposure are constantly wrecking the lives and future happiness of thousands of promising young men. Some fade and wither at an early age, at the blossom of manhood, while others are forced to drag out a weary, fruitless and melancholy existence. Others reach matrimony but find no solace or comfort there. The victims are found in all stations of life:—The farm, the office, the workshop, the pulpit, the trades and the professions.

BIG PROFITS ON Small Investments

Returning prosperity will make many rich, but nowhere can they make so much within a short time as by successful Speculation in Grain, Provisions and Stock.

$10.00 FOR EACH DOLLAR INVESTED can be made by our Systematic Plan of Speculation.

originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system.

It is a well-known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by systematic trading through Chicago brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to $50,000 to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand.

It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading.

Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time.

WRITE FOR CONVINCING PROOFS, also our Manual on successful speculation and our Daily Market Report, full of money-making pointers. ALL FREE. Our Manual explains margin trading fully. Highest references in regard to our standing and success. For further information address

The friends of Raynor Sutfin were shocked and deeply grieved when the news came to Tecumseh last Monday that he had parted with life and promise so soon. The deceased had been frail for years from organic disease of the heart. He was a graduate of our High school and of Cleary's business college. When he returned from Ypsilanti he took a position in Kennedy & Roger's grocery, but was soon compelled to stop work from failing health. Raynor and his mother had been visiting at Jackson and with his sister, Mrs. Jones, at Morenci. Here he was taken worse. Physicians were called, but of no avail, and death came about 1 p. m. The funeral will occur at 4 o'clock at the house this afternoon, Rev. Hudson, officiating.

The Computing Scale Company, of Dayton, O., filed a bill in the United States circuit court at Detroit Tuesday, against the Stimpson Computing Scale Co. When asked about the matter by the HERALD, the Stimpson Co. said that ever since they commenced the manufacture of the scales, the Dayton company had used every means to intimidate them as well as the users of their scales and that they considered this move of their rival only another and last resort to drive the Stimpson scale out of the market. They also say that they have given the matter of infringement of patents a thorough investigation and have always been perfectly satisfied that they do not infringe any patents and that they are increasing their capacity to enable them to meet the fast increasing demand for their scales.

THE COLLEGE BOYS.

I ought not to talk this way carelessly. But what is the Christian voter up to in this country? Well, that depends a little and very little on his party preference: if he is a Democrat he is serving God and mammon with impartiality under the leadership of Professor Wilson, and if he is a Republican he is serving mammon and God with almost judicial fairness led by Mr. McKinley. That is to say, he is devoting his political talents to the accomplishment of an impossible thing. "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." I must not be understood to belittle the tariff question, though I do think that the difference between the parties as to that is infinitesimally trifling compared to the drink question. The tariff is an important and noble study, but I don't believe it engrosses the heart of Jesus Christ as he waits expecting beside the throne of God. The Wilson bill may be unwise, but none will be so bold as to call it unchristian. The McKinley act may be extravagantly protective, but we should only smile at one so infatuated as to call it devilish. It is a thing for political economists, for cabinets, for experiments, amendments, concessions, compromises. It cannot get far wrong because the common greed of trade and the interminable pressure of the revenue are forever alert to perfect it. It is not sensible and I doubt if it is honest to try to make the eleavage of parties at the tariff. If the Democratic party should die to-day—and it seems very ill—the tariff would not be settled. If the Republican party were defunct it would be just so. President Cleveland could manage the Republicans very well, but what to do with his own people is reducing his flesh. The same thing may be said of the currency, banking, state rights and the rest. If you mean to postpone the drink question until the tariff matter is settled you simply abandon it.

And if the conduct of the Christian voter is mysterious in federal matters it is incredible in municipal affairs. There he is engaged in the remarkably unpromising occupation of trying to reach a basis of agreement with saloon keepers, gamblers and bawds as to a painless and gradual method of destroying them by employing their customers to conduct the negotiations and subsequent police operations watching them kill themselves gradually. It recalls the historical Thompson's colt.

Let us all be protectionists; will that hurt the church? Or all free traders; will it hinder the church? But if there is an unchristian, traitorous, murderous devilish thing in our politics one would expect the Christian voter to be at least making motions at that, upon the ground of simple loyalty to Christ and the church.

But is there such a thing? The church says there is. The liquor traffic. Have you heard of that? I know you have not from any state paper or document of high authority or dignity in statecraft. Christian statesmen abound, but who of them has heard of the saloon? Have you ever heard that there are 240,000 saloons in this country? Have you ever heard that every one of them carries an insurance policy upon its life of which the government is the underwriter?

Have you heard that into their tills $500,000,000 of wages are annually poured?

Have you heard that they are favorite places for party caucuses?

Have you heard that three-fourths of all the crime is traceable to them?

Have you heard that 4,500 deaths were the murder crop of the saloon last year?

Have you heard that war, pestilence, famine, cholera, typhus, yellow fever, all told, are a bagatelle compared to the regular staple annual misery product of this one business?

Did you read the other day how Arthur Dustrow got drunk and went home, and when his young wife ran to meet him shot her dead, and while he knelt above her calling her pet names and begging her to live his baby boy ran into his arms and kissed him, and simultaneously with the baby's kiss crash went a bullet through the baby's brain?

Did you read how a widow's son went home the other night and beat his mother to a shapeless thing, unidentifiable but by the clothing?

Did you read how at Rahway, N. J., men found a baby dead beside its drunken mother in the woods in midwinter, its hair frozen into the ground? Or did you read the headlines only of such things and skip the rest?

The daily papers teem with things like these. Our leaders are not fools. They know these things. Are they traitors, then? No! not a man of them. Or cowards? No, not many. They are representative citizens and fairly true to what they represent. They stand for constituents who mean one thing and vote another, and who is to wonder or who is to blame if the servant catches the political aphasia of his master?

President Harrison possibly meant in his last message the "drink," but he said "car-couplers." President Cleveland may have meant prohibition in America; he said "Africa." The legislature of Minnesota perhaps meant "saloons," but said "slot-machines." The same legislature meant "alcohol," but said "stale pie." The mayor of Chicago meant "drinkshop," he said "lumpy jawed cattle." The United States senate meant the "liquor traffic," but said the "Russian thistle." Our trouble, peril, shame is not the parties, nor the preachers, but the aphasia of Christian politics.

I wish to express now my conviction of the intelligence, truth, bravery, efficiency and sufficiency of the Christian citizen to meet this crisis and conquor it, if only he can be made to stand firmly on the ground and look at it. This country's peril is that our people have eyes, but do not see. They roll their eyes and glance at things and stand and get no views.

"Where there is no vision the people perish." Scarcely a city government in the land could last a year but for the reason that when we get a glimpse of it we find it unpleasant and look away and trust to luck or Providence, which in such a case are much the same. And in the case of the saloon, its life and thrift and impudent control of the nation, state and city are directly due to the wandering vision of the Christian man; it lines the way, poisons all the air, lusts openly for every life and would die like a reptile, as it is, in the first flash of intelligent vision. But so few people see it. Some 500,000 Prohibitionists, men and women—scarcely more.

Do you resent that statement and say you see it but have not yet taken sides? I should be sorry to believe it, for I think a Christian man who sees the saloon and is at peace with it is a coward, unworthy the name of Christian or citizen. But I doubt there being many such; men see some fruits of it, some calamnity, momentarily and think they have looked at the saloon, and they wave it off, disgusted, and go calmly on. I have too much respect for any Christian profession to believe that such men see the thing.

When you face an antagonist, you must watch his eye, not his hands: his fist will tell you very little, but in his eye you read his purpose and his power.

For Jesus' sake stop watching the saloon's antics and look it in the eye! You saw it break up a home. What of that? It is the science of home breaking. You saw it rob a man. What of that? It is systematic, legalized, monopolized robbery reduced to a fine art and stole a billion last year. You saw it kill a man. What of that? That is its trade; it will kill 100,000 every year. You saw it break a woman's heart. What of that? It is a dull bour when it does no more than that. Oh, for the sake of humanity, stop sparring and kill it!

OBITUARY.

MABEL FLORINE MARKS.

Two weeks ago T. D. Marks and family took an overland trip to Riga for the purpose of giving the children an outing before starting in school. In the midst of their pleasure illness came. Two of the children became very sick; medical aid was summoned but without avail. Little Florine could not be helped and died Thursday morning Aug. 29. She was a very sweet child and of an affectionate disposition. Full of love for those about her and loved by all that knew her. Her death was a very severe blow to the family. But the purity of the little life and the blessedness of the four and a half years of its earthly existence will be a continual benediction in the midst of their sorrow. The funeral was held at the house Saturday afternoon at four o'clock conducted by Rev. Charles M. Brown and attended by a host of friends. The little body was placed to rest in the Tecumseh Cemetery to await the great reunion at the final day.

CARD OF THANKS.

The family of T. D. Marks kindly return their thanks to the friends who so kindly assisted them in their late bereavement.

The memorial tablet purchased by the communicants of St. Peter's church has arrived from Philadelphia and been placed in the chancel, the proper place for a memorial to a priest. The inscription reads as follows:

COIN'S FINANCIAL SCHOOL.

This little book is one of the most extensive treatises on the money question that has ever been written. It shows up the evil effects of our present monetary system in a most emphatic manner. Every voter in Lenawee county, regardless of party affiliations, should read it. The Chicago Times says: "A book that will create a profound impression throughout the United States." The New York Recorder says: "It mercilessly scourges the money changers in the Temple of the Republic." The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "This book tells its readers more about gold, silver and currency, generally, than any other publication we know of, and in a way that every man can fully comprehend." A supply is kept on hand at the HERALD office. Single copies 25 cents. Every new advance paying subscriber to the HERALD will receive a copy free. Now is your time to get good reading cheap. Pass in your orders.

New York World—Thrice-a-Week.

The twice-a-week edition of the New York World has been converted into the Thrice-a-week. It furnishes 3 papers of 6 pages apiece, or eighteen pages every week, at the old price of one dollar a year. This gives 156 papers a year for one dollar and every paper has 6 pages eight columns wide or 48 columns in all. The Thrice-a-week World is not only much larger than any weekly or semi-weekly newspaper, but it furnishes the news with much greater frequency and promptness. In fact it combines all the crisp, fresh qualities of a daily with the attractive special features of a weekly. Club rates with the HERALD.

Notice of Infringement.

A bill has been filed in the circuit court of Barry Co. (Hastings Mich.) by Drs. Mixer against C. M. Tower who it is alleged has been infringing on the trade-mark of Mixers Cancer and scrofula Syrup. A temporary injunction has been allowed by Judge Clement Smith restraining C. M. Tower from further use of said trade mark.

Hastings, Mich. Aug. 23, 1895.

To the wholesale and retail druggists throughout the country. We desire to give you notice of an infringement on our trade mark for Mixers' Cancer and Scrofula Syrup put up by one C. M. Tower and under the name of "Drs. Tower and Mixer Medical Co." Hastings Mich. Said Tower having no right or authority to use our name, "Mixer." The wrapper of this bogus medicine bears Dr. Mixer's portrait and is very similar to our genuine wrapper, but in every case can be detected, for on the face and back of our wrappers (which contains bottle) is our signature, "Drs. Mixer" in a bold back handwriting, every bottle also has Mixer's Cancer and Scrofula Syrup" blown in three sides, the bogus medicine being put up in plain panel bottles.

We earnestly request all persons using our C. & S. S. to be particular that they buy genuine goods, for the bogus medicine is put up without regard to merit. Examine the bottle which you now have and if it is not lettered as stated, and the signature of Drs. Mixer" on both wrapper and label return the same to your druggist or agent and exact genuine C. & S. S. In all cases avoid any medicine or circulars put out by "Drs. Tower and Mixer Medical Co." or C. M. Tower. Any person coming in contact with bogus medicine as heretofore described will confer a great favor by communicating with Drs. Mixer, Hastings, Michigan.

Very respectfully yours in the interests of right and justice to all the afflicted.

The first century run, made by Tecumseh wheelmen, was made last Sunday by Messrs C. F. Patterson, George S. Field, Bert Lawrence, C. H. Millis and W. B. Odlon. The route selected was from Tecumseh to Hillsdale, the hardest run that could be made in any direction from this place. The start was made at 4:55 a. m. and the finish at 5:50 p. m. lacking five minutes of being 13 hours on the trip. Hudson was the stopping point for both breakfast and dinner. The boys were in the saddle just 7 hours and 40 minutes, making their average riding time 13 1-2 miles an hour. The boys all finished in a bunch, excepting Odlon, who has had a bad knee for the past six weeks, and was obliged to fall out about five miles west of Adrian. He came in just one hour behind the others, riding the last 16 miles with one pedal. The run was full of comical incidents, but only one serious one. At Pittsford, on the return, Mr. Millis struck the hard end of a side-walk, throwing him several feet, luckily not hurting him to any extent. The collision broke the front forks loose from the head of his wheel, but a repair man soon remedied the fracture and the party proceeded on home without further accidents.

Meetings will be held nightly to and including Sept. 18. There will be two meetings on Sunday, at 3:30 and 7:45 p. m. The Sunday night meeting will be given over to a song service, and magnificently illustrated lecture on the "Life of our Saviour." The friends of temperance should not neglect to make the most of this opportunity to do good work for that worthy cause.

A very suggestive and valuable article in the Arena for September is Prof. Joseph Rodes Buchanan's "The Marvels of Electricity." Last night Britton people had a regular burglar adventure, whereby George Clark, the night operator for the Wabash, was severely wounded. George, with some others, were near Leonardson's store about 2 o'clock and hearing a noise within were investigating. The people within opened fire at once, hitting young Clark in the shoulder twice. Several shots were fired, the burglars escaping in the excitement. A colored man and a white man, both suspicious characters, were hanging about the town yesterday, and they were probably the burglars. Clark is seriously wounded the ball not having been found so far.

LABOR DAY.

Its Observance a Notable One in Detroit and Grand Rapids.

DETROIT, Sept. 3.—Labor day in this city was pretty generally observed, all of the factories being shut down and many of the retail stores closed. There was a monster parade of workingmen, it being estimated that fully 10,000 men were in line. There were many handsome floats in the parade. The procession marched through the principal streets out Jefferson avenue to Belle Isle park. At the park there were athletic games, yacht races, baseball games, an association football game and dancing. It was by long odds the most successful Labor day celebration ever held in this city.

GRAND RAPIDS, Sept. 3.—Business was generally suspended Monday and 2,500 members of labor organizations paraded through the streets in the morning. In the afternoon a picnic was held at Reeds lake and addresses were made by Hon. Thomas E. Barkworth, of Jackson, and Peter Doran, of this city, and by John D. Flanigan, president of the day. After the speech-making various athletic sports were indulged in.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 29.—Sultan commandery, No. 16, entertained knights templar from Michigan and Pennsylvania right royally Thursday. Sultan and its guests, with ladies, embarked on the steamer Gay Head for a sail in Buzzard's bay. A shore dinner at Fort Phœnix followed. Mount Olivet left the city in the afternoon. A reception was given in the evening in honor of the Michigan knights and ladies.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 1.—Judge Charles D. Long, of the supreme court of Michigan, who appealed from the decision of the court of appeals in his pension case to the supreme court of the United States, has not yet perfected his appeal by filing the record and the attorney general has served notice on him that unless he does so by September 10 he will have the appeal dismissed.

Much Small Game in Michigan.

LANSING, Sept. 2.—There is great plenty of small game in southern Michigan this year, with every prospect of good hunting this fall. The dry summer has been especially favorable to the increase of rabbits and quails. In some regions the quails have bred twice, while because of the absence of heavy rains few young rabbits have been drowned in the burrows.

Earnings of Michigan Railroads.

LANSING, Sept. 2.—The following earnings statement was issued from the commissioner of railroads' office Saturday: Total earnings of Michigan roads for June, $2,578,507, an increase of $156,829 over the same month in 1894. The total earnings January 1 to July 1, 1895, were $14,106,975, an increase over the same period in 1894 of $804,040, or 6 4-100 per cent.

BIG RAPIDS, Aug. 29.—Mary Pepper was held to the grand jury on a charge of setting fire to three houses because the owner had promised to marry her and had failed to do so.

TROOPS ARE OUT.

Steam Shovels at Ishpeming Mich., Operate Under Guard.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Sept. 3.—Houghton, Calumet, Marquette and Ironwood companies of state militia, Fifth regiment, of the upper peninsula, reached here at 1 o'clock Monday morning, and pitched their tents on High bluff at Lake Angeline and Lake Superior mines. With the troops were four steam shovel gangs of fifty men.

The steam shovels were started at 9 o'clock in the morning without interference by strikers. The militia was jeered by strikers, who, however, did no overt acts nor attempted to cross the dead line which is marked by flags.

The strikers have made threats to attack the shovelers, but no trouble is anticipated.

Strikers held a largely attended meeting Monday and resolutions of indignation against Sheriff Broad and Mayor Johnston were passed for calling on state troops. The men profess that they contemplated no infraction of law whatever and so far it seems certain that the presence of troops is unnecessary.

Most of the miners recognize that the strike is lost and are either arranging to leave for other fields or are hoping to return to former jobs in a few days. Hundreds of families in Ishpeming and Negaunee are on the verge of actual starvation and the miners' union has nothing to give them.

MARQUETTE, Mich., Sept. 3.—At a meeting of the miners' union another effort to secure the passage of a resolution looking toward a settlement of the strike by concessions in the demands for wages failed, and President Coad, of the miner's union, thereupon resigned. John Roberts, formerly treasurer, was elected to the vacancy, and resolutions were passed condemning the sheriff, mayor and prosecuting attorney for having called in state troops. Withdrawal of the troops was requested, the strikers pledging themselves not to interfere in any manner with the shipments of ore.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Sept. 4.—Everything was quiet Tuesday. The shovels are all working and the South Shore railway is preparing to remove the ore to Marquette.

There are very few strikers around the shovels or near the camping grounds. One of the military companies stationed here will probably be transferred to Negaunee, as the shovelmen there have refused to work unless protected by the soldiers. Thirty-five of the strikers left Monday night for other districts and many more are preparing to leave.

NEW SOURCE OF REVENUE.

Under the New Deer Hunting Law 10,000 Licenses Have Been Taken Out.

LANSING, Sept. 4.—The recent session of the legislature passed a law requiring persons who intended to hunt deer to take out a license, residents paying fifty cents and non-residents $25, with a big penalty for neglect to comply with the law. The secretary of state thought that 5,000 would be a large estimate, but already applications have come to the number of 10,000, and Secretary Gardner estimates that there will be at least 15,000 deer-hunting licenses granted in Michigan this year. The state will get a big revenue.

Sedan Day Observed.

GRAND RAPIDS, Sept. 2.—The resident veterans of the Franco-Prussian war and resident Germans celebrated Sedan day with a barbecue Sunday afternoon at Reed's lake. One thousand Germans attended. An ox was roasted, and after the feast speeches were made by Prof. John Storrer, of Owosso, and M. M. Housmann, editor, and Editor Beno Meuhlen, of this city. The exercises closed with fireworks.

Medical Men in Session.

DETROIT, Sept. 4.—Upward of 300 delegates to the twenty-first annual meeting of the Mississippi Valley Medical association are in Detroit. This organization numbers 1,800 physicians as members. It has members in every state. At the opening session of the convention Tuesday Mayor Pingree welcomed the delegates and paid tribute to their profession. Dr. William N. Wishard, of Indianapolis, president of the association, responded.

May Become a Great Industry.

GRAND HAVEN, Sept. 2.—From present indications here there is a prospect that the digging, preparing and shipping of marl from this place and the many ports of western Michigan will in a few years grow into an extensive industry. Marl is found in great quantities in the marshes along the principal streams of western Michigan, and when kiln dried and ground is used for the adulteration of paints.

Frisky Their in Old Age.

KALAMAZOO, Sept. 1.—A great-grandmother and several grandfathers and grandmothers gave a party at the home of Andrew Snyder, near this city, in honor of the 87th birthday of Mrs. Sally Poncher, of Clinton. Among the diversions of the evening was the dancing of the Virginia reel by the aged merrymakers.

Only One-Half a Crop.

ST. JOSEPH, Aug. 29.—The large canning factories here, which formerly employed about 150 hands each, will only employ sixty hands this season. The early frosts and continued drought shortened the tomato crop fully one-half, and the tomatoes left are of an inferior quality.

Michigan Man Suicides in Brooklyn.

WITH MASONIC HONORS.

Remarkable Funeral of Mrs. Mary Bush, 113 Years Old.

NOVI, Mich., Sept. 4.—A most remarkable burial occurred here Monday, when Mrs. Mary Bush, 113 years old, was laid to rest. Her father and grandfather before her had been prominent masons, her husband, who died some years ago, was a well-known templar, and her sons all free masons. Besides this, she herself had been an ardent partisan of the order and was universally liked. Until very recently Mrs. Bush was not a care to anybody. But the last few months her faculties failed her and she coveted death, frequently asking: "Why can't I die and go home, the same as other people, and not be left here so long?" When the body was borne from her late residence to the church the coffin was surrounded by the templars from Northville, and it was borne by six stalwart masons. The escort was a long one, consisting of delegations from a half-dozen masonic lodges, and was followed by four generations of her family, many more gray-headed than the dead woman. Within the church and at the grave the regular masonic burial services with the impressive ritual of the templars were given. The body lay in state guarded by Knights Templar from 9 a. m. until 4 p. m., and was viewed by hundreds of people.

CANADIAN SHIP CANAL LOCK.

First American Boat to Pass Through — Will Be Formally Opened Monday.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Sept. 4.—The first American boat to pass through the Canadian ship canal lock was the Hursley line tug L. D. Smith, which was locked through, west bound, at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning. Capt. Jay Hursley had a party on board consisting of canal officials from this side of the river and several lake captains and newspaper representatives. It required just 35½ minutes to fill the lock chamber and everything worked in perfect order. The formal opening of the canal will occur next Monday, when the Canadian passenger steamer Pacific will be locked through. The approaches at either end have been dredged and cleaned up and the channel above the canal has been thoroughly staked out. After next Monday American boats can lock through.

The opening of the Canadian lock will be a boon to the shipping interests inasmuch as it will obviate much of the delay caused by the inadequacy of the American lock to accommodate the traffic.

A CLOSE CALL.

Ann Arbor Constable Saved by His Sweetheart's Picture.

ANN ARBOR, Sept. 4.—A row between Constable Paul Schall and Jerome Quinn, a baker, in the American house, came very near resulting in murder, and Quinn can thank his stars that he carried a tintype of his sweetheart in the upper left vest pocket. Quinn had knocked Schall down and the two men were separated when Schall drew his revolver and fired. Quinn fell to the floor, crying that he was shot, but it was found that Schall's bullet had pierced only the coat and vest and then been deflected by the tintype. Quinn was not hurt at all and no complaints have been made.

SHOT THE WRONG MAN.

Man Slain by Michigan Detectives Proves to Have Been Innocent.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 30.—John Smalley, killed Saturday while resisting arrest on the charge of complicity in the train robbery at Fennville August 20 and the murder of Detective Brewer August 22, was at Brinton, Isabella county, Mich., 90 miles from the scene of the crime, from noon August 20 till noon August 24. Scores of old acquaintances there, farmers and former friends, all of the utmost respectability, will swear to this. They intend prosecuting Smalley's slayer for murder.

Battle Creek Double Tragedy.

BATTLE CREEK, Aug. 31.—Jack Will son, for ten years past a hack driver, shot his wife Friday night and then blew his brains out. He had not been living with his wife since last June and called at her living rooms Friday evening and attempted to shoot her. She got the revolver away from him and threw it out the window. He then dragged her downstairs and out doors, picked up the revolver and shot her twice, then shot himself, dying instantly. Mrs. Wilson is still alive, but cannot live.

Sale of State Lands.

LANSING, Aug. 31.—During the last year the state land office sold 9,929 acres of land for $24,790. The total receipts of the office from all sources were $70,248. The state now holds 423,880 acres of land, of which 208,796 is primary school land, 101,650 agricultural college land, 113,103 swamp land, 80 university land and 440 salt spring. Read the End of the story first. That's the part that will interest you most.

What you want to know and to consider, is the result of washing with Pearline. And it's all told in two words—it saves. Hard work, wear and tear to things washed (because there isn't any rub, rub, rub) time, money—all saved.

You needn't bother with the other chapters in the book—doubt as to Pearline's ability, fear as to the damage it may do if it does the work, &c. There's nothing in them. Any woman who uses Pearline can tell you that.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, do the honest thing—send it back. 344 JAMES PYLE, New York.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning Sept. 8. Comment by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M. Topic, Opening the Eyes of One Born Blind.

SCRIPTURE READING.—John IX, 1-7.

The scene is in Jerusalem. The time is early autumn at the feast of Tabernacles. The public teaching of Jesus in the temple has aroused intense hostility against him on the part of the Pharisees. The whole of the ninth and tenth chapters of John should be read to get the full occurrence and the lessons drawn from it by Jesus.

Special attention should be directed:

First.—To the fact of the blindness; a case notorious and incurable by natural means.

Second.—The reality of the cure, conclusively attested by reliable witnesses.

Third.—Refutation of the idea that special calamities are punishment for and proof of unusual wickedness.

The Fall Campaign.

Vacations are over. People are returning to accustomed work. Plans should now be matured for the coming season. It is wise to plan systematically for all the departments the work for several months in advance. Method is much. In the spiritual committee there is need of consultation and careful consideration of the best measures to advance interest in the devotional services of the church. Mercy and help, literary and social departments, all need vigorous administration. Get earnestly at work before the attractions and distractions of the winter prevent concentration of thought and result in dispersion of energy and dissipation of purpose.

No Loose Spokes.

No department of the League is superfluous. No chapter can afford to neglect the work of any department. The less apparent the ability to maintain the interest in any given direction the more certain it is that danger lies in just that lack of talent or interest. A missing spoke endangers the whole wheel and may wreck the vehicle itself. No wheel is stronger than its weakest point, which is its breaking point. Excessive attention given a favorite form of work to the neglect of other needed kinds is like putting material enough in one spoke for half a dozen. In such a case division will multiply efficiency.

Development and Degeneration.

It is a singular and significant fact that every great religion of the world except Christianity has been purer in its earlier than in its later forms. Corruption has appeared with age until they have perished of degeneration. There has been no natural process of evolution in the religious history of men. Christianity shows alone the result of a development by supernatural power of the religious nature. In consequence of this it alone presents the spectacle of steady progression not only in numbers, but also in doctrine and activity. The parable of the mustard seed is illustrative of its growth.

Revi

It is a long time since the 1st of July, when the great Chattanooga conference met and worked and shouted and shook hands. Don't let the plans there laid fail to be carried out because so little could be done during the summer. Begin to plan now for the autumn campaign. Review your notebooks. Lay out the work in all departments. Let the spiritual department lead off. Be sociable without frivolity. Get your literary committee awake. Remember your conference resolutions, and begin to fulfill them.

Surely great words do not make a man holy and just, but a virtuous life maketh him dear to God.

It is vanity to desire to live long and not to care to live well.—Thomas a Kempis.

How We Learn.

Great truths are greatly won, not found by chance,
Nor wafted on the breath of summer dream,
But grasped in the great struggle of the soul,
Hard buffeting with adverse wind and stream.

Not in the general mart 'mid corn and wine,
Not in the merchandise of gold and gems,
Not in the world's gay hall of midnight mirth,
Not 'mid the blaze of regal diadems.

But in the day of conflict, fear and grief,
When the strong hand of God, put forth in might,
Plows up the subsoil of the stagnant heart
And brings the imprisoned truth seed to the light.

Wrung from the troubled spirit in hard hours
Of weakness, solitude, perchance of pain,
Truth springs like harvest from the well plowed field,
And the soul feels it has not wept in vain.

PLAYING FOR LOVE.

This is a tale of love, pure and simple, which shows how my brother Herbert nearly won the privilege of providing for the keep of Miss Mary Ashton, our cousin, for the term of her unnatural life. She, however, now ornaments another's home, and Herbert's heart is dead. My brother had a heart in those days, though he was old enough to know better. It was a kind of hobby with him.

Herbert had long loved Miss Ashton, literally from afar, she being sublimely long and he more than common squat. However this defect he shared with Cupid himself, who is always represented as diminutive and podgy, and Mary, I really think, was not averse to my brother's suit, for she frequently dropped smiles on the top of his tall hat, much to its wearer's content. She also said she would not hear a word said against him. This was generally when there was nothing more to say. Even a bishop could find something funny to say of a short man. Nevertheless Herbert was happy under the smiles of his beloved.

But, alas! there came a day when the smiles were directed elsewhere, and Herbert found that Mary could never be more than a sister to him. It was astonishing to hear him recite this declaration of hers as a choice specimen of feminine feeling and originality. Young as I was, I knew that remark, having taken to myself several such voluntary relations whose existence I had immediately forgotten. But Herbert derived gloomy consolation from this promise of sisterly affection and even quoted the length of his nether garments as ample justification for Mary's decision. He was certainly petite, and magnanimity was strong within him.

The wrecker of my brother's hopes was none other than Eric Frodsham, whom you may recognize as the author of certain chaotic pieces of literary composition. We had known Frodsham as a distant acquaintance for some time and had watched the tortuous trouble of his literary career. In the beginning, when the world was young, Frodsham wrote plain, clear novels, which were a lasting joy to his stationer, to whom the selling of paper was a high mission in life. These works, for the most part, blushed unseen on Frodsham's table till their author succeeded them with a weary work, the title of which, "A Secret Vow," was the only intelligible part of the volume. Probably for this reason the book was an instantaneous success and Frodsham was a celebrity. He was interviewed, and we all recognized in his conversation the good things we had said to him in times past. Mary then fell in love with him and joined our family as a sister to Herbert. We appreciated her kindness.

My brother at this time was eminently depressing as a companion, and gloom was imprisoned in the corrugations of his brow.

One day he came to me in a state of virtuous wrath, waving a daily paper round his head. He was speechless with indignation, so I relieved him of his journal and discovered the cause of his excitement. Some clever person had read "A Secret Vow" and in a letter to The Herald had pointed out that that work was an unblushing plagiarism of an unknown novel, published anonymously some years previously under the title of "On His Oath." Frodsham had evidently been guilty of literary theft.

"The scoundrel," said my brother at length. "He's stolen somebody else's brains and my love. He's nothing more than a thief. I'll expose him to Mary."

"Where is Frodsham?" I asked.

"On his way to New York. But I can't let that high minded girl remain fettered to such a villain, can I? I'll tell her at once, in case she hasn't heard the news."

"Better not," I remarked. "If she loves Frodsham, she won't thank you. Let things take their course."

But Herbert didn't. He told Miss Ashton there and then, and that young lady listened to the tale. She expressed herself as being greatly shaken and unable to decide what to do. She also wondered about the deceit of man, which impressed Herbert. Finally she told my brother he might call and see her, and he returned to me beaming. Incidentally he referred to Frodsham as a "poor devil." Herbert was magnanimity itself.

Mary smiled sweetly but sadly, as an angel whose wing had been broken by a brick. Her grief was picturesque, and people pitied her. Herbert especially, who lured her to take an interest in the world by going to theaters with him. I had forgotten to mention that my brother was well to do, though short.

For a broken hearted girl Mary was fairly jolly, and I commented upon the fact. Herbert explained that he was taking her out of herself. This meant taking her into places of amusement.

One fatal day—fatal to my brother's love story in its second and enlarged edition—I bought The Herald to read the daily installment of indignant correspondence on the subject of the now famous plagiarism. And this is what I read:

"Sir, I have on my return to New York just received various copies of your widely read journal, which have been awaiting me. I am much astonished to become acquainted for the first time with the storm which has blown up in my absence apropos of my work, 'A Secret Vow.' Permit me to make a tardy apology to the public through the medium of your extensively circulated columns by stating that in elaborating the story 'On His Oath,' which appeared some years ago, into my successful book I should have acknowledged my indebtedness to the former novel and have avowed myself, as I do now, your obedient servant, its author, Eric Frodsham."

Poor Herbert! He is still single.—London Sun.

Horrors of Modern War.

As the principal squadron circled around us, the range varied from 2,800 meters (nearly two miles) to perhaps 1,000, at times even less. At about 3 o'clock the Matsushima closed upon the Chen Yuen to about 1,700 meters, and we fired at her, from one of our 12.9 inch guns, a steel shell of five calibers (5 by 12.2 inches) length, having a bursting charge of nearly 90 pounds of powder. The Japanese flagship was struck by this missile, and as a burst of flame arose from her, followed by a great cloud of white smoke, hiding her entirely from view, our gun's crew yelled their satisfaction.

This shell indeed wrought frightful havoc. From the Japanese report it totally disabled the big 13 inch Canet gun and swept the decks. Several charges of powder for this gun had been massed on deck, and these, exploding, gave the gunners a true "hoist with their own petard." By this one shell 49 officers and men were instantly killed and over 50 wounded. The gunnery lieutenant was blown into the sea, his cap and telescope being all trace of him ever found on the ship.—Commander McGiffin in Century.

THE UNITED STATES SENATE.

Should the Senate be Abolished or Reformed? A Serious Question.

BY JOS. W. HOWELL.

Last November I was present at a gathering of farmers and tradesmen. The U. S. Senate was the subject of their conversation, and the consensus of opinion was against it. A man of good sense and sound judgment remarked: "A Senate may be needed, but I believe, just the same, that if the question were submitted to popular vote today, the Senate would be abolished." This sentiment is held by many men, who are among the most conservative that we have. The opinion is all the more significant on this account. Distrust of the Senate is growing. During 1893 and '94 the magazine indexes show an immense amount of discussion relative to the matter; the daily press has joined in the attack, and the voters are not silent. Why this outcry? Today the Senate is on trial. As it now is, popular government is actually imperilled. We cannot deny that the American people urgently demand reform. But, in what way shall it come? Two methods are presented. One is that the Senate shall be elected by popular vote; the other, that the Senate be unconditionally abolished and implicit confidence be placed in the people. Popular election would prove ineffective, because we would still have a Senate and its effect and influence on all law would remain unchanged and the majority of arguments against it would still hold good.

Our present form of government is the English system, modified by the experiences and environments of the Colonial period. Thus, in England, we find the Commons and the Lords; in the Colonies, the Assembly and the Council; and in the United States, the House of Representatives and the Senate. "Through all the ages one increasing purpose runs." In matters of State, this is true of Popular Government. The past gave us the idea of a Senate, but not the form. At the close of the Revolution there were thirteen independent nations. Expediency ruled them, as well as now, and their extreme jealousy could be satisfied only by equal representation in the Senate.

Our forefathers instituted this provision with thirteen states in mind, not forty-four; four millions of people, not sixty-five; and one staple industry instead of many. Can the child's shoe be expected to fit the man?

It is argued that the Senate prevents hasty leislation. This is more than true. Better say, "The Senate delays needed legislation." (And this delay is usually due to a half dozen obstructionists.) The argument is founded on lack of confidence in the people. It is a slap in the face. I hold that there is no other force in the Government so conservative as the great mass of common people. They represent an infinite variety of opinion, and that issue which unites a majority of them, strikes its roots deep into the soil of reform, where flow the springs of justice and righteousness. In the history of the world, where did reform spring from an Upper House?

Did the French people throw off the shackles of feudalism too soon? Was America too hasty in breaking the British bands? Were the English people unreasonable in their struggle for power in the Commons? Away with this insult to the people! Popular government, full and free, is the hope of the world!

Look now at the Senate. What becomes of the popular will in that body? It is composed of three classes of men: first, good men; second, professional politicians; third, men of extreme wealth. I call special attention to the good men. Justice demands that some one acknowledge their existence. Now, the people express their wish in regard to a bill, and the House speaks for them. The measure comes to the Senate. Here party strength differs by less than six votes. All that work back in the campaign and afterward in the House simmers down to this: What will these six men do? They are not apt to be good men because they are quietly accepting the will of the people. Not so with the rich men; not so with the professional politicians. They scheme and they pull wires; they roll logs till the bill is amended into a form where the rich man's investments are safe and the politician's fences are secure; then the measure stands forth in all the dignity and all the commanding presence of the sovereign will of the American people, a spectacle for gods and men! And hasty legislation is prevented.

It is argued that the Senate prevents unwise legislation. Were all our wisdom in the Senate this might be true, but be sure you are right before you deride the wisdom of Gov. McKinley and Prof. Wilson, backed by a majority of the whole people.

The Senate has done no more in the last thirty years than to offer mere substitutes for the will of the House, and these substitutes are often inferior in nature. Since 1860, the Senate has twice shown itself far less conservative than the House in regard to the money question.

Another argument in favor of the Senate is that it represents the sober, second thought of the people; their second will or testament, as it were. Now, one-third of the Senate is elected every two years. Four years ago Section 1 was chosen. They represent the will of the people of that time; if democrats then, they are democrats now; if republicans then, they are republicans now. They remain so, even if the Legislature changes. In fact, these men stand for the first thought of the people. Two years ago Section II. of the Senate was chosen. If they represent anything, they stand for the second thought of the people. This year Section III. was elected. They represent our last and most enlightened will and testament. Here is a two-third majority of the Senate elected on back issues! Fellow congressmen, search the spectral visages of these grave antiquities and read there, if you can, the expression of the last, the ripest, the maturest opinion of the people. Why not look for it where reason points, in each newly elected House of Representatives? Gladstone and Roseberry do not fear the Commons; and yet our House represents a constituency superior to theirs. Let us be loyal.

It is argued that the Senate secures representation by territory, thus enabling sparsely settled districts to stand on an equal footing with more populous localities.

This looks well, but it does not work well. The western states are very large and the eastern states are very small. These groups stand for interests far from identical. But the theory of representation by states claims to even the whole matter. Consider this: The North Atlantic, the Middle Atlantic and the South Atlantic states command 34 senatorial votes. Add to this six northern states possessing interests most nearly identical with the Atlantic states. This gives 12 more votes, making 46 in all; that is, a majority of the Senate. Yet these 46 votes stand mainly for the narrow strip of land north of the Ohio and east of the Appalachian mountains. Notwithstanding this, they exert more power than that vast strip of territory south of the Ohio and west of the Mississippi. In its practical working out, the Senate utterly defeats the idea of fair representation by states. This system would secure the desired result only when all states were exactly equal in area. This will never be. On the other hand, if we have but one House, increasing population would equalize the power of the old and the new sections. No; the argument is worthless now.

The senate is open to this grave charge: It violates that wise principle of government which demands utter separation of the three departments of government; a principle unrecognized by despots, but at the very foundation of Republican security. First, the Senate is a legislative body. It can modify and defeat the will of the House, and that means the will of the people. It can do this, even though it is totally unfitted to do so. Second, it encroaches upon the Executive and shares in treaty making and political appointments.

In recent years we have an instance of two New York senators resigning because of a quarrel with the president over an official appointment. This power gives them patronage. They use it for their own good, and selfish, unwise legislators are the result, followed by poor laws and hard times. This appointing power corrupts both senators and the law. Lastly, the Senate acts as a court, and so invades the judicial department. It tries the president when impeached by the House. But it is never constituted as a judicial body. Its personality ought to equal that of the Supreme Court. Instead, we have the before mentioned good men, the professional politicians and the rich men. O, what a court! Besides they are open to the basest temptation, and that is to let their decision depend upon partisan interest and party capital. These judges are elected because they are such thorough partisans.

Thus the Senate partakes of all three departments of government, even though there is strong reason to believe it is unfitted and unnecessary for legislation, that its executive power makes it a menace, and that its judicial power condemns it.

My last argument is that the Senate renders popular government almost a farce. If aught is sacred, it is human rights. We must maintain equal rights, man for man, else we cannot hope to retain the loyalty and devotion of all men. The census of 1890 shows this: Nevada, 45,000 people; New York, 5,997,853. In the Senate the states are equal. That is to say, one man in Nevada equals 131 in New York. What argument can make this injustice seem just? Idaho has 84,385 inhabitants; yet, improbable as it may seem, they are equal in power to Pennsylvania's 5,258,014. Wyoming has 60,705, as an equivalent to Ohio's 3,672,316. With varying degrees of injustice, the same thing exists throughout the country. It is nothing more than a gigantic national gerrymander. The House cannot remedy the trouble in the least. It could pass a bill 70x7 times, and then this unequally, unjustly elected Senate could knock it all to pieces at its own sweet will. Think of an intelligent people hiring two agents, and then giving one power to annul the acts of the other!

Let us drop this suicidal policy and on national questions let the wish of the greatest number rule. No possible injury can result to the states. The constitution carefully provides for that. Every power given to Congress is general and is wisely bestowed. On the other hand, paragraph after paragraph guarantees to the states their individual rights. It even goes so far as to say that the enumeration of certain rights shall not be so construed as to deny others not expressly named. In fact, the problem of the Nation, as it grows older, is how to nationalize, not how to disintegrate. On all questions affecting the whole people let us vote as a unit. Drop the Senate. Drop the Electoral College. Let us do Government business in a simple, direct way, or else call on our neighbors to show us how. Not from vain disrespect to our constitution do I implore you. Our true constitution is the unseen spirit that pervades the written page. "The unseen is more real than the seen." We reverence no man, put the soul within; so let it be with our constitution. It stands for the good of the many; it stands for self-government and "triumphant democracy." Let us interpret it in the name of the people, then it shall stand forever "a tower of strength, four square to every wind that blows." We rest our case on these points, which we believe have been fairly proven:

1. The Senate has survived its usefulness and is no longer adapted to our large population, varying interests and unequal division into states.

2. It delays needed legislation and prevents action till each bill is modified to suit personal interests. For example, the late Gorman-Brice Amendment to the Wilson Bill.

3. Its small membership and its manner of election render it the natural partisan of class interests.

4. Owing to the fact that two-thirds of its members were elected on past issues, the last and ripest decision of the people is time and time again defeated.

5. It defeats equal representation by territory, owing to the inequality of the states in size, which gave a majority of small states full power in the Senate, even though they represent barely more than one-tenth of the area of the whole country. And further, it prevents any hope of remedy through increase of population.

6. By exercising the functions of the three departments of government it violates that principle which demands their utter separation.

7. Its presence justifies the existence of 44 smaller Senates.

8. On national questions it renders equal rights impossible and practically disfranchises millions on account of their geographical location.

9. It must, therefore, give us laws which do not express the wish of the majority of the people and which must breed dissatisfaction with the government and contempt for all law.

10. It has lost its hold upon the great mass of people and is therefore weakening their faith in the government.

Fellow citizens, with these ten reasons fairly stated I leave the issue in your hands. Deal with it as with a sacred trust answerable to the American people. It rests with you to inaugurate the greatest advance in the constitutional growth of the 19th Century.

BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS.

A Well Developed Case Discovered Near Tecumseh.

The subject of tuberculosis in cattle has become one of great interest and concern, not only to owner and breeders of the bos domesticus, but to those of the human family who look to this source for their chief supply of meat, milk and butter. Perhaps one of the latest and best known instances of the ravages of this disease was the case of O. S. Shipman's herd in Detroit. This herd, whose whole dairy product was consumed in Detroit, and which was a very valuable one, was suspected of disease and a complaint was made to that effect. Upon examination, 28 out of 47 were found to be tuberculous and were destroyed.

The case in question, in this vicinity, was developed in a milch cow belonging to James Bloomer, who lives on Henry Keyser's farm, 2 1-2 miles north-west of town. Mr. Bloomer purchased the cow of Aaron Waldron about April 1st. Soon after the animal seemed to be gradually getting thin and apparently growing worse though fed abundantly and having the best of care. The cow was treated for some time for tonsilitis, but without improvement.

It seems that the progress of this dread disease is very similar in the bovine race to the symptoms so well known in the human family. The case came to the notice of Dr. Shoebottom, who, being satisfied that tuberculosis existed, at once notified the state live stock sanitary commission. J. J. Woodman, of Paw Paw, Secretary of the commission came to investigate the report, arriving Monday noon in company with Dr. Gibson of Adrian. Upon examination, the official agreed with the diagnosis of Dr. Shoebottom. An autopsy was held completely verifying the diagnosis and revealing a well-marked and well advanced case of tuberculosis, nearly every organ of the animal being effected. Dr. Woodman complimented our young veterinary very highly, not only upon his diognosis, but upon his skillful assistance at the autopsy.

The importance of a prompt discovery and suppression of tuberculosis in cattle can hardly be over-estimated. The last report of the commission emphasizes this fact by placing this as the most insidious and dangerous disease to which our domestic animals are subject at the present time. No animal product is so universally utilized for human food as the milk of the cow, and it is a universally accepted fact that the facillus tuberculocus is found in the milk of all tuberculus cattle. The law also recognizes the importance of stamping out the disease in improving the officers of the commission to examine and even destroy any cattle which show symptoms of the tubercular infection.

The township board of health have been also notified and will take measures, if necessary, to hold the disease in check, until further action of the state live stock sanitary commission.

Philip Keusch is now holding down a position in Grand Rapids. Success to him.

Mrs. E. A. Clark suffered from a temporary indisposition the fore part of the week.

The ladies of the Baptist church held a very pleasant social at the church last Tuesday evening.

Miss Alice Perry left for Chicago yesterday where she will work at the dressmaker's trade.

Miss Jennie VanTuyle goes to Ypsilanti this week to take a course in Cleary's business college.

Miss Clyde Marsteller was suffering from a slight illness last week, but is now able to be out again.

Mrs. Martha Camburn and daughter Florence, of Macon, visited her daughter Mrs. Will Niblack, Tuesday.

A. G. Burton went to Detroit Saturday for the purpose of witnessing the matinee of the Old Homestead.

Miss Iva Crane, who has been the guest of Louise VanDeMark for some time, returned to her home in Chicago last Friday.

Miss Anna Eagan, who has been visiting at Martin Keusch's, left Friday for Grand Rapids where she will teach for the coming year.

The recently elected officers of the Golden Rod Chapter, O. E. S., will be installed at a special meeting called for Wednesday evening, Sept. 19th.

Lyman Thompson, who has been visiting here for about a month, returned to Grand Rapids, Monday, just in time to take in the State fair at the furniture city.

E. VanDeMark was the first man that had "sand" enough to put down a cement side-walk in front of his residence. Wish we had more citizens with Van's public spirit.

H. D. Niblack had the misfortune to step on a rusty nail Tuesday morning running the obnoxious bit of metal nearly through his foot. Though Ham is quite lame he does not fear blood-poisoning.

H. Wiltse & Son have moved their harness business into the V shaped room in rear of Lancaster's clothing store. These are very neat and nicely situated quarters for a business of this kind and the firm are as justly proud of the arrangements as any of the merchants who recently made like changes.

As Rev. Warner is taking a vacation in Canada and Rev. Ramsdell is attending the M. E. conference in Ann Arbor, there will be no preaching services in the Congregational or M. E. churches next Sabbath. Union service will be held by Rev. C. C. Marshall at the Baptist church, both morning and evening.

All lovers of good ball will go to Tecumseh to-morrow to witness the game between the Jackson A. C. and the Britton Giants. The game is of especial interest to Clinton people as it is arranged for by Clinton management. The clubs are two of the best amateur teams in the State and a warm game is looked for.

Milton Augustus and wife, of Ypsilanti, were in town Monday. On Friday, Sept. 6th, they suffered the loss of their little eight-months old daughter. The child was laid to rest in Macon, the funeral being at the Thomas home Sunday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Augustus have the sympathy of many friends hereabouts.

The suit between the two plow companies over the title or trade name was decided and settled in the circuit court Monday. Judge Lane restrained the new company from assuming to be the successors of the Woodward & Greenleaf Co., but decided that the latter had acquired no proprietary right in the name of the Clinton Plow Co., and allowed the new concern to use that name.

F. D. Lancaster last week moved his stock of clothing and gents furnishings into the new block. He occupies the east store which is a commodious room 60 x26 on the inside, giving ample room for the display and handling of his stock. The store is also neat, clean and airy, and well lighted through broad plate glass by day, and by two arc lights at night. Altogether Mr. Lancaster has as fine a house for his business as any merchant in Lenawee.

The male hopefuls of our public schools celebrated "field day" last Saturday, and though the exercises might better perhaps be called "street" day, the juveniles, as well as their older sympathisers, enjoyed as great sport as any of our large institutions of learning on such occasions. The events consisted of bicycle races, foot-races, jumping, etc., divided into different classes. Every race was witnessed by a goodly crowd who thoroughly enjoyed the sport. We were unable to obtain reports of the various events. A similar day will be observed to-morrow, which will be open to a larger class of entries.

In Clinton, now-a-days, when one man moves out the place is not long left vacant. The Lancaster store on the north side was just exacty the place which was needed by The Freese Whittlesey Co. to accommodate their increasing business. The place is being thoroughly overhauled and refitted with shelving, etc., suitable for their goods. The west side will be occupied by their boot and shoe department, while the east will afford quarters for their stock of gents' furnishing goods. The room is connected with the old store by two large archways. A complete new plate glass will be put in which, together with the other repairs, will make this one of the finest and best stocked double stores in this action of country.

A CORRECTION.

EDITOR HERALD:—Our editor(?), so called, in his last issue gives the credit of the nice cement walk in front of E. VanDeMark's residence to another party. The party Editor(?) Blanchard credits with building the walk knows nothing about said walk only as he has seen it in passing by; has nothing to do with expense of said walk and could not tell, to save his life, the cost of said walk. We always supposed newspapers were published to give correct news and not mislead the reading public, but it seems this biased editor(?) of the Local ignores all precedents. From the many blunders we have noticed in his paper during the last two years, your correspondent is of the opinion that the editor(?) of the Clinton Local is about as fit for the position he occupies as a mephitis, stirred up, would be for a bouquet.

A GREAT EXPENSE

To Carry on an Almost Helpless Fight. —At Last the Fight is Over.

(From the Battle Creek Moon.)

Our representative called at 26 Battle Creek Avenue, the residence of S. I. Robbins, and in an interview with him brought out the following facts: Mr. Robbins tells of his wife's experience in a manner that carries conviction with his words. He says: "I am sorry my wife is not at home this P. M., but no one knows better than I how she has suffered during past years. For twenty years she has been afflicted with the various forms of kidney complaint and an enlargement of the liver. She was often confined to her bed for more than two weeks at a time suffering untold agony. She has doctored constantly, and I have paid out in doctors' bills for her alone as much as $900.00, and then her relief was only such that she would be able to be around for a spell. Some time ago she felt the symptoms of another attack coming on, such as a pain in through the kidneys and back. I hardly know what induced me to get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, instead of sending for the family physician; however, I got some and she commenced their use. It was a surprise to us both to see their action; the attack was warded off, and she continued taking them with marked improvement each day of their use. She is better now than she has been in years, the pain in the back and others in the kidneys have entirely gone. Hardly a day goes by that we do not mention the great good Doan's Kidney Pills have done her. I was always opposed to patent medicines, but confess that my wife's experience with Doan's Kidney Pills has done much to change my opinions. If it were not for those pills she would not have been able to be out this afternoon.

What use is there in eating when food does you no good—in fact, when it does you more harm than good, for such is the case if it is not digested. If you have a loathing for food there is no use of forcing it down, for it will not be digested. You must restore the digestive organs to their natural strength and cause the food to be digested, when an appetite will come, and with it a relish for food. The tired, languid feeling will give place to vigor and energy, then you will put flesh on your bones and become strong. The Shaker Digestive Cordial as made by the Mount Lebanon Shakers contains food already digested and is a digester of food as well. Its action is prompt and its effects permanent.

COIN'S FINANCIAL SCHOOL.

This little book is one of the most extensive treatises on the money question that has ever been written. It shows up the evil effects of our present monetary system in a most emphatic manner. Every voter in Lenawee county, regardless of party affiliations, should read it. The Chicago Times says: "A book that will create a profound impression throughout the United States." The New York Recorder says: "It mercilessly scourges the money changers in the Temple of the Republic." The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "This book tells its readers more about gold, silver and currency, generally, than any other publication we know of, and in a way that every man can fully comprehend." A supply is kept on hand at the HERALD office. Single copies 25 cents. Every new advance paying subscriber to the HERALD will receive a copy free. Now is your time to get good reading cheap. New York World—Thrice-a-Week.

The twice-a-week edition of the New York World has been converted into the Thrice-a-week. It furnishes 3 papers of 6 pages apiece, or eighteen pages every week, at the old price of one dollar a year. This gives 156 papers a year for one dollar and every paper has 6 pages eight columns wide or 48 columns in all. The Thrice-a-week World is not only much larger than any weekly or semi-weekly newspaper, but it furnishes the news with much greater frequency and promptness. In fact it combines all the crisp, fresh qualities of a daily with the attractive special features of a weekly. Club rates with the HERALD.

UNTOLD MISERY FROM RHEUMATISM

C. H. King, Water Valley, Miss., cured by

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years, I suffered untold misery from muscular rheumatism. I tried every known remedy, consulted the best physicians, visited Hot Springs, Ark., three times, spending $1000 there, besides doctors' bills; but could obtain only temporary relief. My flesh was wasted away so that I weighed only ninety-three pounds; my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape, the muscles being twisted up in knots. I was unable to dress myself, except with assistance, and could only hobble about by using a cane. I had no appetite, and was assured, by the doctors, that I could not live. The pains, at times, were so awful, that I could procure relief only by means of hypodermic injections of morphine. I had my limbs bandaged in clay, in sulphur, in poultices; but these gave only temporary relief. After trying everything, and suffering the most awful tortures, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Inside of two months, I was able to walk without a cane. In three months, my limbs began to strengthen, and in the course of a year, I was cured. My weight has increased to 165 pounds, and I am now able to do my full day's work as a railroad blacksmith."

A Timely Reminder.

Each season forces upon our consideration its own peculiar perils to health. The advent of fall finds many reduced in strength and vigor, poorly prepared to continue the business of life. The stomach and bowels, the great highway of animal economy, is especially liable to disorder in the fall. The nervous system has also suffered in the struggle. Typhoid fever and malaria in particular find in the fall that combination of earth, air and water that mark this season as especially dangerous. The falling leaves, the decaying vegetables contribute their share of contamination. Hood's Sarsaparilla furnishes a most valuable safeguard at these important points, and should be used in the fall before serious sickness has laid you low. 1w originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system.

It is a well-known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by systematic trading through Chicago brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to $50,000 to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand.

It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading.

Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time.

MONROE PRESBYTERY.

The fall meeting of the Monroe Presbytery convened in the Presbyterian church here on Tuesday afternoon. This Presbytery consists of Branch, Hillsdale, Monroe and Lenawee counties and has two meetings yearly, vs, in the spring and fall. Though this was the fall meeting the weather experienced on that day was more suggestive of midsummer and in a tropical latitude at that. Nevertheless a fair representation of the clergy and lay presbyters throughout the district mentioned were present to take part in the deliberations. The meeting commenced Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Judge Victor H. Lane in the chair as moderator and Rev. Geo. Sheldon, of Quincy, as clerk. In the evening a public sermon was given by Rev. G. H. Smith, of Reading, which was profitably listened to by an audience largely composed of those outside the members. The sessions of the judicatory were continued Wednesday forenoon, the routine work and other business being transacted. The Presbytery was adjourned to October, when it will meet on the floor of the Synod to be held in Adrian at that time. The spring meeting will be held in Ransom on the second Tuesday in April, 1896.

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR SOCIETIES of the Monroe Presbytery followed Wednesday afternoon with their sixth annual conference. The noon train brought a goodly delegation to this meeting. The delegates and visiting members were the guests of the local society and partook of a substantial chicken pie dinner in the church parlor. Of course this was not as large a gathering as the C. E. convention held here this spring, as the conference is a meeting of a different character. However, the register showed that nearly every society in the four counties was represented, and some, as Adrian, Palmyra and Hillsdale had many members here. An interesting and instructive program had been prepared which was carried out very nearly as published.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mr. A. J. Gilbert, of Jonesville. Without giving the whole program mention might be made of the address by Miss Cora H. Bailey, of Hillsdale, and the open parliament conducted by Miss Alice Angell, of Adrian, also the missionary address by the state secretary of the C. E. Union, and the address on Christian Citizenship by Rev. L. B. Bissell, of Monroe. The principal features of the evening session were a very interesting talk on the Boston convention by B. E. Tobias, of Adrian, and the convention sermon by Rev. Geo. F. Sheldon, of Quincy.

A very interesting collection of curios, brought from the interior of China by "Mother" Lane, were on exhibition. Mrs. Lane also gave a very appropriate talk on her several year's experience in that country. Miss Alice Angell, of Adrian, was chosen president for the ensuing year.

COIN'S FINANCIAL SCHOOL.

This little book is one of the most extensive treatises on the money question that has ever been written. It shows up the evil effects of our present monetary system in a most emphatic manner. Every voter in Lenawee county, regardless of party affiliations, should read it. The Chicago Times says: "A book that will create a profound impression throughout the United States." The New York Recorder says: "It mercilessly scourges the money changers in the Temple of the Republic." The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "This book tells its readers more about gold, silver and currency, generally, than any other publication we know of, and in a way that every man can fully comprehend." A supply is kept on hand at the HERALD office. Single copies 25 cents. Every new advance paying subscriber to the HERALD will receive a copy free. Now is your time to get good reading cheap. BINGEN AND FRANKFURT.

A Taste of German Law and License, as Administered to Wheelmen.

Falls of the Rhine, July 29, '95.

We were nearing Bingen when I closed my last letter. Bingen on the Rhine, of which song and poetry have told so much, was a bitter disappointment. The river, to be sure, makes a beautiful curve here but the town is a dirty, evil-smelling place with old, decayed buildings not even picturesquely antique. Everything is awry and the people all have relatives in America—at least every one we talked with or asked a question assured us of that fact first. I think myself that it is a good place to emigrate from. We left the town and the Rhine because the road makes an air line for Mayence. For a mile, we toiled up a hill at whose summit we gained a grand view of the Rhine valley. Such an expanse of country—beautiful scenery too—I never saw at one time. At least 20 villages and cities were in sight and all the rest unbroken farming land with the silvery Rhine threading its center. The wind was behind us and away we sped on this table-land to which we had climbed. All went well until we saw a tree loaded with black cherries and that caused an unavoidable delay. The obstruction having been partly removed we went on and soon coasted three miles into Mayence. Here our travel worn appearance excited much mirth or else the inhabitants are very pleasant and laughter loving. Every place of interest which we visited lost its attraction for others and we became the object of comment. The Cathedral and Citadel were interesting. The latter especially because it was founded in the year 9 B C. But what we saw was, on the whole, not of interest to you in far off America and I must hasten to tell our experience when we left Mayence.

As we passed through the first town, Hochsheim, we chatted happily and rejoiced that we were in a couple of hours to be at rest in Frankfurt where friends were to entertain us for several days. The very cobble stones which are always on the main streets of towns, seemed to jolt less than usual. We passed them and were just spurting along on good road when a huge officer in blue clothes, brass buttons, and a helmet, hailed us. This minion of the law was actually seven feet as he stood stern and stolid before us. "Sie haben kein nummer."—"You have no number," he said. "No, but why should we?" "Come with me," he said, and we came. I put on my American nerve and told him who we were and what doing and after giving him good proof, informed him that we could not talk much German. He went unyieldingly along, and reached the burgmeister's office and motioned us to enter. When inside, he motioned us to remove our hats, we did. He told our awful sin to his chief and this immobile stupid drew from his desk a monster book, began at the beginning and slowly turned the pages until he reached the 570th, and asked me if I could read. I said, "Yes" and proceeded to read my first lesson in German law. I finally discovered that sinfully and criminally, we had ridden bicycles through the town without numbers. Six marks was the fine and as I knew that I might as well remonstrate with a steam engine, I paid up at once. Alas, not all. He motioned us to wait, drew out a multitude of papers, wrote upon six for my case and six for Harry's, and kept five and gave us one. They were receipts and evidences of our depravity and shame. We had lost two hours, six marks and were informed that we must walk through all towns or get a number each time. One and one-half marks for each license. Crestfallen and weary we rode between towns and walked through until at last we reached Frankfurt. There we walked the whole length of the town and bitterly watched the smiles of the police. But our haven of rest repaid the toil we endured. Good German hospitality, the best cooking we had ever known and hearty sympathy made us optimistic again and we decided that the world was not all bad after all.

We saw the town and was delighted in its antiquity. There are reminders of the Romans and of Charlemagne, of Gutenberg and Goethe. The latter's birth-place is a very interesting old mansion. There is the old bridge at whose center is the cock, put there as legend has it, because the architect vowed to sacrifice the first living creature which passed over and the unfortunate rooster made the first trip. The Romer or town hall, is the scene of the choice of many an emperor of the Holy Roman Empire. Then, the original house of the Rothchilds in the Jewish quarter. We entered the old cathredal while the morning services were in progress. The odorous incense, the low, solemn chant, the reverent tiptoeing of the worshipers and the organ tones sounding thro' the vast nave and transept united with our knowledge of the awe-inspiring history of the church to impress us deeply. We remembered the crowning of the emperors there and imagination reproduced the ceremony for us. No one can go to Frankfurt without seeing the marvelous work of the sculptor Dannecker. "Ariadne and the Panther." One afternoon, we went to the Palm Garden, pride of the Frankfurter, and then were persuaded to drink apfelwein and eat pretzels. Apfelwein is simply cider, case hardened. We were dizzy after one glass and gave up in disgrace, for it is a weakness in Frankfurt not to drink apfelwein as freely as water.

We could not ride our wheels while in Frankfurt without a license and we found that to the East, a bicycle was a curse. In every small town, we must get a license or walk. Then, too, we must have a bell, a lantern, and a brake. Our plan was to ride to Dresden, Prague and Munich, and then through Switzerland, but these facts changed our plans and we resolved to ride south and get out of the land where to ride a wheel was a mark of Cain.

A German bicycle ready for use, is a a thing to marvel at. It looks like a coach and four. First the wheels are heavy, then loaded with a large lantern and a brake, a bulky cylometer, a huge bell, a steel mud guard for both front and rear wheels and a tin projecting with a number. Besides this, a German wheelman out of town, always has a large packet strapped to his back and goes along at the rate of a horse car. Needless to say that ladies don't ride in this land; at least we have not seen one since we entered Germany.

There are so many sharp stones in these otherwise really good roads that our tires are badly cut. My rear wheel has been patched on the outer tube until it looks like a buzzsaw as I ride. The patches are curiosities, rags, pieces of leather and fragments of old trees. But we shall still go marching on.

Notice of Infringement.

A bill has been filed in the circuit court of Barry Co. (Hastings Mich.) by Drs. Mixer against C. M. Tower who it is alleged has been infringing on the trade-mark of Mixers Cancer and scrofula Syrup. A temporary injunction has been allowed by Judge Clement Smith restraining C. M. Tower from further use of said trade mark.

Hastings, Mich. Aug. 23, 1895.

To the wholesale and retail druggists throughout the country. We desire to give you notice of an infringement on our trade mark for Mixers' Cancer and Scrofula Syrup put up by one C. M. Tower and under the name of "Drs. Tower and Mixer Medical Co." Hastings Mich. Said Tower having no right or authority to use our name, "Mixer." The wrapper of this bogus medicine bears Dr. Mixer's portrait and is very similar to our genuine wrapper, but in every case can be detected, for on the face and back of our wrappers (which contains bottle) is our signature, "Drs. Mixer" in a bold back handwriting, every bottle also has Mixer's Cancer and Scrofula Syrup" blown in three sides, the bogus medicine being put up in plain panel bottles.

We earnestly request all persons using our C. & S. S. to be particular that they buy genuine goods, for the bogus medicine is put up without regard to merit. Examine the bottle which you now have and if it is not lettered as stated, and the signature of Drs. Mixer" on both wrapper and label return the same to your druggist or agent and exact genuine C. & S. S. In all cases avoid any medicine or circulars put out by "Drs. Tower and Mixer Medical Co." or C. M. Tower. Any person coming in contact with bogus medicine as heretofore described will confer a great favor by communicating with Drs. Mixer, Hastings, Michigan.

Very respectfully yours in the interests of right and justice to all the afflicted. DRS. MIXER.

New York World—Thrice-a-Week.

The twice-a-week edition of the New York World has been converted into the Thrice-a-week. It furnishes 8 papers of 6 pages apiece, or eighteen pages every week, at the old price of one dollar a year. This gives 156 papers a year for one dollar and every paper has 6 pages eight columns wide or 48 columns in all. The Thrice-a-week World is not only much larger than any weekly or semi-weekly newspaper, but it furnishes the news with much greater frequency and promptness. In fact it combines all the crisp, fresh qualities of a daily with the attractive special features of a weekly. Club rates with the HERALD.

Palmer, of Adrian at 29 Merrick, in the house which was already furnished for the reception of the bridal pair, and where they will commence at once the duties of housekeeping. The groom is a Tecumseh boy and his friends and relatives here wish the couple much happiness and joy.

Last Monday evening while Ed. Prichard and Robt. Elliott were speeding their trotters on the track, Robt's horse became unmanageable, throwing the driver off the cart. The horse finished the heat but Bob didn't want him to go home alone so attempted to stop him as he went out the gate. However this only resulted in Bob getting the worst of it and he still bears a few scratches to tell of his adventure. The horse finally brought up at home with little damage done.

The Good Citizenship tent was taken down last night after the meeting and placed on a car to be moved to Jackson today. This series of meetings have been well spoken of by all who were able to attend. The speaking, singing and art illustrations were all of high grade and deserving of the best of patronage. Mr. Fanning and his co-workers remain here to take part in the benefit meeting to be held in the Opera House tonight. A splendid program is arranged for the occasion, some of our best local musical talent assisting the quartette in a concert, which will be followed by a short humorous address by Mr. Fanning on "Ridiculous Things." This will be followed by a stereopticon exhibition of choice views from the large collection owned by Messrs. Fanning and Skinner. The stores and business places will all close at 8 o'clock to give all an opportunity to attend this benefit meeting. A small fee of ten cents will be charged at the door. These workers have done much good here and Tecumseh people should show their appreciation by crowding the Opera House tonight.

Benefit concert this evening.

Mr. Smith Briggs, of Woodstock, and daughter, Mrs. Martin, of Cleveland, attended the Bell-Frazier wedding here Wednesday.

We have some nice stone abutments on each side of the river by the paper mill. It would be a good plan to lay something across so people could drive over.

Miss Georgia Rogers was given a very pleasant party last evening as a farewell to her many friends here, at the home of Miss Anna Cutting. Miss Rogers left this morning for her home in Venango, Pa.

Leo H. McConnell, who lives in Raisin beyond the brick yard, has been in a critical condition for several days. Yesterday Dr. Carstens, of Detroit, assisted by Dr. North performed an operation for appendicitis. The case is very serious and the outcome doubtful.

The Hudson Post says: "Tecumseh has a Wit and Wisdom Club. Their stock in trade is taken from the two papers; wit from the Herald, wisdom from the News." The question now is: Did the Post intend this item to be regarded facetiously or seriously?

L. I. Bidwell's promising 4 year old, Coral Queen, with Fred Teachout as driver, has been winning laurels lately. At Napoleon, Ohio, last week, she took first in the 2:29 trot. At the state fair, Wednesday, she also won first, a $300 purse, in three straight heats, getting a mark of 2:20 3-4. It was a 2:27 trot with eight starters.

Last Wednesday we took a trip through the town of Ridgeway and had the pleasure of enjoying C. F. Smith's hospitality during the noon hour. Mr. Smith is almost helpless with the rheumatism but he keeps about the house and likes to see his neighbors as well as ever. The boys are now running the farm and they have just finished a fine new barn on the place.

Visitors at Devil's lake were recently entertained by an exhibition given by Professor Talmadge on a water bicycle, which he pumped around the lake with almost the ease of a wheelman on a good road. The machine, which he constructed himself, is constructed of two canvass canoes, eight feet long, twenty-two inches wide and six inches deep, fastened togther at either end by strips, upon which is fixed a frame. Two wheels, which operate with pedals, and attached to which are eight paddles, form the motive power, the handle bar serving as a rudder. It's a great invention.

Everybody in Tecumseh is looking for a good ball game tomorrow and will be there to see it. At 3:30 the game will be called between the Jackson Athletic Club and the Britton Giants. Both of these clubs are well known in Tecumseh and the game will draw a good crowd. The following is a list of players with their positions:

It seems that only too often in this world are our seasons of happiness and pleasure closely followed by the deepest sorrow and mourning. Mr. and Mrs. James Lowry had barely returned from a most enjoyable visit to their native land when they were asked to part with the life and joy of their little daughter Luella, who had accompanied them during the entire journey. She was called at the age of 5 years, 1 month and 5 days, being sick only thirty-six hours with membranous croup. The funeral was held at the house Wednesday, at 2 p. m., Rev. Brown, officiating. The sorrow brought to parents and the family by a loss of this kind can only be fully known to those who have shared a like misfortune. But, Luella, even at her age, was known and loved by many who join in extending the heart of sympathy to those bereft.

Mr. Everett Hayden, of New York, was the guest of Wm. Hayden's family the first of the week.

Last Tuesday was Tom Moffat's birthday and it was one of the hottest of the season. Though Tom was not a hundred years old he made a century run, being gone from the hotel 14 1-2 hours and in the saddle 8 hours and 3 minutes. This is the best time made here considering the heat.

People in these parts well know the methods employed by Adrian clubs and managers in playing ball, but in spite of all their experience with them, they were more than disgusted at the cowardly back down made by them in their game with Jackson yesterday. Bluff and kicking and hoodooing are bad enough, but one would think the members of the Adrian club would blush at this baby act, even if the managers, through fear of Jackson's superiority, would stoop to take such advantage.

Last Wednesday at high twelve occurred the marriage of Miss Agnes Eliza, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Frazier, to Mr. Allen Dugald Bell, of Ely, Minn. Mr. Bell is superintendent of the Chandler mine, situated at Ely, Minn., and operated by the Minnesota Iron Co. After a wedding lunch the bridal party took the afternoon train for Detroit. The best wishes of a host of friends will accompany the bride to her western home.

Abraham Lincoln's sentimental perplexities are to be shown in an article of singular interest which John Hilmer Speed has written from unpublished letters of Lincoln to Joshua Speed, for the next issue of The Ladies' Home Journal. The article will show that the great President was not steady in his affairs of the heart, that he floundered in his love, and finally induced his friend Speed to marry and tell him (Lincoln) whether marriage was a failure or not.

MINERS PERISH.

Fire Breaks Out in a Copper Mine in Michigan.

Thirty-Five Men Entombed in the Burning Pit—All Avenues of Escape Cut Off, and They Are Doubtless Dead.

HOUGHTON, Mich., Sept. 9.—At 12:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon fire was discovered by timbermen in the thirty-seventh level of the Osceola copper mine. The timberman at once rushed to the shaft and when brought to the surface in the big bucket gave the alarm. Thirty-six miners were at work at the time, and up to the present but one person has been rescued, a pump boy, and he died shortly after reaching the open air. Among those known to have been imprisoned in the burning mine are the following:

The Doomed Men.

Capt. Richard Trembath, shift boss; Fred Reardon, Richard Bickel, Michael Johnson, Michael Schulte, Alexander Daniel, John Cuddihy, Moses Greenfield, William Bryant, Thomas Curtis, Robert Johns, Peter Palmreen, William Donald, Barney Elmer, Anton Seycsly, Peter Stangard, Frank Lauder, Walter Dahl, Joseph Lawter, Joseph Harrington, A. Winzia, Andrew Ross, Stephen Bythbere, Joseph Slutts, Isaac Harvey and two Austrian trammers, names unknown.

Twenty of the unfortunates are married and most of them have large families.

The blaze on the thirty-seventh level is 2,600 feet below the earth's surface. The underground workings are heavily timbered with pine, and as the fire spread it generated great quantities carbonic acid gas, which sank to the lower level, so that death from suffocation is as certain to all in the level below the thirty-seventh as to those above. Smoke is pouring in dense volumes from the mouth of every shaft in the mine, and escape through those openings is impossible.

An Incendiary's Work.

It is now positively known that the thirty-five men entombed cannot possibly escape, nor can their bodies be recovered until the fire is entirely extinguished, which may not be for months. It is the opinion of some of the oldest officials of the mine that the fire was the work of an incendiary. They say there could be no other explanation of the fire starting in that portion by any other means, as no oil, waste or rubbish is used or accumulates there, and the timber work is out of the reach of the lamps on the miners' hats.

Warnings Unheeded.

The saddest feature of the disaster is that all the doomed wretches might have escaped had they heeded warnings, as Capt. Edwards, who was the first to detect the existence of fire, dispatched messengers to every slope where the miners were known to be working, but as the mine is not heavily timbered, except in the shafts, the idea of serious danger was scouted. By going a roundabout way the last men who were in the lower level of No. 4 shaft might have escaped, but they preferred a shorter route of ascent, and when they got up to the eighteenth level found themselves cut off. Some passed into lateral drifts expecting to reach other shafts. Capt. White descended with Anton Secysk, who said he had left his father in a lower level, but Secysk lost his head, and finding him unmanageable Capt. White abandoned him to his fate and pushed toward the south workings of the mine and reached the surface in safety, the only one of the party in No. 4 shaft to escape. He reported that he had offered to carry one of the drift boys to the surface, but the boy was so frightened that he refused to move and was left to perish.

Pathetic Scenes.

Gathered about the shafts of the Osceola are the wives, mothers and children of the unfortunate men, anxiously awaiting further news from their loved ones. The scenes are very pathetic, but beyond the doubtful assurance that the men may have found the abandoned Hecla drift little comfort can be extended. Every effort is being put forth to rescue the unfortunate men, but hope is not high.

The Burning Mine.

The Osceola is, next to the Tamarack, the chief copper producer in the Clark Bigelow group. It has been in continuous operation since 1888 and paid average dividends of $100,000 annually. The deepest point of the mine is 2,700 feet.

CALUMET, Mich., Sept. 11.—Ten miners went down the southernmost shaft of the Osceola mine Monday morning. The men were especially selected among the fearless and experienced workmen, habited to breathing powder smoke and foul air. The party descended in the skip, or iron car, used in bringing up rock from the mine to the 24th level, and managed to press north on that level to within 250 feet of No. 4 shaft, next south of the burning one. At that point two of the party were overcome by the gas, and to save adding fresh victims to the already long list the relief expedition turned back. In No. 1 shaft at the other end of the mine a similar attempt was made by a carefully organized party similar to the first, but at the depth of only 280 feet down the shaft smoke was met in such volume that it was foolhardy to descend further and the miners quickly came to the surface. The experience of the rescuing parties are in Nos. 1 and 8, where the smoke would naturally be met with in the least quantities, renders it certain that the entire mine is now filled with it, and cuts off the last hope that the missing men may have been able to preserve their lives. Rescuing parties will be sent down as frequently as possible to test the condition. It will probably be several days before the mine will be clear of smoke, even if the fire has gone out, which is quite doubtful. Every shaft was late Monday afternoon ordered tightly closed up, to remain so for twenty-four hours.

Will Sell Bonds.

MENOMINEE, Sept. 6.—Menominee county has ordered the sale of $10,000 worth of 5 per cent. bonds, payable April 1.

FARMERS FLEE FROM FIRE.

Thousands of Dollars' Worth of Property on Beaver Island Destroyed.

HARBOR SPRINGS, Mich., Sept. 10.—The fire on Beaver island has started anew and is making fearful headway. People who came in on Monday's boat say the fire was started by some campers leaving their camp-fire unattended. The farmers on the island are leaving everything and fleeing to the St. James river and the coast. Many thousand dollars' worth of valuable timber has already been burned, and clouds of smoke cover the lake. Cinders have been borne to the mainland. The only hope of stopping the fire is in backfiring at the swamp between the marsh and the village of Cross. If not stopped there the town must go.

LANSING, Sept. 9.—In the Michigan crop report for September, issued Saturday, Secretary of State Gardner gives the Michigan wheat yield at 12.61 bushels per acre, the estimate being based on the results of actual threshings of 76,000 acres. It is estimated that beans will be 76 per cent., peaches, 80 per cent.; apples, 28 per cent.; and potatoes, 84 per cent. of an average crop. The estimate for oats is 23 bushels per acre, and barley, 16.50 bushels.

REFUSE TO QUIT.

Pumpmen and Firemen in Michigan Will Not Obey Dictates of Union.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Sept. 9.—The miners' union ordered the pumpmen, firemen and other union employes engaged at section 21 mine of the Lake Superior company to come out Saturday morning, but the men say the order is a ridiculous one and stick to their posts. This is the first refusal to obey the union dictates and it indicates weakness on the part of the union.

Big Peach Crop.

SOUTH HAVEN, Sept. 5.—The peach yield in this vicinity will exceed anything heretofore anticipated by the most sanguine. One of the successful features this year is the use of refrigerator cars to ship to distant points.

STATE CENSUS FIGURES.

A Gain of 147,565 Shown Since the Government's Count in 1890.

LANSING, Sept. 7.—An important bulletin has been issued from the state census department. It gives the corrected total population of the state at 2,241,641, of which 1,670,786 are natives and 570,855 foreign born. The population of males among the foreign born is 3.47 per cent. greater than in the native population. The report shows a steady proportionate increase in the number of foreign born persons in the state over the census of 1884.

The table relating to the nativity of the inhabitants of the state is of considerable interest, nothing so exhaustive having ever been compiled in the state before. The number of inhabitants of incorporated cities returned as having both parents native is 240,633; the number having both parents foreign born, 467,536, and the number having one of each, 90,182.

Outside the cities the number is 671,173 native, 537,392 foreign and 165,393 native and foreign. The number in each 1,000 having native parents is 301 in the cities, as compared with 488 in the country; the number having both parents foreign born is 586 in the cities, as compared with 390 in the country; and the number having one parent native and the other foreign born is 113 in the cities, as compared with 122 in the country. The number of inhabitants with native parents, to each 1,000 of population, was 172 less in 1894 than in 1870. In each 1,000 inhabitants the total of foreign parentage was 413 in 1870, 547 in 1890 and 534 in 1894.

The state has increased in population since 1890 but 147,565, a large proportion of the number being accounted for by the growth of the cities. Many of the agricultural counties show an actual decrease in population. The population of some of the leading cities is given as follows:

Detroit	287,837	Battle Creek	15,522
Grand Rapids	79,424	Menominee	12,538
Saginaw	44,612	Ann Arbor	11,009
Muskegon	20,522	Manistee	13,449
Kalamazoo	21,353	Ishpeming	11,687
Jackson	22,414	Marquette	9,724
Port Huron	18,146	Adrian	9,511

VICTIMS OF DYNAMITE.

Explosion of a Cartridge Kills One and Injures Two Persons.

HASTINGS, Mich., Sept. 7.—A terrible accident occurred Friday morning on the farm of Henry Ragley, 6 miles northeast of this city, which resulted in the death of one and serious injury of two other persons. Robert Bryan, of Coates' Grove, was employed in driving a well. He had driven down 99 feet and was blasting with dynamite through a large rock. As he stood by the well with a cartridge in his hand ready to drop into the pipe, the cartridge exploded with terrific force, killing him instantly and severely injuring Mrs. Henry Ragley and Miss Whitney, who were standing near. Bryan was terribly mangled, having his forearm entirely blown away and his body torn open so that his vitals protruded.

A Bank Failure

AN INVESTIGATION DEMANDED.

A general banking business is done by the human system, because the blood deposits in its vaults whatever would be worth gain from day to day. This would be laid up against "a rainy day" as a reserve fund—we're in a condition of healthy prosperity if we have laid away sufficient capital to draw upon in the hour of our greatest need. There is danger in getting thin, because it is a sign of letting down in health. To put in blood is nearly always to gain in some flesh. The odds are in favor of the germs of consumption, grip, or pneumonia if our liver be inactive and our blood impure, or if our flesh be reduced below the healthy standard. What is required is an increase in our germ-fighting strength. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery enriches the blood and makes it wholesome, stops the waste of tissue and at the same time builds up the strength. A medicine which will rid the blood of its poisons, cleanse and invigorate the great organs of the body, vitalize the system, thrill the whole being with new energy and make permanent work of it, is surely a remedy of great value. So when we make a positive statement that 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption can be taken in the early stages of the disease, CURED with the "Discovery," it seems like a bold assertion. All Dr. Pierce asks is that you make a thorough investigation and satisfy yourself of the truth of his assertion. By sending to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., you can get a free book with the names, addresses and photographs of a large number of those cured of throat, bronchial and lung diseases as well as of skin and scrofulous affections by the "Golden Medical Discovery." It also publish a book of 160 pages, bound, medical treatise on consumption, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, which will be mailed on receipt of address and six cents in stamps.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning Sept. 15. Comment by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M. Topic, Healing of the Ten Lepers.

SCRIPTURE READING.—Luke xvii, 11-19.

Dying by inches! Objects of loathing to themselves as well as to all others; hideous in their growing deformity; losing by degrees the bodily senses and all sensibility; mental dullness keeping pace oftentimes with physical infirmity; spiritual powers becoming likewise insensible; the leper is now and always has been an outcast from society from very necessity. No hope of cure; death was the only relief from a life worse than death. Those loved most dearly must be shunned most carefully lest they be also infected with the dread disease. No place in the home circle, synagogue, temple, workshop, bazaar or common streets for these stricken ones. If any one appeared they must cover the head and cry "Unclean! Unclean!" and avoid all meeting. Only with others like themselves could they find company.

Ten lepers! Samaritans and Jews together! Climax of the loathsome and horrible!

Hark! How they cry! Their strangely unnatural voices are more fearful than their forms. How differently they act than usual. It is no dull, mechanical call of "Unclean!" but shrill, piercing screams. How they wave their arms and beckon. They have recognized the prophet of Nazareth. "Jesus, have mercy on us!" is their cry as they stand afar off, not daring to come nigh the throng with him. He hears them. He stops and looks. "Go shew yourselves to the priest," he shouts back to them. They wait for no preparation, but start on the long journey to Jerusalem from the northern border of Samaria. The slow, crippled hobbling grows easier with every mile. Muscles gain strength and suppleness, blood courses more freely, sight, hearing, feeling come slowly back. They walk, then run; they jump and shout with joy "Clean, clean!" and push with all speed toward Jerusalem that they may have the priest officially pronounce them so. They obey most strictly the command of Jesus.

One alone stops. Cured like the rest, but what has he to hope for in Jerusalem? He is a Samaritan. The priest is naught to him. Jesus cured him and his soul goes out in trust and love toward the Master. He will find him and free the soul by telling of the gratitude that fills it. Backward he turns over the miles he has come. Down the road that Jesus went he hastens till he sees in the distance the company. From the hill top he shouts with all his might to them; he runs and overtakes them. Shouting glory and praise to God, he falls at the feet of Jesus and thanks him.

"Were not all of the ten cleansed?" asks Jesus. Yes, in body, but of them all only this one, and he an alien, returned to thank God. Their hearts were still insensible to gratitude and love of God; still unclean were they, lepers in spirit.

"Arise," says Jesus to the returned Samaritan. "Thy faith hath made thee whole."

How to Grow.

In the home where a baby lives how its growth is watched! The day when it can sit alone, when it begins to creep—above all, when it takes the first step—is a memorable time. Creeping, walking, running, all to be learned, all to be taught by those who have learned. So in Christian life. The young convert must be nurtured. The church, the League, is a nursery to teach Christ's little ones how to walk in the narrow way. They need to be encouraged in giving expression to their inner life. Christian testimony is almost indispensable to growth in grace. Tell your experience to some one, and you will soon have more experience to tell. Neglect it, and you will soon be doubtful if you have any. Pray in public, and you will find it like taking the first steps alone—hard at first, but easier each time you repeat the lesson. Our young people need to become strong in these things. Men and women of prayer and speech are greatly needed in God's cause. Grow into this grace.

Camp Meeting Fire.

Many Epworth Leaguers will attend the various camp meetings. Many are sure to be helped into a deeper spiritual experience. It is important that on the return home all find their proper place in the regular activities of the church. Let the weekly prayer meetings ring with the songs of devotion. Let the testimonies be prompt, hearty and simple. Give new force to all the various lines of work. League meetings will be resumed where they were discontinued during the hot weather. Plan for an earnest, aggressive campaign for soul saving. Let the fire burn!

A Great Lack.

Many active members of the church most useful in various spheres are missing the chief thing, which is genuine spiritual life. They mean to be conscientious, but their work is too much outward. When they come face to face with spiritual minds, meet trouble or life sinks apace they will be conscious of a painful vacancy within. "To be spiritually minded"—not merely busy about the church and League—"is life and peace."

Push.

On the entrance doors of many places of business you see a brass plate with that word. Doors rarely open of their own accord. Few but will yield to persistent effort. Push is a prime factor in success of all kinds. Push the League matters if you want them to succeed.

God doeth well in giving us his grace and benefits. Man doeth ill and wickedly when he returns not God's gifts to him with thankfulness.

Not all that is high is holy, not all that is sweet good, not every desire pure, nor is everything dear to us pleasing to God.

A Sign of Peace

is the downcome of war time prices.

The during-the-war price of baking powder was 45 to 50 cents a pound. Cream of tartar was then 49 cents a pound, soda, 6 cents. Cream of tartar is now 18 cents, soda, less than 2½ cents.

Still the would-be monopolists want the same "war" prices (45 to 50c. a pound) for their products.

CALUMET Baking Powder

TO THE CHURCHES.

Rev. J. C. Hogan on the Subject "If Christ Should Come to the Churches."

The following extracts are from a powerful sermon delivered Aug. 27, by Rev. J. C. Hogan before the Free Methodist campmeeting at Ararat, Pa., on the subject "If Christ Should Come to the Churches." Mr. Hogan said:

If Christ should come to the churches doubtless he would find some noble souls in both the pulpit and the pews—men and women loyal to Him first, last and all the time and who refuse to bow the knee to Elon Baal. If Christ should come to the churches to-day He would find the rank and file well meaning and even ready to rally around His standard, but at the same time He would find them badly blinded and misled by those at the head of the churches; for be it remembered that it is the chief priests and scribes who stand in the way of reform and not the common people. If Christ should come to the chuches I fear He would find things very much the same as when He walked upon this earth more than eighteen hundred years ago. We read in the third chapter of Mark that Jesus entered into the synagog, and there was a man there which had a withered hand. And they, the Scribes and Pharisees, watched Him whether He would heal him on the Sabbath day, that they might accuse Him.

You will note the enormity of their iniquity when you mark the fact that it was not what is called 'the world, the flesh and the devil,' but the Scribes and Pharisees—the men who sat in Moses' seat, the successors to Moses, the recognized leaders of the people in faith and morals, who watched Jesus that they might accuse Him. These Scribes and Pharisees were eminently pious and sanctimonious sinners, so to speak. They fasted frequently and gave tithes even above the written law. But they had so far forgotten the original truth as to overlook the fact that the Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath. In their view the Sabbath and the synagog were too holy to be used for doing good. The point at issue was: Should the man be healed on the Sabbath day? We have no intimation from the text or the context that these Scribes and Pharisees had put forth any effort to help this poor and afflicted man before that day or that they intended to do so after the Sabbath. They were very much concerned over the Sabbath, but lost sight of suffering humanity!

There are Scribes and Pharisees to-day who strain at a Sunday saloon, but swallow a license party. They object to the discussion of Prohibition and reforms on Sunday or in the pulpit, but they do not seem to be in any great haste in coming forward Monday or any other day of the week. If those modern Scribes and Pharisees will not touch Prohibition on Sunday why don't they do something for the cause on Monday?

How did Christ deal with such men? Let us see. 'And He saith unto the man with the withered hand, stand forth. We hear nothing about waiting for public sentiment or the necessity of persuading these pious hypocrites to take a different view. No. Christ forces the issue then and there! To the afflicted man He says, 'Stand forth,' before the people. Then He saith unto the scribes and Pharisees, 'Is it lawful to do good on the Sabbath days or to do evil? to save life or to kill?'

Surely that was a simple and fair question to put to the doctors of the church, to ask the men who sat in Moses' seat! Surely they will be ready and pleased to answer a question so reasonable. But they held their peace. To-day there are preachers who say that they doubt the wisdom of the Prohibition party method, but they fail to tell us anything about the wisdom and morality of the license method.

Jesus was unlike most of the modern ministers who seem to be willing that hundreds of thousands of souls, innocent and otherwise, shall suffer in this life or go down to perdition while the preachers wait for 'public sentiment' or anything to save their popularity, and so as not to offend the license voters in the pews.

If Christ should come to the churches to-day and enter the pastorate as we now have it, and should undertake to heal the broken hearts and blighted souls now cursed by the rum power, by presuming to discuss the holy cause of Prohibition and related reforms, demanding righteousness at the ballot-box, he would no doubt offend the pious license voter. But they would not have to go out to consult with the license sinners of the other party. All they would have to do is to petition for a change of preachers, and they would find most of the bishops and presiding elders at their service, especially if the petitioners represented money and political influence. There is no need to cut off the head of John the Baptist in these days. It is only necessary to cut down the salary, which seems to answer just as well, and at the same time saves funeral expenses. The Pharisees were very much concerned over the Sabbath: so are most of our preachers to-day when it comes to the matter of Prohibition.

When Jesus preached in the synagog that day the Scribes and Pharisees got up and went out. When that thing happens in a modern congregation, so far have the people drifted from the original spirit of the gospel, they at once get on 'nerves and nettles' over it.

If Christ should come to the churches, He would find that there are many ministers and people who ask the Lord to lead them in a great many things, but when it comes to politics they think that they can judge best themselves.

He would find the churches asking more of the state than they exact of their own ministers and members. He would find them demanding Prohibition of the government while allowing their ministers and members to indorse and support the sin of license at the ballot-box.

If Christ should come to the churches he would have to issue a search warrant to find a Methodist bishop or presiding elder who has ever been known to preach one whole sermon in his official capacity on the subject of total abstinence and Prohibition.

If Christ should come to the churches he would find most of the ministers, when in conference assembled, pledging their votes to Him, but on election day giving them to the license parties.

If Christ should come to the churches He would find ministers standing before the altar, discipline in hand, demanding of candidates for admission into membership, 'Do you renounce the Devil and all his works?' while they themselves, are supporting the chief work of the devil, with a license ballot. He would find even Prohibitionist preachers holding revivals that make hundreds of converts to the church, but not one convert to Prohibition. He would hear preachers say 'The saloon can never be legalized without sin, at the same time they receive into the church all the license-voting sinners that may apply for membership.

It is not with satisfaction but with mingled shame and indignation that I tell these things. It is not for wrath's sake but for conscience' sake that I make them known. If a house is on fire he is our friend who gives the alarm. The foul fire and power of the saloon influence is spreading. We ought to sound the alarm, and put our money where it will do good in the holy cause of reform. We want righteousness at the ballot-box, and at every other box!"

MICHIGAN SPEAK

The Story of a Marvelo Transformation.

A Lady of the Pine Tree State Tells of the Exp of Herself and Her Son—Willing to Make Affidavit to the Truth of Her Story.

From the Courier-Herald, Hopkins, Mich.

Several days ago a representative of the Courier-Herald was called to Dover, Clare County, Michigan, to investigate and report what was purported to be a marvelous occurrence. In order to reach Dover it is necessary to go to Clare by rail and thence by team. After a drive of about fifteen miles into the country the reporter proceeded to find his item of interest which was not an arduous task, for the first man met knew very well indeed the subject of this article, Mrs. Sarah E. Coulter. Everybody in Clare County knows the Coulter family, if not personally, by the sickness that has brought poverty into their home and made them prominent figures in the community.

As the scribe knocked at the door of their residence he was met by Mrs. Coulter who, upon learning his mission, extended a hearty welcome and the following interview took place.

"I understand, Mrs. Coulter, that you have been close to death on several occasions, and that through certain means have been, figuratively speaking, resurrected. Have you any objections to giving me, in brief, a short review of the circumstances?"

"Certainly not," quickly responded the lady, "I will be only too pleased to tell the whole story so that it may be read by others:

"About fourteen years ago we decided to take up our abode in Dover and everything went along smoothly for several years, business progressed and, being of a saving temperament, we accumulated quite an amount. Our family increased as the years rolled by and we now have five children living, the oldest fifteen, youngest three; but sickness made its way into our household, and doctors' bills flooded upon us, until we have nothing left but our home and these sweet children. Everything went to satisfy the claims of physicians.

"About three years ago I had a miserable feeling at the back of my ears, my right hand became paralyzed, and the paralysis extended to my arm and throat, and would affect my head and eyes, sometimes for days I would lose my sight, my face was deformed, lifeless as it were, my nose was drawn to one side, and I presented a pitiable appearance and never expecting to regain my natural facial expressions. I employed the best physicians that could be procured expending thousands of dollars for their services, but could not obtain relief. At last, they stated my case was beyond the reach of medical skill, and it would be but a short time until the end would come. This certainly was not very encouraging to me, but I never gave up hope. In connection with receiving the attendance of physicians I have tried every medicine known to the apothecary but never received any relief until Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People came to my assistance. Before I had taken half of the first box the deformity in my face had left me, and before four boxes had been consumed the paralysis had disappeared entirely and much to my surprise I felt like a new woman. I have not taken any medicine since last spring. Just about a year ago, and my trouble has not appeared since. DOVER, CLARE CO., MICH.

Dear Sirs:—This is to certify that I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for rheumatism and have received great benefit from them. My general health has been better than for years. I think they are all they claimed for them.

Yours truly,
WILLIAM D. WALLACE.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People have an enormous sale. An inspection of their prescriptions shows that they contain in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. There are no ill effects following the use of this wonderful medicine. It can be given to children with perfect safety.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

BIG PROFITS —ON— Small Investme

Returning prosperity will make many rich, but nowhere can they make so and short time as by successful Speculation in Grain, Provisions and Stocks.

$10.00 FOR EACH DOLLAR INVESTED can be made by our Systematic Plan of Speculatio

originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system.

It is a well-known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States by systematic trading through Chicago brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand.

It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading.

Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time.

WRITE FOR CONVINCING PROOFS, also our Manual on successful speculation, and our Daily Market Report, full of money-making pointers, ALL FREE. Our Manual explains margin trading fully. Highest references in regard to our standing and success.

TECUMSEH'S GLOBE WHEELERS.

Iden Baden, the Famous German Watering Place, and the Great Strassburg Cathedral.

MILAN, Aug. 4, 1895.

Dear Mr. Editor:—Frankfurt was the last resting place of your globe-wheeler, and from there we departed one fine afternoon with a good breeze against us but fine roads. We were still in the region of licenses, and numbers, and bells, so we rode to the first town and walked through it, rode to its successor and took another walk. You won't believe it, but they are so mean in this country that their laws not only compel you to lead the awful bike through a town, but they lay out a town along the main road—every house—and string the town out for a mile. It is terrible the measures that they take against the noble sport. We passed Darmstadt with its statue to Grand Duke Ludwig somebody and some ducal palaces, and finally some fossilated ideas about bicycles. We didn't love anybody, we were unhappy, we said unpleasant things and wished ourselves in the land of the free. Soon we were in Bavaria. The dialect changed and the people changed as well as their houses. The beams are exposed on the outside of the buildings. They go through some conventional zig-zags and then are filled in between with plaster and brick. Some houses are thatched, some tiled, and some have boards. The roofs are gothic in form and have a window in the centre for the upper room. We wanted to reach Worms that night, but, tired and footsore we gave up in a small town Biblis, where we sought the best hotel. That bed chamber haunts me yet. They charged us extra cunningly because we were foreigners, and after paying our six cents apiece, we were led by a hag with a dim flickering candle to a crooked structure used as stairs. Our hideous guide mumbled and chattered and conducted us to a gothic room 6x9 with strips of paper fluttering from the wall.

One window in the inclined ceiling was directly over the bed. The bed defies portrayal. They were covered with yellow colored sheets, to hide dirt, and above this a mattress common to German beds. Beneath was a something made of corn stalks. A grotesque chromo of the Virgin Mary hung on the wall. There was a tin wash dish and a crippled stand which should have been pensioned and let off duty long ago. Needless to say we did not disrobe. No, we put our night gowns on the yellow pillows to keep our heads from the dirt, we placed the matresses intended for covers beneath us and crawled to the dizzy heights of the bed to sleep a troubled sleep.

When we left town on the following morning our progress was actually hindered by a flock of over 1000 geese driven by an evil tempered old witch with a whip. The throng filled the road swarmed into every open yard and hissed and fluttered as we struggled through. We soon reached Worms after crossing the Rhine on a bridge of boats. The boats lie side by side and have a platform resting upon them. When boats pass, several bridge boats are allowed to float out of the chain and then hauled back. Worms is one of the most ancient of German cities. Towers of the medieval walls are extant. History has written much on its venerable brow. Charlemage lived there. Luther met Charles V and the six Electors there at the famous diet. We hunted out the Luther monument—very impressive—and palace where Luther made his defense. Then with a glance at the cathedral, we mounted our wheels and rode away to new fields for sight seeing. The roads are very straight for long distances between large cities. The only curves or turns are in small towns and it is enough to make any road squirm to get in a small Bavarian town. On the main street in front of every farmer's house, (for all farmer's live in town) is a huge manure heap and usually piled about the pump. This feature, taken with the dirty children, streets paved with huge stones and the general dirty plaster exterior of the houses constitutes a very unpleasant picture.

At Manheim we paid the third two cents that we had spent for crossing the Rhine. This time, over a bridge with magnificent portals. We visited the old structure, and then rode on to Heidelberg, the famous university town. Here two Americans informed us that students were duelling at the Hirschagasse, or students' tavern. We hurried up there and bought a lunch so so that we might watch the excitement with an excuse. They fight savagely there and it is a serious matter. One fellow had his cheek laid open six inches, and cuts and pricks, and blood were plenty. It was a savage scene and the pale faces of the defeated as their friends led them away, will haunt me long. Lady friends of contestants awaited anxiously the outcome and drove away with them in hacks when the struggle was over. Heidelberg is wonderfully situated for scenery, at the mouth of the mountainous valley of the Neckar, and its pride, the magnificent old castle, adds not a little charm. That cradle of science, its old university, is most venerable with its antique air and rather ruined appearance. The students in their various class caps are very picturesque as they wander about town in groups. When we left the town enroute for Karlsruhe, an old farmer kindly pointed out the tower of the Speyer Catbedral. It was fifteen miles distant, but plainly visible.

The Rhine Valley from Mainz up to Basel is a long strip of level plain, twenty-five miles or more in breadth.

We have been riding in the fertile valley, on both sides of which rise a range of mountains which we approach very close, now on one side and now on the other. Carlsruhe is a resort and the gayety of the place at once impressed us. At the gate of the city we went through our usual program of looking up our places to visit and arranging our line of march through the town accordingly. An old palace and an art gallery, and a gay street was all we saw, and then found our way out toward Baden Baden. The following day we saw the strangest sight we had witnessed. In a small town, we met a funeral procession, weird and aweing enough with the chant of the priest and the slow tolling of the bell as they neared the church. An aged priest led, followed by two boys in a red garb, and a woman, apparently the mother of the dead child, carrying the coffin balanced upon her head. It was a most pitiful sight.

I don't need tell about Baden Baden. So famous a watering place and its location at the entrance of the Black Forest is too well known. Its "drink hall" an old castle, are interesting as are also the 50,000 annual visitors of whom we seem to see all in one day. Late in the afternoon we stopped at a bakery in a small town to buy a bun or two which would sustain us until supper. The baker's daughter was a charming damsel, and the indecision which Harry displayed in choosing biscuit was alarming. After we were on the way several miles, he wanted to return and buy more biscuit. We compromised, however, by watching some bare-footed peasant girls gathering sheaves of wheat. The Rhine valley bristles with German fortifications. Every town or city of any size is surrounded by several moats and walls and has a citadel, but at Strassburg we were nearly lost in the intricate network of fortifications. Soldiers are drilling constantly for every sort of contest. We saw them running in perfect lines, guarding as in war every gate, and even the neighboring forests were the scene of marching and drilling. The Strassburg cathedral is famous. For me, I can never forget it. I fixed my much scarred tire in front of it while Harry took his turn seeing the interior and clock. The crowd was as great as a political speech could draw. I could hardly get air enough to fill the pneumatic tube. The University where Goethe graduated is here, and several magnificent buildings, as the Imperial Palace and Temple Neuf. Gutenburg is claimed by this city also, and has a fine monument.

C. H. VANTYNE.

BBITTON vs. JACKSON A. C.

It was advertised for a good game and would have been such, had it been played through without rooting, kicking and chewing. But these qualities so assiduously studied and so perfectly mastered as they are by ball players, fans and small boys seem to have largely superceeded the legitimate methods of the national game. Saturday the crowd and some of the players were evidently striving to emulate the example of certain league teams in their efforts to kick and scrap. It appears that all the kicking was not done on one side, as many here are wont to believe.

The trouble and excitement in the crowd had probably more to do with the teams not being able to agree on a change of umpire than any disagreement between the managements. However the case may be, it is extremely unfortunate for lovers of good ball, that between the crowd and the players so [illegible] a hopeless squabble. The winners were to receive 60 per cent of the net proceeds. As it ended, they divided equally. At the end of the 6th inning the game stood 12 to 11 in favor of Britton.

The September Cosmopolitan.

Fiction and travel are the strong points of the September Cosmopolitan, which by the way, illustrates better than any previous number the perfection of its plant for printing a magazine of the highest class. Conan Doyle, H. H. Boyesen and Clark Russell are among the story tellers. A well known New York lawyer relates the story of "A Famous Crime" the murder of Dr. Parkman by Professor Webster. A delightful sketch of "An English Country House Party" is from the pen of Nina Larre Smith—the house at which she visited being no less than the historic Abbotsford, still occupied by the direct descendants of Sir Walter Scott. "The Realm of the Wonderful" is descriptive of the strange forms of life discovered by science in the ocean's depths, and is superbly illustrated in a surprising and marvelous way by the author, who is a member of the Smithsonian staff. An article on Cuba is timely. Without bothering the reader with unnecessary description of the famous yachts now so much talked of, The Cosmopolitan presents four full-page illustrations showing these noted boats. Thomas Moran again contributes a series of the most exquisite landscapes of western scenery, twelve in number, illustrating an article by Col. John A. Cockerill, on "Modern Utah." And it may be said that no more beautifully illustrated number of The Cosmopolitan has ever been given to the public.

WATERMELONS.

O, the Georgia watermelon! It's a growin' coo an' green,
An'll soon be pullin' heavy on the stem;
An' the knife—it needs a whettin', an' the blade is gettin' keen.
O, the Georgia watermelon is a gem!

Melons, cool an' green!
Just the best you ever seen!
See the sweet juice drippin'
From them melons cool an' green!

O, the Georgia watermelon, with the purtiest sort o' stripe!
It ain't a streak o' fat an' streak o' lean;
You thump her with your fingers, an' you hear her answer: 'Ripe!"
O, the Georgia watermelon, cool an' green!

When you pull a Georgia melon you must know what you are at,
An' look out how your knife is goin' in;
Put one-half on this side o' you—the other half on that,
An' then you get between 'em an' begin!

They're mighty—mighty fillin' with their flamin' hearts o' red—
Like the reddest o' the roses in the south!
When cotton's down to nothin', take the place o' meat an' bread—
Make you think a hive o' honey's in your mouth!

But they're away ahead o' honey, as a slice or two will prove;
It's slicker an' it's sweeter as it slips;
There ain't no nigger problem when the melon's on the move—
Make the white man an' the nigger smack his lips!

Melons, cool an' green—
Don't want any fence between!
But I'd outclimb all creation
For the melons cool an' green!
—Frank L. Stanton in Atlanta Constitution.

A JUDGE OF CHARACTER.

"So you want a situation?" said the business man.

"Yes, sir," replied the applicant.

"Hum—do you ever go fishing?"

"Occasionally."

"When were you fishing last?"

"Day before yesterday."

"Catch anything?"

"Not a thing."

"You can come to work next Monday, if you like. If you keep on telling the truth like that you may be a partner in the firm one of these days."

The old story is going the rounds that the days of the bicycle are numbered. It is said that the wheel is a fad and it will soon die out. This is a mistake. There are more riders today than ever and the prospective buyers are greater than ever before. People have become to look upon the wheel as a necessity and not a plaything. It is practical and the business man can hardly get along without it. Cycling is no fad and the sales of '96, according to all reports, will far eclipse any previous years. This is a progressive age. The hustlers get there and the bike is just the thing for the hurried business man. We may have a horseless age, but the bike is here to stay.

HUMOR FOR THE YOUNG.

The following extracts are from examination papers recently handed in at a public school in Connecticut:

1. From what animals do we get milk? From the camel and the milkman.

2. The hen is covered with feathers. With what is the cat covered? The cat is covered with fleas.

3. Name an animal that has four legs and a long tail. A mosquito.

4. Name two kinds of nuts. Peanuts and for-get-me-nuts.—Harper's Round Table.

Printers' Ink says: Some men try advertising as the Indian tried feathers. He took one feather, laid it on a board and slept on it all night. In the morning he remarked: "White man says feathers heap soft; white man d—fool."

A story is told of a grocer engaged in business in a London suburb, to the effect that he once declined to attend a very popular concert even though a free ticket was offered him. "Ye see," he said to the person who gave him the ticket, "if I went I'd see so many people who owe me money for groceries it would spoil my fun, and the sight o' me would spoil theirs. I'll stay at home." Harper's Round Table.

"My good man," said a serious old lady to a Hudson youth the other day, "have you ever thought how much money is thrown away every year on whisky and tobacco?" "No, mum, I hain't," replied the object spoken to, "it is taking all my spare time trying to figure out how many poor families could be clothed out of the extra cloth women are putting in their sleeves now-a-days."

"You should live near heaven,' said the preacher to the editor. 'I know it,' replied the editor, 'but these mountain lots come so high.'

H. D. Niblack and wife went to Ypsilanti, Sunday, to attend the marriage of Mrs. Niblack's brother, which occured the first of the week. They spent the remainder of this week visiting in that city.

Wm. Dick, who was arraigned some few weeks ago, charged with the theft of oats, had his adjourned hearing before justice Smith, Monday. He was discharged, there not being sufficient evidence to establish a case.

Frank Fitzgerald, of Brooklyn, and Cora Ames, of Ypsilanti, were married at the latter place last Saturday morning. The couple called on the bride's sister, Mrs. H. D. Niblack, on their way to Wampler's lake, where they will sojourn for a short time.

Loren Taylor was called to Bay View two weeks ago on account of the serious illness of Miss Bertha, who was attending the summer school at that resort. We are glad to state that Bertha was able to accompany her father home Monday much improved.

Saturday, Sept. 14th, after a short illness, little Glen, aged 8 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Marshall, of Clinton, passed away to be with Him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." Mr. and Mrs. Marshall have our sympathy in their deep bereavement. May the Lord of all mercy be with them in this trial of affliction. In the absence of Rev T. H. Warner of the Congregational church of which Mrs. Marshall is a member, Rev. C. C. Marshall of the Baptist church conducted the funeral.

Two weeks ago to-morrow, the schools celebrated a field day, which was so keenly enjoyed by them, as well as the towns-people, that the zest for sport there engendered has developed into arrangements for a great "Day of Sport" to be celebrated to-morrow. This day will have the support, as well as the interest of the entire town. The sports will be confined to the afternoon, and everybody will either take part or look on. A large fund has been raised for disposal by the committee on sports in the way of prizes, and these liberal offers have attracted a large number of entries in the various contests. This kind of sport has become very popular throughout the state, and Clinton will not be behind either in the character and quality of the sports, or in the enthusiasm of her citizens. Turn out. It will be a great day. The following is a schedule of events without giving particulars in each race: Bicycle races: Five mile handicap, one mile open, 3 mile lap, 1 mile race for boys under 16, one mile to nship championship, one-half mile ladies' race. Other races: Fat man's race, open only to 200 lbs. or over, sack race, wheel-barrow race, 100 yard foot race. The last and greatest event will be an old fashioned tug-of-war between 25 emyloyees of the woolen mill and as many stalwart young men of main street. The K. O. T. M. band will furnish music for the occasion. A good course has been prepared for the wheel races, and all details carefully looked after. Turn out. The affair is in charge of the following officers: F. D. Lancaster, Pres.; E. L. Parker, Secy.; A. F. Kishpaugh, Treas. For terms of entry apply to the Secretary.

THE FAMILY LOG BOOK.

A Suggestion Worth Making a Note of and Profiting by.

Perhaps one of the most amusing and absorbing diversions is the keeping of a family logbook—not an egotistical diary but a big open volume in which the family doings are recorded—each member of the family taking, in turn, the duty of setting down the day's events, and each vying with the other in making this family history as gay and pleasant as possible, writes Elizabeth Bisland in "When Living in the Country," in the August Ladies' Home Journal. An endless series of interests and amusements will arise from this practice, and the book will gain infinitely in attraction if it is illustrated. If some one in the household is clever with the pencil, so much the better, but occasionally the crude attempts of the unskilled are quite as amusing as if better done, and in any event one always has the illustrated papers and magazines to fall back upon. It will astonish those who have never tried to find how completely and cleverly any story can be illustrated by clipped pictures. The whole picture need not be used, a horse, a man, a dog, a house or tree may be taken out of some complete story, and made to fit in as appropriately to the text as if drawn specially for it.

Let the logbook lie close at hand, with ink and pens always ready; a box of clipped pictures, a gum bottle and scissors always in place, and before long the family history will be growing into a delightful illustrated story.—Exchange.

WE WANT TO TELL YOU

Why Your Back is Lame—Why it Aches and Pains, and How to Cure it.

Do you know what it is to have a back that is never free from aches and constant pain, a lame back, a sore back, an aching back, in fact, a back that makes your life a burden? What have you done for it? And does it still keep you from the happiness that perfect health brings to all? We know full well if such is your condition a cure for it will be a blessing you no doubt desire. Plasters won't do it, but may assist in bringing strength. Liniment won't do it; for, while it may give temporary relief, it does not reach the cause. The cause, there's the point; there's where to make the attack. Most backaches come from disordered kidneys, therefore you must correct their action if you would be cured. Read the following from D. D. Cook, whose address is No. 18 Michigan Street, Grand Rapids. He says:—

"I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and wish to say it is a truly great medicine. Thirty years ago I had nervous prostration while in the army, where I served for over four years. I think it was during this service that the seeds were sown which have caused all my trouble. Severe billious attacks bothered me, and at such times my kidneys were worse. It is almost impossible to describe the pain which so often lamed me. I have been so lame that to stand up after I had been sitting down required a great exertion. Walking was at times an impossibility, even at night I did not rest, being forced to get up during the night. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and won'dered if they could make an almost lame man well. I got some, and soon after taking them began to feel their good effects. I used them for some time, my lameness all left me and I have not felt it since. Doan's Kidney Pills have done me an inestimable amount of good."

When a person begins to grow thin there is something wrong. The waste is greater than the supply and it is only a question of time when the end must come. In nine cases out of ten the trouble is with the digestive organs. If you can restore them to a healthy condition you will stop the waste, put on new flesh and cause them to feel better in every way. The food they eat will be digested and appropriated to the needs of the system, and a normal appetite will appear. Consumption frequently follows a wasting of bodily tissue because nearly all consumptives have indigest on. The Shaker Digestive Cordial will restore the stomach to a healthy condition in a vast majority of cases. Get one of their books from your druggist and learn about this new and valuable remedy.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

"Two years ago, I had the grippe, and it left me with a cough which gave me no rest night or day. My family physician prescribed for me, changing the medicine as often as he found the things I had taken were not helping me, but, in spite of his attendance, I got no better. Finally, my husband,—reading one day of a gentleman who had had the grippe and was cured by taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,—procured, for me, a bottle of this medicine, and before I had taken half of it, I was cured. The Arena's Art Gallery.

We call attention to the prospectus of the Arena, to be found in another column. In addition to being the leader among the high class magazines, it gives to each subscriber a copy of the "Arena Portrait Gallery," containing forty portraits of distinguished persons, which is worth as much as the magazine itself. There are fifty readers of the HERALD who could and should take advantage of this offer.

A False Diagnosis.

La Grippe is confounded by many persons with a severe attack of catarrh, which in some respects resembles the former. These individuals suffer severely with pain about the forehead, eyes and ears, with soreness in throat and stoppage of the nasal passages, and in fact, are incapacitated for work of any kind for days at a time. These are catarrhal sufferers. Ely's Cream Balm has been used with the best results in such cases. The remedy will give instant relief. 1w

New York World—Thrice-a-Week.

The twice-a-week edition of the New York World has been converted into the Thrice-a-week. It furnishes 3 papers of 6 pages apiece, or eighteen pages every week, at the old price of one dollar a year. This gives 156 papers a year for one dollar and every paper has 6 pages eight columns wide or 48 columns in all. The Thrice-a-week World is not only much larger than any weekly or semi-weekly newspaper, but it furnishes the news with much greater frequency and promptness. In fact it combines all the crisp, fresh qualities of a daily [illegible] weekly. Club rates with the HERALD.

ALLISON'S ESCAPE.

"Speakin of blood," said the old cattleman, "reminds me of a time Clay Allison had in Las Animas about 20 years ago. I think it was the same day Clay adjourned court. You see they'd been holdin court for a couple of weeks already, an Clay allowed that ought to be enough.

"'There ain't nothin unsettles society like holdin too much court,' says Clay, so he saddles his old white warhorse Bill, and he rides slap in where the jedge is a-settin.

"'Jedge,' says he, 'there's a delegation of people down to the Full Blown Rose saloon been a-caucusin, an they thinks you all have done enough for once an had better quit an call it a day. What do you think yerself?'

"'Vox populi vox rock an rye,' says the jedge. 'Adjourn this yere court until some time next fall.' So they all goes down to the Rose an gets a drink.

"But I starts to tell you about somethin else. It was this yere same day in the evenin, an the dance hall was a-drawin like a furnace, an was mighty near as hot, when along comes Clay Allison. He's been around town all day, sorter feverish an restless, an bein, as I say, kinder fretful, he picks up a pitcher of water an pours it down the sheriff's back. Clay didn't have no particular meanin in it, but the sheriff takes it hard, an goes away a-cussin as how he'll braid some mule's tail (names not being called) before mornin.

"But about this wet sheriff. Well, after we'd forgot him, an long after he'd got dry, do you know, this malicious, revenge harborin cuss gets a shotgun an stands outside in the dark, an, aiming through an open winder, chucks a load into John Allison, who is a brother of Clay's, jest as John was cavortin to the call of 'balance all.' Clay was in the same set, an lightnin wasn't quicker. His six shooter comes to the front, an a bullet goes lookin for that sheriff before the flash of his shotgun has faded into the night.

"Did it ketch him? Well, I believe you, my son. His deputies struggled along without him after that. John got well, though. Some of the girls took him an pulled him through. It was jest as well, too, for if he an the sheriff had both cashed in an their trails ever crossed up above, there'd have been a row as would have caused some flutterin among any angels that might 'a' been hoverin contiguous thereunto. They came pretty near lynching Clay that same night. The Las Animas people took him an called the committee together to talk it over. I mind one old shorthorn now, the chief of the committee, as he made his speech.

"'I don't much mind this particular killin,' he says. 'Water wouldn't hurt this yere sheriff at all. My own opinion is most of 'em git a heap too little of it as it stands. But jest the same, we might as well hang this yere man Clay Allison. He's made this state of Colorado a heap of trouble. Always gittin drunk on us an pesterin round for a row; always a-ridin an a-yellin an a-shootin up the town, so I say, bein a quiet man myse'f, an wantin a quiet place to live in an pass my declinin years in peace, that we do take this man Clay Allison to a place convenient for our purpose an string him up.'

"Then a little, knotty, black whiskered man, with an eye that glanced like a knife, gits up an speaks:

"'The chief's sentiments is my sentiments,' says he, 'an I moves, so that it won't be overlooked nor missed, that we proceed at once an git the hangin over. I would suggest as a place possessin the advantages we desire the sign as stands over the sidewalk in front of the First National bank, it bein strong 'nuf to stand pullin the rope over, which is all we needs.'

"'As it's gettin late,' says the chief, 'unless I hears objection,' the remarks of Locoed Charlie'—which was the last man's name—'will be taken as the census of this yere meetin, an it's hang she is. Do I hear any remarks?

"'Am I in on this yere talk,' asked Allison, gittin up whar a couple of the strangers was guardin of him, 'or don't I git no hand at all? I'd like to know.'

"'Make yer little speech an ease yer mind, Mr. Allison,' says the chief. 'This yere is a square American deal, an yer remarks are in order.'

"'Well, then,' says Clay, 'what I wants to say is this: I don't like the deal. There's altogether too much fuss over this yere sheriff. He was nuthin but a panhandle hoss thief, an I knows it. For this yere camp to git to rarin back on its hind legs an raisin the long yell over a dead hoss thief is too many fur me. But the fact is this outfit's gittin too aristocratic; too many frills an too much style fur me. The people of this yere town of Las Animas are gittin too d——d particular to take their regular drinks. I'd"—

"'Stop right thar,' says the chief, motionin for the guard to set Clay down. 'There ain't no parliamentary president ever took no cussin yit, an I don't take none. Yer out of order, an you've got to keep still. When a man's out of order once, he can't talk no more that meetin.'

"'Mr. President,' says a man that owns the lumber yard, 'I'd like to say a word. I count myse'f one of the decent people of this town, an I want it understood I'm in favor of hangin this yere man. But I'd like to request a postponement of one day to move my family. The fact is, the spring round up has brought a passel of the boys to town, an I s'pose there's 200 more within ten miles. This Allison is popular with these cow people, most likely 'cause they don't see much of him as individuals, an I'm ready to bet by the time we gets him hung they'll burn the town. This bein true, Mr. President, I asks for time to move my family before the thing begins.'

"'I've been thinkin this thing over,' says the chief, 'an there's somethin in this town hurnin talk—'nuf, anyway, to create a doubt. It's a roole of law that all doubts goes to a prisoner; same as it is that all chips on the floor goes to the house; so I reckon we'll postpone this hangin an convene a grand jury on the matter yereafter in reg'lar form.'

"Clay is tried afterward reg'lar, an they throws him loose on the ground of self defense. The jury said a shotgun usually has two barrels, an when Clay sees John git one he has a right to figger on stoppin the other onless he gits a move on himse'f, so they lets him go."—New York Times.

originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system.

It is a well-known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by systematic trading through Chicago brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to $50,000 to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand.

It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading.

Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time.

THE NATIONAL ENCAMPMENT.

A Trip to Louisville, Ky., Bowling Green and Nashville, Tenn., and Return.

Leaving Tecumseh Tuesday morning, Sept. 10th, over the L. S. & M. S. R'y, at Lenawee Junction we first encountered a large delegation of the old veterans, in a special car, from Hudson, Clayton and Adrian; many with their wives, to make the journey more enjoyable by the presence of the loyal ladies of the W. R. C. At Blissfield, still another delegation awaited our coming and our special car was filled, every seat being occupied. Before reaching the special at Lenawee Junction, my eyes first rested on an old comrade of my company, Sergeant Darwin H. Warren, of Clayton, who had held in reserve a seat for me, and we, like brothers and comrades, seated, bunked and marched together all during the trip. I will say just here that I had splendid company in Comrade Warren. Whether he had the same or not, I leave you to find out from him. We mutually agreed not to peach on each other.

Arriving at Toledo we were met by our old genial comrade, Stim. G. Harvey, who had worked hard and long in behalf of the southern Michigan G. A. R. boys for pleasant and comfortable accommodations for our journey. We found our car that we boardrd at Lenawee Junction chartered for the long trip to Louisville. Therefore, no change at Toledo, as we were transferred across the Maumee river to the Ohio Central line where we were attached to a special train of eleven coaches, ten being occupied by passengers and one car exclusive for commissaries, eatables, hot coffee, thunder pop and pop that made thunder after a while. At the appointed time the familiar words came, "All aboard!" and again the boys in blue were spinning their way southward to Dixie's Land.

Journeying through Ohio we passed through the heavy belt of oil fields, with their towering derricks, mammoth tanks for oil, pipe lines running in all directions, and the mammoth engines pumping oil from these tanks through pipe lines to Chicago. The flames from the natural gas burned brightly, as if they were trying to out-do the Thompson-Houston electrical plants.

Arriving at Cincinnati just as the shades of twilight were creeping over the southern sky, we crossed the Ohio river into Covington, Ky. As we crossed the Lexington Pike, Warren and myself fancied we could pick out the exact spot where, 33 years ago, the 18th was halted to await the transportation of our baggage and commisaries to our first camp on southern soil,—Camp Mitchel. Yes, Darwin, and there is the bakery we bought out with Erie & Kalamazoo. Our train had scarcely stopped when the venders of pies, cakes, pones, melons and fruit of all kinds were hoisting their wares to the car windows, offering great inducements to buy. A colored lad being questioned as to the ripeness of his melons said, "Oh, yes, massa; so ripe, so sweet, you certainly would buy two if you just got a chew at it." I bought a pie along the route, and trying to divide with Comrade Warren he saw I was having some trouble to separate the crust and said: "Hank, which is it, sewed or pegged?" I replied that it was soldered.

Down and up and over the mountains, through the many tunnels, we thundered our way on to Louisville, arriving there about four hours late from schedule time. Much of this time was taken up in the city limits of Louisville. Finally, at 11:40, we reached the great union depot, where a motley throng awaited the coming of the Grand Army, that was by thousands invading the city. Monday and Tuesday, both night and day, a constant stream of G. A. R.'s and sightseers had been flocking in by every conceivable way. At 12 o'clock we marched through the rotunda out into Broad street, a surging mass of humanity. We made our way out by the gigantic electric light that shone by reflection on colored glass of red, white and blue, emblems of our flag and nation. The escort soon found where our quarters were. An aide was detailed who showed us up Broad street to 6th street, where we found a large, commodious school building in readiness for us,—seats removed and matresses provided. We laid our weary limbs to rest, well satisfied that the loyal citizens of Louisville had made ample accommodations for lodging the boys.

A partial night's rest much refreshed us and we started out to view the city in its gorgeous array, seemingly festooned from the humble Negro's hut to the mansions on Broad street. On some of the business places, several thousands of dollars was said to have been spent in those wonderful electrical displays, which my pen and power of description cannot portray. As suddenly as a flash, near a point I had just passed on Broad street, came the thundering report of artillery, and taking for granted that a sunrise salute was being given, I turned and looked back up the block, where all seemed dark. Volumes of smoke were arising and figures were seen running this way and that. An electric car came up the street, clanking its alarm, and I made a rush for it. The moterman said: "There is some trouble ahead." What is it? "Horrible! There is a dead man, and there another." The cannons were across the car track. He gripped the lever and the car stopped on the scene. Oh! horror of horrors! The magazine of the battery had exploded and of the boys, eight in number, five were lying dead, one missing and two badly wounded. I was among the first that arrived on the scene. The men killed were from Battery A of the Loyal Legion of Louisville.

But break away from this appalling scene, as we did in '61 and '65; close up your ranks and march on.

The great parade began to form and I hied myself to the Louisville House, where Michigan headquarters were, there met our department commander, Judge Daboll, reported Beers Post present and accounted for, 111 strong—lacking two figures. Michigan was assigned to the 4th Grand Division, with Maryland, Nebraska, Iowa and Indiana, which formed a small part, on Wednesday, of this monster parade, every state in the union being represented.

The day's work done, then came the rush—every man for himself. To get to his quarters, or out of the city for home, was simply a roiler process. My friend, Warren, persuaded me to go farther south. So, at 12 o'clock that evening, we took the train on the L. & N. to Nashville, Tenn., arriving there at 8 o'clock in the morning. Our principal visits were to the Capitol building, the court house, the old Zollecoffer Barracks (now the Maxwell House), Fort Negley, College Hill, Nashville & Chattanooga depot, and the old military prison, or the Tennessee State Prison. Mrs. A. B. Shankland, a mother to many a Union seldier, was called upon and a royal welcome was extended. The daughter, Lilley, and Mrs. Shankland live just where they did, next to President Polk. Mrs. S. is now 76 years old, yet she retains her strong memory, inquiring for many of the old comrades and wished to be remembered to you. I will say our visit was most enjoyable. The prison was the most natural point we reached as to structure—not a brick added and not one lost. Five posts are still maintained on the walls and the watchful eyes of the sentinel is the same for prisoners of today as in '61 and '65.

Homeward bound with a rush. We left Nashville at 8 o'clock in the evening, passed Bowling Green at 12 o'clock and arrived at Louisville about 2 o'clock in the morning. Without change of car we sped on to Cincinnati, arriving there about 8 o'clock, again crossing the Ohio, intending to reach Toledo for the evening train, but we were 45 minutes late and did not arrive home until Saturday noon.

IMPASSIONED LOGIC.

A Second Speech to The Christian Endeavorers.

When Mr. Woolley arose to speak he was given quite a reception. He said in part:

"Whatever we do we do to the glory of God and in the name of Jesus Christ. When you see a man go to the polls with a saloon keeper at his side and a brewer behind him and a brothel-keeper in his company and vote the same ticket, it is exactly as if that man went to the polls and prayed Almighty God: 'Dry up the saloons, but don't let them be dried up at the expense of my party or by the fanatical interposition of the third party; dry up the saloons, but let us down by the Scandinavian system. When a man votes he prays. When I staggered up against Jesus Christ and got a glimpse of glory I found that there was a place where a drunkard could find rest and a condition that would stop drunkenness, and that he could make his way through this drink cursed country. No saloon keeper troubled me, for I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jesus Christ. (Applause)

From that morning I said, so help me God, I will vote no ticket at any election that does not mean death to the saloon. (Great applause.)

When my Quaker friend says he will use any of the political parties, I part company with him. I will use no dirty thing to serve my Saviour with. I will use no soiled, godless thing to honor Jesus with. (Applause.) There is much good in them all, but when you come to take the political machines by which to express Christian citizenship in opposition to the saloon the Republican party is contemptible, and so as to all the other things I am ready to take off my hat to them all, but if you mean to kill the saloon and the liquor traffic you must let them alone and hope that in time they will become prohibition parties. (Applause.) I say when that time comes I will go back into the Republican party, out of which I came; but while the Republican ticket means license of any sort, so help me God, I hope my hand will wither before I put such a ticket into the ballot box. If that is heresy, I cannot help it. (Applause and a voice, "It is not.")

I have got to stand as straight as a church spire for God or else go back to the slums. When a church spire bows over to take the arm of a saloon keeper on election day, to go to the polls, that church spire is out of plumb.

What's the matter with the country? Men say the trouble is the demontization of silver or the McKinley law perhaps. The matter is not money, tariff or the lack of it. It is the lack of confidence in the people who do the politics of the country. It is the general spirit of devilry in the land. (Applause.) Ninety-five per cent of the voters are teaching their sons that it is not good politics to be dead square with Jesus Christ on election day. (Applause.

Whenever a man prays down with the saloon and votes against the saloon, then he will begin to have prayer answered. There are too many kinds of Christians—a kind for election day, for Sunday and for other days—but there is only one kind of truth and Christianity.—(Applause.)

It is like the dog taken into the woods to find a lost child as playmate, but which went after a rabbit, a chipmunk and a pheasant according as he scented them, and of which the master's servant said 'We can't depend upon him. There are too many kinds of dog in him.' (Laughter and applause.) That's the matter. There are too many kinds of Christianity. Let us speak one voice and stand together like a wall for the destruction of the liquor traffic in this country. It is perfectly possible for the Christian Endeavor to do such things and before the campaign of 1896 begin to dethrone King Alcohol. The exasperating thing to me is I hear a man of God in the pulpit making a terrific attack on the liquor traffic. His whole soul is evidently stirred to its very depths with indignation for 40 minutes, and then he spends the remaining five saying he did not mean it if it would hurt the party of the rich parishioner in the front pew. No minister should apologize at the end. (Great applause.)

I want to beg of the young men and women of the Christian Endeavor to prove that we believe in Jesus Christ. It will be possible then for us to get out into the highways and bring people in, and when it is known that the church has power and will stand fast when it is embarrassing to serve God the drunkard and the harlots and such people will crowd our missions and the altars of our churches faster than we can take them in and baptize them. (Applause.) We will never have a great revival of religion in this country until the voting members of Christian churches can hold up pure and clean hands on the liquor traffic question. God can't trust such people.

BATTLE CREEK EXPOSITION.

The hustling city of Battle Creek has the honor of getting up the first Y. M. C. A. Exposition in America. The affair is now in full blast, having opened Sept. 2d, and it will continue until Oct. 5th. Last Wednesday we spent a few hours in Battle Creek and took advantage of the time to visit the Exposition. We were quite surprised to see the extent and character of the show. Mr. Frank J. Kellogg is the manager and he has performed his allotted task with signal ability. The Exposition is there in all its completeness, and all that is needed now is a daily attendance in sufficient numbers to insure a financial profit. The show occupies a large three story building near the postoffice in a central location. The lower floor is devoted to a museum and lunch room. The museum contains a wonderful collection of rare old relics and curiosities, among them being a manuscript of the Koran, over 1,000 years old, genuine autographs of Napoleon Bonaparte and Daniel Webster, and Sojourner Truth's clock. The entire list comprises several hundred articles.

The main floor is allotted to booths gotten up by the business firms of Battle Creek. There are about forty of them and they contain magnificent displays of goods and wares of every kind. The third floor is devoted to an art gallery and concert hall. The former contains a very fine collection of paintings, Gen. Alger's gallery at Detroit furnishing several pieces. The hall has a fine stage and seats for about 400 spectators, where programs of a literary and musical character are given every evening. The people of Battle Creek may well feel proud of their first Y. M. C. A. Exposition.

Mr Binford gave the Sem. a call last Friday on his way from Toronto to Richmond, Ind., where he will attend college this year.

Miss Rose Ladd, '95, called at the Sem. Saturday afternoon. She is now teaching at Rollin, Mich.

Miss Mabel Graves, '95, is teaching the Valley district school at present and calls on Seminary friends frequently.

Notice of Infringement.

A bill has been filed in the circuit court of Barry Co. (Hastings Mich.) by Drs. Mixer against C. M. Tower who it is alleged has been infringing on the trade-mark of Mixers Cancer and scrofula Syrup. A temporary injunction has been allowed by Judge Clement Smith restraining C. M. Tower from further use of said trade mark.

Hastings, Mich. Aug. 23, 1895.

To the wholesale and retail druggists throughout the country. We desire to give you notice of an infringement on our trade mark for Mixers' Cancer and Scrofula Syrup put up by one C. M. Tower and under the name of "Drs. Tower and Mixer Medical Co." Hastings Mich. Said Tower having no right or authority to use our name, "Mixer." The wrapper of this bogus medicine bears Dr. Mixer's portrait and is very similar to our genuine wrapper, but in every case can be detected, for on the face and back of our wrappers (which contains bottle) is our signature, "Drs. Mixer" in a bold back handwriting, every bottle also has Mixer's Cancer and Scrofula Syrup" blown in three sides, the bogus medicine being put up in plain panel bottles.

We earnestly request all persons using our C. & S. S. to be particular that they buy genuine goods, for the bogus medicine is put up without regard to merit. Examine the bottle which you now have and if it is not lettered as stated, and the signature of Drs. Mixer" on both wrapper and label return the same to your druggist or agent and exact genuine C. & S. S. In all cases avoid any medicine or circulars put out by "Drs. Tower and Mixer Medical Co." or C. M. Tower. Any person coming in contact with bogus medicine as heretofore described will confer a great favor by communicating with Drs. Mixer, Hastings, Michigan.

Very respectfully yours in the interests of right and justice to all the afflicted.

DRS. MIXER.

The young till tappers, Edward King aged 15 and Howard Hand aged 14, have their hearing this afternoon before Justice Wightman. They will be brought over from Adrian where they have been confined since their arrest. It appears that Ticket Agent Satterthwaite has been missing small change left in the till for some time, and became satisfied that it was being taken by theft. He put the matter in the hands of Deputy Stevens who set a trap for the offenders. Tuesday night at supper time, watch was kept in the depot. Young King came in through the window which had been let down at the top, while Hand kept watch on the outside to hold up any one who should approach from that quarter. King was "pinched" after he had procured the key and touched the Lake Shore for $1.35. He plead hard when the icy hand of the law was laid on his shoulder but it didn't melt. Hand saw the game was up and beat a retreat for home where he was soon captured. Stevens took the young culprits in charge and lodged them in the county jail the next day. This is a serious matter for the boys and the only excuse we can think of is, that perhaps the misguided youths were simply emulating the shining example of Brother Wills.

The Hon. Charles S. Fairchild, Ex-Secretary of the Treasury, has written for the October number of The Forum an article entitled "The Present Condition of the Silver Question in the United States." They will deal with the entire subject of public-school education in the United States, and the facts in regard to the various sections will be carefully collated and compared with each other, and studied in their relation to the general status of public education in this country. They will be graphically illustrated and elucidated by means of ingenious and accurate diagrams, charts and figures. There are seven papers in all, which will begin in September and continue through the autumn.

—A FEW THINGS WORTH REMEMBERING.—

Remember that my goods are all new. There is no old nor shelf-worn goods to choose from, as every yard was bought new at the time of opening up business. Remember that I import them direct from the mills, saving wholesale profits and expenses and giving the customers the benefit. Remember they are all bought for cash, thereby saving large discounts, and that, while the stock is not large, it is kept fresh and new by continual renewals. Remember that those who do not care to buy from stock can choose from samples, of which I have a most complete selection of nearly 2,000 patterns from four of the leading woolen manufacturers. Remember that my work stands second to none in every respect. It sells on its merits alone. Valueing public opinion, I invite their inspection and patronage.

Yours truly,
J. S. STARLING,

OLD-TIME TURFMAN DEAD.

Ezra R. King Dies Suddenly While Attending the Sturgis Fall Meeting.

PONTIAC, Sept. 16.—Ezra R. King, the oldest turfman in the state, died very suddenly at the Shepard house at Sturgis Sunday night, while attending the fall meeting of the Sturgis Trotting association. Uncle Ezra, as he was known from Maine to California, was born in New York state in 1828, and had followed the races ever since 1846. He had dabbled in the betting ring to a large extent during his later years, and was successful, even to the point of acquiring a fortune. He was noted also as being the leader of the famous King's orchestra, which had a state reputation, but laid aside the fiddle when his wife died twenty years ago and had never touched it since. He was a lifelong democrat, a mason of the royal arch degree and known to every turfman in the United States.

PLENTY OF ROOM.

Jackson Prison Has Accommodations for More Convicts.

LANSING, Sept. 17.—For over a year there has been so little work at the Michigan state prison at Jackson that several hundred convicts were in idleness. In addition, the prison was badly over-crowded. Because of this the circuit judges throughout the state were requested to send convicts to other prisons as far as possible. This request was withdrawn Monday, the judges being officially notified that there is plenty of room at the Jackson institution and that the prospect for plenty of work for an indefinite period is excellent, several contracts having recently been made.

HAULED DOWN THE FLAG.

The Government Formally Abandons Fort Mackinac, Mich.

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., Sept. 18.—The last step in the total abandonment of Fort Mackinac was carried into effect Monday in the transfer of the command of troops under Lieut. Geary to Fort Brady. The honor of hauling down the stars and stripes, which for more than 100 years have floated over the fort's historic walls, was awarded to Judge B. Lachance, a veteran of the late war. The fort and park are now under the supervision of the state, to which they have been transferred by the United States government.

VALUE OF THE NEW LOCK.

Crush of Boats at the Soo Is Relieved by Its Operation.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Sept. 17.—The great benefit of the new Canadian lock to vessel owners was shown Monday when there was a great crush of boats from both directions. Twenty-nine boats were locked through the Canadian canal between 10:30 a. m. and 5 o'clock p. m., relieving the pressure on the American locks that much, and preventing delays of from twelve to twenty-four hours on a good part of the fleet. From 11 o'clock Sunday night until 5:30 o'clock Monday afternoon seventy-eight boats passed the Soo.

Women Score a Victory.

DETROIT, Sept. 17.—The Detroit M. E. conference, comprising one-half of the state of Michigan, Monday evening voted, by an overwhelming majority, to give women representation in conference. The first vote taken was on the Hamilton amendment, which provides that only male delegates shall be admitted to the conferences. The result was: For the amendment, 3; against the amendment, 164; not voting, 36. The next vote was on the Baltimore amendment, providing for the admission of women to the general conference, and resulted: Yeas, 185; nays, 9.

An Infant Horsethief.

JACKSON, Sept. 17.—In less than two weeks little Eddy Thayer, 7 years old, has stolen four different rigs from hitching posts, has been as many times caught and has been locked in jail twice, but afterward given his liberty. He stole a rig Monday afternoon belonging to Mrs. Charles McCallum and was caught by Deputy Sheriff Smith at Parma, 10 miles west of this city. The common prosecutor has failed to find a law which provides for punishing so young a criminal.

Strike Not Ended.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Sept. 18.—The miners union voted Tuesday almost unanimously to continue the strike to the bitter end. The steam shovel operators will probably be called out again to-day and the men are grimly determined to carry on the war. It will be surprising if there is not serious trouble in the very near future unless the mine-owners make some movement toward a compromise.

Will Meet Next at the "Soo."

GRAND RAPIDS, Sept. 14.—The eighth annual session of the Michigan League of Building and Loan associations closed Friday. W. L. Jenks, of Port Huron, was elected president. The next convention will be held at Sault Ste. Marie. The session was occupied in reading papers and discussing regarding building and loan associations and their management.

OSCEOLA MINE VICTIMS.

Twenty-Seven Bodies Are Recovered from the Deadly Pit.

CALUMET, Sept. 15.—It was decided Wednesday that the fire which started in the Osceola mine last Saturday must be out, and at 5 o'clock Wednesday night No. 4 shaft, where the fire started, was opened and left open all night. A searching party descended the shaft early Thursday morning, and at noon Friday twenty-seven bodies had been found. This leaves but three still in the mine.

CALUMET, Sept. 14.—Twenty victims of the Osceola mine were buried Saturday. The victims of the fire were of many nationalities, there being English, Irish, Poles, Austrians, Norwegians, Swedes and Finns among the number. Hence nearly every church had one or more of the sad ceremonies performed within its portals.

Subscription papers have been started in nearly every town in the copper district for the families of the men killed in the Osceola, and a large amount will probably be realized. It will be needed, for there are twenty-one widows and over sixty orphans resulting from the mine fire of a week ago.

CALUMET, Mich., Sept. 17. — The bodies of Peter Malstrom and Walter Dahl, the two remaining victims of the Osceola mine disaster, were found Monday morning in the eighteenth level south of No. 4 shaft. This ends the final chapter in this mining horror.

NEW DEER KILLING LAW.

Non-Residents as Well as Home People Must Have License.

DETROIT, Sept. 14.—The new law regarding the hunting of deer in this state passed by the last legislature provides an open season from November 1 to 25, inclusive, in all sections of the state. The killing of deer in the red coat or fawn in the spotted coat is prohibited, as is also the killing of deer while in the water or by the aid of pit, pitfall, traps, dogs, or artificial lights. Non-residents are required to secure a license from the clerk of the county in which they propose to pitch their camps, and residents in the county in which they reside. The fee for non-residents is $25 and for residents fifty cents. Such license will entitle the holder to kill no more than five deer in any one year. A coupon from the license must be attached to each deer or portion thereof in case of shipment and must be detached from the license in the presence of the shipping agent.

THREE THOUSAND EXPECTED.

Large Number of Students to Attend the University of Michigan.

ANN ARBOR, Sept. 16.—From present prospects it is very probable that the number of students of the University of Michigan will this year reach, if not pass, the 3,000 mark. Secretary Wade reports that the number of inquiries from intending students this summer has been unusually large. The secretary says that it would be impossible for the attendance to fall below the number of last year, 2,818, and, judging from the experience of former years, he expects that the number will stop somewhere near 3,000.

Indignant at a Christian Scientist.

AKRON, Sept. 17.—There is trouble and excitement in this village over the death of a 2-months-old child of H. K. Knowling. When the child was taken sick two weeks ago, with the summer complaint, the parents summoned a Christian scientist instead of a regular doctor. The people of the village who were cognizant of the fact were very much aroused and their indignation was greater when the child died without regular medical treatment. Complaints are heard of the parents and the alleged Christian scientist healer, a woman.

WOMEN'S FACES

—like flowers, fade and wither with the loss of the bloom of their youth. It is only known to the healthy woman by her cheeks. The monotonous strain caused by the ailments and pains peculiar to her sex, and the labor and worry of rearing a family, can often be traced by the lines in the woman's face. Dull eyes, the sallow or wrinkled face and those "feelings of weakness" have their rise in the derangements and irregularities peculiar to women. The functional disarrangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses of women, can be cured with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. For the young girl just entering womanhood, for the mother and those about to become mothers, and later in "the change of life," the "Prescription" is just what they need. It aids nature in preparing the system for the change. It is a medicine prescribed for thirty years, in the diseases of women, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure the chronic inflammation of the lining membranes which causes such exhausting drains upon the system. It cures nervous prostration, sleeplessness, faintness, nervous debility and all disorders arising from derangement of the female organs and functions.

MRS. WILLIAMS.

Mrs. JENNIE WILLIAMS, of Mohawk, Linn Co., Oregon, writes: "I was sick for over three years with blind dizzy spells, palpitation of the heart, pain in the back and head, and at times would have such a weak tired feeling when I first got up in the morning, and at times nervous chills. The physicians differed as to what my disease was, but none of them did me any good. As soon as I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, I began to get better; could sleep well nights, and that bad nervous feeling and the pain in my back soon left me. I can walk several miles without getting tired. I took in all three bottles of 'Prescription' and two of 'Discovery.'"

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning Sept. 22, Committed by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M. Topic, Raising the Widow's Son.

SCRIPTURE READING.—Luke vii, 11-17.

Southwest from Capernaum 25 miles lay the little village of Nain, on the slopes of Little Hermon. To the north was Mount Tabor, to the west the meadows, fields, brooks and villages of the great Esdraelon plain. Not far to the east on the same mountain side was Endor. Here came Jesus and a large company of people after the healing of the centurion's servant.

The funeral procession of a young man is met. The only son of his mother, and she a widow! The whole population felt deeply the sadness of the case and were there to show their sympathy. No one appeals to Jesus for help. Who could expect any help in such affliction as this? This is not disease, but death.

Ages ago the prophet Elisha had raised the son of the woman of Shunem, a village not far away. But who has ever come back to life since?

Jesus stops those carrying the bier. His compassion is moved to the depths, without request from any one. Awe-struck the people stand in silence. They hear his words to the dead—words of calm command, as if he ruled the world of spirits and world of flesh. No agonizing, as with Elisha. "I say unto thee arise!" Amazed they see the young man sit up and begin to speak. Jesus checks him, and turning to the mother, whose mourning he has turned to joy, gives the son into her charge. He who can raise the dead must be the Lord of Life.

Unsociability.

Much has been said in criticism of churches and church members failing to welcome strangers. The services of God's house ought always, as far as possible, to be open to others than the members of the local church and regular attendants, even though the house may be owned by them and the expenses of maintenance must be paid by them. The claims of the stranger to hospitality are not met when he has been given a sitting by an usher and tendered a hymn-book. He has the right to expect a Christian greeting at the close of worship from the members of the church. It is a matter of duty for Christians to speak to strangers, welcome them to the services of God's house and make inquiry after their spiritual welfare. No excuse of lack of acquaintance, diffidence or any other subterfuge will cover this neglect. To fail to welcome strangers is a grievous breach of etiquette socially and deep wrong religiously, which will react disastrously on those who are guilty of the fault.

The Times Have Changed.

So it is said. More truly the people have changed. Men do not hold less tenaciously to their opinion now than formerly. Truth is not less valued. There is not less depth in experience. But men have become more tolerant toward those who differ in opinion and practice. This is not a sign of degeneracy, but of advancement in Christian charity. The father of Hugh Price Hughes was a zealous Arminian, who refused to let his horse drink from the same trough at which his Calvinistic opponent had watered his horse. This did not make him any better defender of the faith than his son shows himself to be when he unites at Grindelwald conference with men of all religious faiths in praying and working for a closer union of the churches.

What It Costs.

Many desire to be helpful to others and of value in the Master's service who are perplexed and disappointed at the sufferings they are called to endure and failure of their cherished plans for doing good. This is often the way God takes to fit us for our work. Sympathy with the suffering never truly comes to one till he has himself suffered. Ability to help develops from desire into disposition and actual possession only when one has known need of help and received it and so learned how to impart to others. Suffering, privation, disappointment and sorrow are the necessary discipline a soul must endure to be fitted for ministry to sinful and suffering. In this school Jesus himself learned and so in heaven can have compassion on our infirmities.

Ready to Every Good Work.

St. Paul exhorted Titus to "put the people in mind to be ready to every good work." There is much need of the same injunction at the present day. Some people are reluctant to any work, especially if it be good work for the benefit of others. Some will engage in good work if they can select the kind, amount, time and people. Christians should be ready to give a helping hand and hearty sympathy to all good causes. Widening and whitening fields require willing workers of broad intelligence, deep piety and intense earnestness.

Safety.

God knows what steep places lie before us. He has provided the "shoes of iron and brass" for us to put on. They are truth and honesty, faith, courage and prayer. A clear conscience will keep the head cool. Along the hard road is a signboard, on which is written in large, bright letters, "He that walketh uprightly, walketh surely."—Cuyler.

Trusting.

"Casting all your care upon him, for he careth for you."

Cast thy care on Jesus!
Tell him all thy grief,
All thy fierce temptations
And the wrong within.
He himself was tempted,
And he pleads above
For the soul that asketh
Pardon through his love.

Cast thy care on Jesus!
What is death to those
Who in deep submission
On his love repose
But a short step farther,
Nearer to his side,
Where their eyes shall see him
And be satisfied?

—F. G. Scott.

SCOLDING

The cook within the kitchen stood,
Her hands upon her hips,
And many were the angry words
Came pouring from her lips.

Her victim was the grocery boy,
And softly thus spake she:
Oh, what a little fool you are
To bring such stuff to me.

Take high price baking powder back,
And bring me "Calumet,"
And if he did not go straightway
She's likely scolding yet.

SNIP AND I.

I met Snip when I first came to New York. He was an evening newsboy who haunted Park row, and he had such a queer voice and was so queer in his looks that he attracted attention above all other boys. One evening I took him over into City Hall park and asked:

"Snip, how old are you?"

"Goin on 10, sir."

"Do you live at home?"

"No, sir; I have no home. Father an mother are both dead, an I have no brothers or sisters."

"Where do you put up?"

"With Aunt Mary, down on Pearl street."

"Can you read or write?"

"No, sir, but I can tell money an change a dollar."

We took a liking to each other from the start. I wanted him to go to school, but he was a born gamin. I offered to buy him a suit of clothes, but he preferred to pick up a garment here and there which had seen its best days. He did accept and wear an overcoat, but I don't think he ever felt exactly comfortable in it—at least not until it became dirty and greasy and the boys could no longer taunt him with being an aristocrat. Sometimes I had Snip wash his face and comb his hair and go to lunch with me, but it hurt his feelings, and he went under compulsion. He preferred to have me go down on Frankfort street with him, where we sat on a bench at a rude table and got two ancient sandwiches and a glass of watered milk for a nickel. Knives and forks and napkins put him out and made him feel tired.

When Snip got dead broke, he knew where to find me. When he got licked by a bigger boy, he came to me for consolation. On several occasions when "the gang" tried to drive him off the street because he was "a-gettin to be a Vanderbilt" I went down and got the police to see him through, and twice when he was arrested with others for disturbing the peace I went to the Tombs and begged him off.

We got to be "pards"—Snip and I. I liked him for a dozen reasons, but principally because he was a genuine type of the New York waif who was fighting his way. His self reliance and energy were something any man might envy. Nothing could down him, and it was rarely that he gave way to discouragement. Early in the battle I went down and gave Aunt Mary the tip not to turn him out when he failed to square up, but the boy didn't know of this. At long intervals he would come to me for a "stake," but he had pride in trying to take care of himself. I wanted Snip to grow up something better than a gamin, and that was the only point we differed on. He had it in his blood and couldn't make a change. He wasn't vicious, but he was a street arab in the fullest sense. He knew New York from the Battery to Harlem, and nothing pleased him so well as a night out. We walked the Bowery at midnight—together we descended into the dives and rum holes and dancehouses. Once or twice, during the first year of our acquaintance, I got Snip into a barber shop and had his hair cut, but he felt so bad about it that I ceased to experiment after awhile. He managed to look reasonably clean on Sundays, but my attempt to stick him up on week days was a failure.

A month ago I saw that Snip was failing in health. He had always been as hard as nails, but the rough life was beginning to tell on him. He made light of his ailment, but the day came when I had to go down and have a talk with Aunt Mary about him. She advised the hospital, and after much coaxing I got him to go there. He said it was too stylish for him, and that sleeping on a regular bed and eating chicken soup would make a booby out of him, but at length I got him to go. The doctors said that it was a case of quick consumption, and that he could not hold out long, and after a bit the boy suspected the true state of affairs. He went to his death like a man, however. Not once did he whimper or complain. On the contrary, he hoped against hoped. He would say to me as I sat beside his cot:

"I'm bound to git up, pard—bound to do it. Me'n you has got lots of things to do this summer, an I don't want you to go pards with any other boy. I'm square, you are square, an we just want to keep on bein pards."

One night, when no one believed that his end was so near, Snip realized that the hand of death was upon him. He knew they could not send for me at that hour, and so he said to the nurse:

"Git a pencil an paper an write sunthin fur me. I've got a knife, a pair of clappers, a harmonicon an 'leven cents in money. Write it down that I leave everything to my ole pard an that I thought of him last of all!"

And next day when I called to see him I found that penciled message and him lying dead. They had him in a pauper's coffin, ready for burial in a pauper's grave. I would not have it so. He sleeps in a grave in another field, and I hope it is well with his immortal spirit. Other boys have come to me and would call me "pardner," but I can't do it. Snip was my earliest and last. While he lay dying and yet hoping he asked me to be loyal to our friendship, and though he sleeps his last sleep I will wait.—Detroit Free Press.

Sydney Smith.

Sydney Smith, the world renowned wit, was something more than a perpetrator of clever sayings, or even than a politician and agitator for reforms. He was celebrated, in each country parish, where by far the greater part of his life was spent, as doctor and magistrate, combining these offices with those of a faithful and hard-working clergyman. The home side of Sydney Smith is too little appreciated. While he still lived in Edinburgh, before he had taken his second charge as minister, he studied medicine so that he might be enabled to work upon body as well as soul in future livings. He was very proud of this knowledge of the art of healing, and not a little inclined to boast to his son-in-law, Dr. Henry Howland, of his cures. The following remedy for a common juvenile complaint was written to friends in London:

"We conquered ... the whooping cough with a pennyworth of salt of tartar. What an odd thing that such a specific should not be more known!"—New York Times.

Waltzing In 1809.

Then I have a dancing master, who teaches me the Scotch and Irish steps and another who teaches me attitudes, and I shall soon learn the waltz, and I can stand longer on one leg already than Lady Di.—"Coelebs In Search of a Wife," Chapter 28, Notes and Queries.

Life Briefly Summarized.

If a woman gets what she wants to wear and a man what he wants to eat, there's no reason why they shouldn't live together and be happy.—New York Recorder.

STRATEGY.

Miss Prudence Needham was in the milk-room, humming the burden of some old ballad that had been fashionable in her youth.

"Oh, it is you, is it?" said Miss Prudence.

"Yes, aunty, it is I," said Kenneth Dare.

"I've no time to attend to you, Kenneth. Yes, I have, too," she added suddenly as she caught sight of a drawn look around his eyes. "Ken, you aren't sick?"

"No, not sick. It's a mind disease that you had better be ministering to, aunty!"

"Oh, I see. It's that little Helen Baldwin has been teasing you. Now, Kenneth, tell me the truth."

"There's not much to tell. She doesn't care for me."

"Has she told you so?"

"Not in so many words perhaps."

"But"—

"Oh, aunty, don't pray, talk about it any more."

When Kenneth was gone with his fishing rod to the shadowy little trout stream among the rocks beyond the field, Prudence sat herself down to think.

"Kenneth's a fool," she said. "But, dear, dear, we're all fools once in a lifetime, I s'pose, and if he really has set his heart on the moon, why, the moon he must have."

Helen Baldwin was sitting on the doorstep when Prudence came up the garden path.

"Morning, Helen!" was Prudence's salutation. "Is your mother at home?"

"Yes, she is at home, Miss Prudence. Will you walk in?"

"Presently—after I've caught my breath a little. Nice chickens, these. We have had no luck with ours this season. But I shall have more time to see to 'em after awhile. Kenneth is going away this week."

"Is he!"

No eye but the keen observant orb peculiar to womankind in general, and to Prudence in particular, could have detected the slight deepening of the carmine of Helen's cheek.

"Yes," and Prudence heaved a small spasmodic sigh, "I don't s'pose I'll ever see much of him again."

"Why?" questioned Helen, with a shrug of her shoulders. "I suppose he is not going to Patagonia or Alaska?"

Prudence rubbed her plump hands complacently together.

"What should you say, my dear, to a wedding in the family?"

"A wedding! You are not going to be married, Miss Prudence?"

"Me? Nonsense! It is Kenneth I mean."

"Kenneth?"

"And what should you say to a rich lady up in Boston, my dear? Ah, you may well open your eyes, but I always said Kenneth's handsome face would make his fortune for him!"

And away bustled Miss Prudence to meet Mrs. Baldwin.

And then, tying her hat over her face, Helen went out into the woods. She felt that just then she must be alone.

Helen had made too sure of the handsome young captive to her beauty. Was he lost to her forever? And Helen felt for the moment almost as if life had no further interest.

There was a crackling of the underbrush, and Helen started up, turning red and white, for it was Kenneth's step.

He raised his hat with a sort of cold courtesy as he passed her, but showed no indications of an intention to pause.

"Kenneth!" she spoke softly, so softly that it was strange he caught the murmured syllables.

"Did you call me, Helen?"

"Yes. Oh, Kenneth, is it true?"

"Is what true?"

"Don't play with me, Kenneth!" she cried vehemently. "You knew that I loved you; that I love you still. I know it is too late, but I must speak out, or I shall die!"

"Helen, I don't understand you!"

"Yes," she said bitterly, "it is all very well to take refuge in a pretense of ignorance, but you knew all the while that I loved you!"

And then Helen began to cry as if her heart would break. Kenneth drew her hands gently away from her wet eyes.

"Nelly!"

"It makes no difference now," sobbed Helen. "You—you are going to be married to some—somebody else!"

"Never! What misunderstanding are you laboring under? Who has told you that I was going to be married?"

"Your Aunt Prudence."

"There is some mistake here. I am not going to be married unless"—he smiled and hesitated—"it is to you, Helen."

And when they returned to the house, where Prudence and Mrs. Baldwin were chatting cozily, Prudence gave them one long look.

"Ah," she said after the scrutiny was ended, "I see how it is!"

"But, Aunt Prudence," said Kenneth, "how came you to tell Helen such a story about some imaginary Boston girl?"

"I told her no story," said Prudence. "I only asked her what she would think of such a young person."

"But you told her I was going to be married."

"So you are, aren't you?" said Prudence, with a twinkle of the eyes.

"Kenneth," said Helen, who had been mentally solving the riddle, "I see it all. Aunt Prudence has woven a web of stratagem around me—and, after all, I'm not very angry."

So Prudence went home to look up her very best recipe for wedding cake in a little book that hung behind the milkroom door.—Exchange.

Enterprising English Journalism.

The ethics of journalism is still a somewhat strange and inexplicable thing, but lobbying is now conducted with the unscrupulousness which marked it not so many years ago. I have heard of a lobbyist who for years paid a handsome weekly sum to one of the charmen (the men who sweep out the house of commons) for the torn scraps of letters and documents with which the floor, close to the treasury bench and the front opposition bench, is littered at the close of a sitting.

The lobbyist used to go carefully through the scraps, piecing and patching them together, in the hope of lighting upon a state secret or an important item of political news. However, he gained very little for his pains. Our leading politicians are more careful of their important private correspondence than this lobbyist supposed; most of the letters were appeals for charity or applications for situations from constituents.—Macmillan's Magazine.

Onward and Upward.

"He is a rising young author."

"Yes," was the reply. "Every time I go to see him I find he has economized by moving one story higher."—Washington Star.

A TOO MODEST WOMAN!

Is such a thing possible?

It is.

Many a woman suffers month after month, whole years, because she shrinks from talking about her complaints.

Foolish do you say?

No, it is simply due to a natural, commendable modesty. Still she owes it to herself either to consult a good Physician or else to get the Zoa-Phora Medical Book on Diseases of Women and Children, and, after satisfying herself that Zoa-Phora is what she needs, obtain a bottle or a box of it and use it faithfully. ALONG THE BEAUTIFUL RHINE.

Switzerland, the Promised Land for Bicycle Riders.

On Board "WEBRA," Aug. 21, '95.

Dear Mr. Editor:—With Strassburg behind us and Basle as our goal, we wheeled over a perfect macadamized road and through a fertile district where tobacco was the chief article cultivated. Every city along the Rhine valley is strongly fortified, but except being stopped occasionally when Harry tries to ride into an arsenal or I attempt to cross a parade ground, we were not hindered because of moats and walls and forts innumerable.

At Basle, we were hailed by custom house officials and informed that a deposit of 22 francs was necessary before we could enter Switzerland with our wheels. This was to be returned at our departure. We complied, were properly tagged, ticketed and receipted and entered Basle. There was a fair going on and as we pushed our wheels slowly through the throng, we observed the various contrivances which fakes and venders invent to coax the sous from the Swiss, who like to be gulled as well as Americans. The flimsy toys and goods indescribable, are there in myriad forms. With bicycles upon our hands, we were prevented from buying, with exception of Harry's purchase of some abominable cakes. But that is an infirmity of his and must be overlooked.

We were in the land of the Helvetii, of the mythic William Tell, where, as Goldsmith writes:

"The bleak Swiss their stormy mansion tread,
And force a churlish soil for scanty bread."

I must tell you in advance that it is the "Promised Land" for bicycle riders. Only a photograph can describe Basle. It is ancient. It is odd. It is grotesque and fantastic. Nothing is symmetrical. No, not even the people. The language is partly German partly French. After you escape, you can remember nothing in particular, but you recall a phantasmic conglomeration of all.

We crossed an old bridge which had figured basilisk at at both ends (these are the heraldic symbols of Basle,) and after wheeling half a mile, were in German territory and received our deposit. We were to ride up the Rhine to Constance on the German side. It is at Basle that the grandeur of the Rhine scenery begins again after its far extending, evensurfaced, simple beauty found continuing from Mainz to this point. The sun was low in the west and it was raining slightly from an overhanging cloud. The Rhine lies far below the road between steep banks of mingled rocks and grassy plots. An eight-oared crew, floating and singing, were returning from a row up the river. Boys from the villas on the opposite bank were paddling in boats beneath the steep shore. All very picturesque but we wanted a resting place. Darkness closed above us. The moon was among the clouds above the mountain tops, and there was a solitary dim loveliness which almost compensated for our physical discomfort. The rain made the roads slippery and Harry took an ignominious tumble into the dirt. Every house was a tavern. Beer was plenty, but beds, scarce. We were getting desperate when at last a patronizing German, a loafer at one of the taverns, told us to follow him. We did and listened respectfully while he informed us that he had studied Greek and Latin, and could talk innumerable languages except English—and French also—after I said that I could speak a little French. He did, however, show us a small but clean hotel and left us to marvel over his learning. Next day we followed the Rhine as it wound its way among the many-folded mountains. At every turn, some new beauty or superb vista opened before us. Streams rushed down the mountain side to join the Rhine. They enter through gulfs and chasms with a roar and surge. High above, we see the tongueless caverns and hear the whispering pines. The valley sides vary from a gray rock declivity to a lovely, grassy incline. The color of vegetation changes with rapidity. Apple-green, nile-green, and every-green which is conceivable. Sometimes the grooved and pitted mountainside bristles with crags and then, a new turn, and there is a mantle of velvet. The cottages in the valley are generally thickly thatched with straw and this often overgrown with mottled velvet moss. Very nice to look at, but to live in—no, I have been inside. I could not take space to tell about all the picture-like towns through which we passed; the town with Gothic roofs of red tile and whose walls were also the wall of the river and in whose midst rose an inaccessible, solitary rock crowned by a castle, and near which stood the broad Rhine stream was confined in a narrow gorge where it became a maelstrom, a seething, writhing torrent with romantic, legendary lore of heroes who had passed valiantly through it; then the town whose main street was closed at both ends by a castle-like building and into which we entered by an arch while above a gate hung threateningly. How poetic these towns are to tell about, but if you could smell the odoriferous stench and see the heaps of manure which stand before every house and hear the sickening jargon of the venders and feel the pitiful presence of poverty, if you could experience all these, I would toil in vain to make you see the poetry.

During the second day from Basle, we rode all day through evergreen arches, flower arches, maple arches and flanking us were flags in profusion. Everybody was dressed up and seemed to be expecting someone. We received so much attention that we might easily have been convinced that all was for us. Soldiers patrolled the whole road, seemingly on sentry duty. At last, when it began to rain and we entered a small town, the conundrum was solved. The German prince and the Duke of Bavaria were driving with their retinue from Lake Constance to Basle. The crowd blocked the highway and when we, with American audacity, attempted to push through we were very decisively ordered by a huge German officer to step back and wait. We pulled our waterproof over shoulders and watched. There were crowds of wide-eyed little girls, dressed in white, and large girls in similar garb. Besides the diverse uniforms of the soldiery, there were local clubs with their uniforms. The Duke and Prince came. Everybody took off their hats, put down their umbrellas and made themselves as uncomfortable as possible while the royalty passed. We saw, and while the crowd followed, we hastened on. The rain soon became so bad that we ceased riding for that day. The tavern where we stopped was adorned within by mottoes: "Be happy in this world—don't think it will be better." in other words, "Drink my beer and be merry." We passed the evening studying the tavern characters: the blusterer, the charlatan, the fool, and the sober old Dutchman, who never smiled but just steadily drank glass after glass of beer, and blinked. Next morning, after taking toll from a harvest apple tree, we started for Schaffhausen and the Falls of the Rhine, twenty miles away.

New York World—Thrice-a-Week.

The twice-a-week edition of the New York World has been converted into the Thrice-a-week. It furnishes 3 papers of 6 pages apiece, or eighteen pages every week, at the old price of one dollar a year. This gives 156 papers a year for one dollar and every paper has 6 pages eight columns wide or 48 columns in all. The Thrice-a-week World is not only much larger than any weekly or semi-weekly newspaper, but it furnishes the news with much greater frequency and promptness. In fact it combines all the crisp, fresh qualities of a daily with the attractive special features of a weekly. Club rates with the HERALD.

Notice of Infringement.

A bill has been filed in the circuit court of Barry Co. (Hastings Mich.) by Drs. Mixer against C. M. Tower who it is alleged has been infringing on the trade-mark of Mixers Cancer and scrofula Syrup. A temporary injunction has been allowed by Judge Clement Smith restraining C. M. Tower from further use of said trade mark.

Hastings, Mich. Aug. 23, 1895.

To the wholesale and retail druggists throughout the country. We desire to give you notice of an infringement on our trade mark for Mixers' Cancer and Scrofula Syrup put up by one C. M. Tower and under the name of "Drs. Tower and Mixer Medical Co." Hastings Mich. Said Tower having no right or authority to use our name, "Mixer." The wrapper of this bogus medicine bears Dr. Mixer's portrait and is very similar to our genuine wrapper, but in every case can be detected, for on the face and back of our wrappers (which contains bottle) is our signature, "Drs. Mixer" in a bold back handwriting, every bottle also has Mixer's Cancer and Scrofula Syrup" blown in three sides, the bogus medicine being put up in plain panel bottles.

We earnestly request all persons using our C. & S. S. to be particular that they buy genuine goods, for the bogus medicine is put up without regard to merit. Examine the bottle which you now have and if it is not lettered as stated, and the signature of Drs. Mixer" on both wrapper and label return the same to your druggist or agent and exact genuine C. & S. S. In all cases avoid any medicine or circulars put out by "Drs. Tower and Mixer Medical Co." or C. M. Tower. Any person coming in contact with bogus medicine as heretofore described will confer a great favor by communicating with Drs. Mixer, Hastings, Michigan.

Very respectfully yours in the interests of right and justice to all the afflicted. DRS. MIXER.

A STRANGE SUICIDE.

Alexander Crockett, of Ogden, Hangs Himself to a Peach Tree.

A strange suicide occurred at midnight Sunday night in South Ogden. For a year or two past Alexander Crockett, on a farm in that section, has been more or less unbalanced in mind. He went about his work as usual and no serious thought was given to his condition, but it is evident now that the morbidness of insanity had settled in his brain. About 12 o'clock Sunday night he got up from bed and told his wife that he would be back in a few minutes, as he went out into the yard. As he failed to return in about a quarter of an hour his wife aroused a son, a young man, and he went out in the yard to look for his father. It was but a short time until the young man made the horrible discovery that his father had killed himself, and in a manner that would seem almost impossible. The deranged man had selected a small peach tree only a few feet high, which forked about four or five feet from the ground. He had stuck his head through the fork, and dropping his weight on his neck, had been strangled. He had no rope, had not tied his hands, and his feet were dangling on the ground. It was a most remarkable method of ending his life, and nothing but a persistent determination to die would have made such a method effective. Neighbors were called and the body carried into the sorrow stricken home. It is thought the rash act was caused by the supposition on the part of Mr. Crockett that he was to be taken to the insane asylum. He owed a neighbor a bill and the man was to go shortly to get some oats to balance the account, and it is thought he was laboring under the idea that people were coming to take him to the asylum, and rather than go there he preferred to take his own life.—Adrian Telegram.

GUMBO'S GRAB BAG.

There are times when man would be alone,
Far from the madding crowd,
Where he his privacy can own
And think his thought out loud.
One of these times, without a doubt,
Is when he first bestrides
A bike, and neighbors all come out
To see how well he rides.

If the ruination of a boy is desired, says an exchange, let him roam the street at will. There is nothing that will ruin a boy so quickly as unwatched liberty. It is during these night carousals that he learns the vulgarism which will grow to something worse and the idea of having so little respect for himself or those around him. The fond parent it may be who allows her 10 or 12-year-old boy to continually absent himself from home night after night will some day, when it is too late, have cause to weep, and bitterly, too, for neglecting her boy during his tender years."

A WARNING.

Everybody, or at any rate almost everybody, has been saying that the diabolical practice would lead to mischief, and now it has. You can't throw rice, shoes, and other groceries and habiliments at young married persons, year after year, without doing damage. In East New York, which is really a part of Brooklyn, a wedding took place the other night. The husband and the wife came down the stairs amid the customary shower, and bolted for the carriage. At this moment the bridegroom's brother rushed into the street, pulled a big revolver, and fired it cheerfully but recklessly in every direction. "Some of the wedding guests," says the chronicler, "had an enjoyable time dodging flying lead." Among those to whom the wedding guest afforded amusement and exercise was a policeman, who, as soon as the revolver was emptied, arrested the convivial gentleman and put him in jail. It is thus plain to be seen that rice-throwing leads to the most deplorable consequences.—Buffalo Courier.

LEGAL STATUS OF THE BICYCLE GIRL.

It is well known that, owing to the phenomenally rapid development of the bicycling habit, the legal rights and privileges of riders are not clearly defined, and a code of bicycle law is generally regarded as one of the necessities of the near future. Especially is this the case in the west, where the changes in conventional costume introduced by riders have aroused an amount of alarm as to the safety of our social institutions which is little felt in this part of the country. Only a few weeks ago two male riders, clad in knickerbockers, were rudely and almost forcibly ejected from a Wisconsin hotel because they had undertaken to enter the dining room "while ladies were present." They were "fed," we believe, in a small, secluded room, and allowed to leave the town unharmed by taking back lanes and riding as modestly as possible. Female riders in bloomers have had much more serious trouble, and have usually been arrested and taken to court, only to be released with nothing more serious than a rebuke, since there was no written law under which they could be held or punished. We are glad to see that Judge Williamson, of Little Rock, Ark., has begun the compilation of a system of bicycle law by establishing, on very broad grounds, one great principle which may be used as a precedent by other jurists.

A certain Mrs. Noe was arrested and brought before him a few days ago for riding a bicycle in bloomers. Excitement ran high, the entire moral sentiment of Little Rock was rampant, and every eye was fixed upon the judge. He knew a crisis had arrived, and he met it without flinching. "Women," he said in a voice which will penetrate every hamlet in the land, "have a constitutional and God-given right to ride a bicycle, and they are bound to have some comfortable and appropriate dress therefor." In elaborating his view, Judge Wilson is both striking and convincing. He says:

"Were Mrs. Noe a woman with one foot in the grave and the other on a pedestal, were she of a size that threatened to frighten horses and impede traffic, or were her habiliments of the sort originally designed by the woman whose name they bear, I should be disposed to give her the limit of the law. As it is, the case is dismissed at the city's cost."

That makes the legal way clear to even the meanest capacity. So long as a woman "with one foot in the grave" does not try to ride a bicycle, so long as she is not of a size "to frighten horses or impede traffic," so long as her bloomers are not like unto the original Bloomer costume, she is free to dress as she thinks necessary in exercising her constitutional and God-given rights.—New York Evening Post.

Miss Laura Clark and Miss Nellie Kishpaugh went to Adrian Tuesday to attend the Episcopal convocation.

Ham Niblack and wife were at Ypsilanti all last week. They went out to attend the wedding of his wife's brother.

John J. White is now fully settled in his new room and it makes very convenient and commodious quarters for him.

G. D. Ellis is doing a good business this fall. His "Green Eagle" cigar is becoming a leader and is having a big sale.

Mrs. Hurd and her daughter, Mrs. Angie Conkright, have returned home to Pittsfield, Ill., after a two weeks' visit with friends in Clinton.

The Epworth League gave a pink tea at the M. E church parlors Tuesday evening. They had a good attendance and a very enjoyable time.

Fred. Greenleaf's son fell from his wheel and was unconcious several hours. It is reported that he was heated. Dr. White attended him and he is all right again.

H. Wiltse & Son have moved into their new shop in the corner of the new block, which makes an elegant room for their use. They have one of the neatest harness stores in the county.

Workmen are now making the new counters and fixtures in McClure's store. They will be done in the latest and most fashionable style. Frank expects to occupy his new store within two or three weeks.

The new drug firm, Sherwood & Foster, are taking possession of the west store in the new block this week. They will carry a full line of drugs and also staple and fancy groceries. They came here from Webberville and have had ten years' experience in the business. Success to them.

The improvements at the Freese store are progressing rapidly. The two archways through the partition wall have been completed and the west store is receiving its stock of boots and shoes. The firm will get all settled next week and will hold a grand fall opening on Saturday October 5th, when they will show the best line of goods ever shown in Clinton. Refreshments will be served and they want everybody to come.

One of those delightful occasions that linger vividly within the realm of memory after months and years have passed, took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Crittenden, in Saline township, on Thursday evening, Sept. 19. At this time Mr. Edward Miller, of Macon, claimed the hand of their youngest daughter, Nettie, and the words were pronounced by Rev. D. H. Ramsdell that sealed the solemn vow and made them one. Both of the contracting parties have grown up in this vicinity and are possessed of hosts of friends. Mr. Miller is engaged in teaching, a calling in which he has achieved much success. Much pleasure as it would have given the host and hostess to entertain all their friends and relatives on this occasion, the circle was so large that only the near relatives could be invited. All the arrangements of the wedding were made with excellent taste and carried out with ease and harmony. Many beautiful and useful presents betokened the high esteem in which the wedded pair is held. Their beginning is most auspicious; may it be prophetic of their entire life.

OUR GALA DAY.

Our gala day drew a large crowd last Saturday afternoon and all the games and sports came off substantially as prearranged. The weather was torrid enough to please the most fastidious, but it seemed to keep no one at home. Tecumseh on the south and Manchester on the north wete both represented by large delegations. The total number in town was estimated by some as high as 1500. There were doubtless more people than that in town during the entire afternoon, as the visitors we coming and going from noon until ... Patrick Swift was knocked down during one of the foot races, but he was only slightly injured and with that exception not an accident occurred to mar the pleasure of the day. The program closed with a fine display of fireworks in the evening. Good music was furnished during the day by the K. O. T. M. band, and there was a liberal display of flags and bunting by the business places on Chicago street. We append a brief synopsis of the events as they took place.

There were eight entries in the five mile handicap which proved to be the most exciting event of the day. The winners were Crosby first, Burton second, Clark third. Burleson who came in fourth was the scratch man, Crosby and Burton were given one minute the start and Clark one-half minute. Burleson's time was 17-1-4 minutes.

There were four entries in the boys' one mile race, Fay Anderson, Ralph Kishpaugh, Ed. Schmidt, and Merritt Martin, and the boys crossed the line in the order named. Time 3:16.

Next came the fat men's race for which there were three entries, J. B. Wells, John Mingues and John VanTuyle. The race was very close and won by Wells by about a foot.

The ladies' half mile race was contested by the Misses Cora Ward, Addie McDermott and Ella Cheatham, who won prizes in the order named.

There were ten starters in the foot race, 100 yards. The winners were Steve Huntington, C. M. Stevens, Newman. Time, 10 1-4 seconds.

The one mile open bicycle race was won by Robert Crosby with Leon Clark second and Floyd Williams third. Time, 2:12.

In the three-legged race there were five pairs entered and the three prizes were captured by Dickerson and Silkworth, Farrell and Phillips and Tag brothers.

The one-mile township championship bicycle race was closely contested by Robert Crosby and Leon Clark. Crosby won the first two heats and the medal. Time, 2:14; 2:19.

There were eight starters in the sack race. Henry Hollenbeck, Will Phillips and James Farrell won the three prizes.

Another comical race was the wheelbarrow race. There were eight starters and the winners were Huntington, Reilly and Stevens.

The bicycle three-mile lap race was contested for by nine wheelmen and was won by Burleson, Beneway being second and Vernie Smith third.

The last event of the afternoon was the tug-of-war. Fifteen Main street men were pitted against fifteen factory employees and when the signal was given there was a tremendous tug on the rope, neither side gaining any advantage for a time, but the business men outranked the factory boys in solid weight which finally turned the victory in their favor.

Taken altogether, Clinton has every reason to be proud of her gala day.

—COME AND SEE US—

Even a cat may be made useful. Clarence Wisner wanted to get a log chain under a building in order to move it, but the building being too close to the ground to admit of a boy crawling under it the family cat was impressed into the service. He is a large and intelligent cat, but even he could not carry a log chain, so a long string was procured and secured to the chain at one end and to the cat at the other, then a boy at the other side of the house began to call the cat. He ran to within about two feet of the boy's reach and sat down to study the situation. Explosive "Scat's" were hurled at him, but in vain. Finally, when hope was about to be abandoned, he suddenly broke cover, and the string at the same time, in a wild flight for a place of safety; but, happily, the string was within reach and the wished for end attained.

AN ACCIDENT.

Mr. Quintus Hummel, of 118 Michigan Ave., Detroit, tells a War Story of his own Experience, and the Result.

(From Detroit News.)

Our representative called at 118 Michigan Avenue, the residence of Mr. Quintus Hummel. Mr. Hummel is a veteran of the late war, and received, in the campaign, an injury which has given him much pain and suffering since. He belonged to a Michigan cavalry regiment and his horse becoming frightened one day reared up, throwing him backward. In falling he struck his spine on a sharp stone, inflicting a deep cut over five inches long. The injury affected the kidneys. About two years ago the left kidney started to bleed, and has been doing so ever since. Mr. Hummel, in a few pointed sentences, gave our representative the following account:

"The accident of my 'war days' left me in bad shape; pain in my back and spine rendered me almost useless, and I was compelled to give up work entirely. I could not turn over in bed without assistance. I have spent hundreds of dollars in various ways trying to find relief. Physicians have told me my spine was honeycombed for 13 inches. I had given up in despair, never hoping for relief, when a friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills, and they have done me a world of good. The pains have disappeared from my back, and the bleeding of my kidney has almost entirely stopped. I know I can never be entirely cured, as I would have to be 'a new man,' but Doan's Kidney Pills have done more to make me feel like 'a new man' than all the other things I have tried during past years. I have not had any recurrence of the pain or bleeding since taking them."

Eletric Bitters is especially adapted to the cure of all Kidney and Liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statemnt. Price only 50c. for large bottle. A Cure for Catarrh.

Bucyrus, Ohio, May 19, 1895.
Messrs. R. Pretzinger & Bro., Dayton, O.
Gentlemen:—My wife and myself have been chronic sufferers from catarrh in its worst form for a number of years. We have tried every remedy heard of with the hope of securing relief, but without success. By the advice of a friend we tried a jar of Pretzinger's Catarrh Balm, and I am most happy to bear testimony to its merits. I believe it to be the only Catarrh Cure. It has cured me and I think it will cure any one who will give it a trial.
Yours truly,

The Mount Lebanon Shakers recently performed a great deed of charity, although it was not designed as charity, being nothing more nor less than an advertising scheme. It however resulted in great good just the same. They gave away 1,000 bottles of their Digestive Cordial to those suffering from stomach derangements. It was so effective in curing those who used the remedy that they were loud in their praises of it and in consequence a large demand for the cordial was at once created. The druggists of this town have little books that tell all about it. Digestive Cordial creates an appetite, aids digestion and brings about a rapid increase in flesh and strength.

To Our Readers.

This is the season when farmers, and others desiring to invest in farm lands, are planning for the coming year. Attention is called to the great opportunity offered to secure lands at a very low price that will double in value in a short time. The income per acre is about the same as that from high priced land. Oats average 60 to 80 bushels per acre, abundant yield of hay and other grains, vegetables, etc. Climate, water, and railroad facilities are good. Those wanting unimproved land can find no more favorable location. Special inducements are offered during the next thirty days. Railroad fare paid if you buy. For further particulars write The C. S. Graves Land Co., 56, 5th. Ave. Chicago, who have an advertisement in this paper.

TECUMSEH, MICH., SEPT. 27, 1895.

SWINGING AROUND THE CIRCLE.

FT. WAYNE, Ind. Sept. 21, 1895.

After spending two weeks in Battle Creek, Mich., we came yesterday, via. Kalamazoo, to this old time city of northern Indiana. We were first here in 1843, when it was a mere village of perhaps 2000, and now it has 46.000.

I was last in Battle Creek six and one-half years ago, having been engaged in business there for the previous four years. It is but little larger now then it was, perhaps has 5.000 more inhabitants and very many new buildings, but the general depression of the times is very much felt there, besides the severe drouth of the last four months, and a bad small-pox scare, have served to arrest trade and for the time depress it still more. But its 20.000 inhabitants are not the sort of people to sit down and give up to adverse circumstances, and with a change of times, we think fast approaching, we look to see it soon booming again. And even now there is much new building going on, forty or fifty new residences perhaps, two or three new manufactories and the Presbyterian church and congregation are putting up a new church to be completed this fall, at the corner of West Main and McCalmly streets, at a cost of $50.000.

Many of its older citizens have passed away since we were last there. John Nichols, founder of the Nichols & Shepherd Vibrator Thresher Co., and founder of the Nichols Home for accidental sufferers from railroad or other accidents, or disease; Col. John Peavey and his son C. C. Peavey, Rich Kingman, Prest. of the City Bank, and two or three of its old directors, Dr. Hubbard, H. H. Hubbard, Dr. Chapin, and many other of its older citizens.

We did not stop at Kalamazoo, but leaving Battle Creek at 8:05 a. m. arrived here at 12:15 p. m., in the heat and dust, the thermometer ranging at 94° for the last 30 miles. The drouth in this vicinity is even more severe than in Lenawee county. The corn is either ripened, or dried up, cut up and in stacks for fodder. Wheat fields are sown but mostly dry as dust, and most of them will not come up till it rains. The thermometer has usually been from 75° to 80° during the night and 90° to 95° at 2 p. m. for the past week; was 94° as I came to my room this afternoon.

I came of course to visit my son W. F. Baxter who is agent for the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co., and has his office at 33 Bass Block, in the center of the city, and just off the Court House square. When I have nothing else to do I run in upon the circuit court now in session, to see how their administration of the laws compares with those of Michigan. You are aware that I practiced law at Logansport, Ind., just fifty years ago, before going into partnership with Perley Bills at Tecumseh in 1846.

I have been up to the junction of the St. Joseph and St. Mary's Rivers here, which coming together form the Maumee river and in the forks of which was the site of Old Ft. Wayne, from which the city takes its name. There is now only a well kept grass mound, an artesian well and a planted cannon to mark the spot. When here in 1845, it had something of its old character as an Indian trading post, and very many of the Pottawatamie Indians were still on the reservation on the St. Mary's river, drawing their bounties quarterly I think, and spending the money in dissipation at the groggeries in the village it then was; but all this and also the Indians have passed away. I leave for Toledo next Wednesday and will write again from there. B. L. BAXTER.

We wish to extend through these columns our sincere thanks to our friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us in the sad bereavement of our darling little baby, Samuel. May it be the blessed lot of all when they come to die to gently fall asleep in the arms of Jesus as did our darling.

IMPASSIONED LOGIC.

A Second Speech to The Christian Endeavorers.

I stood on the corner of Fulton street, in New York, a sad and an utterly hopeless man. The light had gone out. There was no soul on the face of the earth except one woman and a little boy who believed in me. They were in their desolate home in the far northwest, my wife, worse than a widow because her husband was not dead. There are worse things than widowhood. I stood there and heard a splendid band playing. It was at the head of the dramsellers, who were out for their holiday with their carriages decorated with banners. I saw my sorrowful heart with my wrecked life and with an awful lump of homesickness in my throat such sights in that procession as no other man could describe. I could see at every turn of the carriage wheel some heart crushed and my own boy cursed with hereditary taint of the drunkard. I could see them crushed under the wheels of the Juggernaut of the drink traffic of New York and Brooklyn. Broadway seemed to be paved that day with the fragments of broken homes. I could see joined to the carriage wheels a countless multitude of men like I was, friendless, beggared, starving their pitiful way to be a part of the saloon keeper's spectacle, and I could see haggered faced women holding in their forms little pinched and ragged clothed babes, which tugged at their mothers' starved breasts in vain for food.

"I could see my own wife in the procession. I could see the gray hairs of my mother woven into the fine cloth that was worn on the backs of those dramsellers. I saw a trembling drunkard when the procession began to move, and when it had passed away I found myself standing erect with my face toward heaven, and I found myself saying by the grace of God I would not make another fight for myself again, but I would extend every energy to stop that procession in this country."

During the telling of this story by the speaker there was a deep and impressive hush, which was at this point broken by a demonstration of applause and shouts that were beyond adequate description.

When the applause subsided, the speaker continued: "I went from city to city, from state to state, asking nothing better than to testify to drinking and fallen men of the power of Jesus Christ to save them (applause,) and I beseech the clear, calm, steady handed men who never had the hell of passion or the appetite for drink in their own veins to lend a hand for the rescue of these fallen creatures. I say I have no ambition in the world beyond being a missionary to the drunkards in the land. I desire to spend the remainder of my life beseeching tempted men to come and find out for the salvation of their own souls.

I know of the faith of the Son of God, but you cannot blame me for being particular to what church I lead them. I can't lead them where it won't be helpful. (Applause.)

I would never ask a man to send his son to the Sabbath school where the superintendent is in favor of liquor saloons, or ask the drunkard to join a church having a pastor whose private habits were such it would not be safe for him to imitate, or to put myself into Christian company of deacons and officeholders of a church who themselves smell of wine, and, because of their complicity with the liquor traffic, are unable to raise their voices in the name of Jesus Christ against the saloon keepers. (Great applause.)

A drunkard must get to a higher level of Christian grace and faith and service than is represented by a license superintendent or tippling deacon or Christian man who lets a house to a saloon or brothel keeper. I will take no chances like that. For Jesus Christ's sake, let us get the church clean. (Tremendous applause.)

We will never save the world until we get the church right for Christ. Change the Christian Endeavor motto from 'For Christ and the Church' to 'The Church For Christ.' For the sake of the chivalry of your own manhood, for your self respect, for the truth of the church and for true Christian citizenship stop being whipped by party politicians into a crowd you don't belong in. Don't go there because your father did or because it is the biggest or because the newspapers advocate it. (Renewed applause and cheers.)

Go into the Democratic party if you like, but think about it. Go because you fit and join there. No party owns me. I doubt if any party claims me. My flag is up for no spoils, no dirty politics, is up for Jesus Christ and a pure manhood. Down with spoils; down with liquor saloons; down with strikes; down with pauper and criminal immigration. (Tumultuous applause.) Down with the lying, juggling partisan tariff reform; up with arbitration; up with the little red schoolhouse. (Repeated cheering, shouts, stamping of feet and clapping of hands.)

Up with the English language; up with a clean press; up with the voice of the people; honest traffic for American capital, honest wages for American workmen, a fair chance for American boys, another for American drunkards and equal chances for American women, respect for the laws and for the Sabbath obedience to law and loyalty to the whole country without regard to section. Glory to God in the highest—that is my flag. (Wild demonstration.)

Don't ask me to follow your party or candidate if they don't come there or follow that flag. There is no trouble about securing the success of this great crusade against the liquor saloons.

In emphasizing these points Mr. Woolley drew a terrible picture of a country entirely controlled by liquor dealers, given up to its sale and use, and occupied only by its supporters and victims.

It was, he said, 'a vision most repellant and repugnant.' It was, he continued, a scene of horrors and of despair. It was a country free from Sunday laws, free from the fanatical interference of Christian people. There were coils of distilleries, breweries, brothels, madhouses and gaming houses. Mothers sat upon the ground beside the dead bodies of their firstborn, and praying for death themselves. Drunken men go into drunkards' graves, women go about broken hearted. Six millions of people and not one happy home in all the land; not one cheerful face; no sweet notes raised, on Sunday, no church, no God. It is like the leprosy island in the Pacific ocean. The infernal cruelty and atrocity of it have never struck you, oh, men, and you women of the temperance union, because there is no drunkard in family. Look at it today as never before for Jesus Christ's sake! If I could take the roofs of Boston off and show you the secret of the unhappy homes here, made so by the liquor traffic, I would make you men of Boston stand up and swear that you would take no rest until the dramshops of this city were in smoking ruins. (Prolonged applause and cheers.)

If the suggestion is made to you to quiet the saloon on the Scandinavian plan, or to keep them 100 feet away from schoolhouse or church, be it clergyman or layman, dump him in Boston harbor, and keep him there until the meanness is soaked out of him. (Great applause.)

Stand up, men of Beston, and cleanse thyself, so that it will be a clean place, and safe for the boys and girls to grow up in. I expect to win this fight and put my own heel on the neck of this liquor traffic. I will plant my heel upon its accursed neck, with 'Down, down, to hell, and say I sent thee.' (Tumultuous applause.)

May God help you to keep the shadow of drink from your own homes, and may God give you great strength and grit and sand and the determination to conquer in this fight against this great curse and foe."

Henry Tatlock continues the Dean by appointment of the Bishop. Mr. Chas. Keyes was the lay delegate from Tecumseh. The Junior Auxiliary to missions also met under the presidency of Mrs. Richard McCauley, of Detroit. A very good meeting was held and a branch of the society organized for Christ church parish. A singular accident occurred at the corner of Maiden Lane and Logan St. Tuesday evening, by which Miss Hattie Woodard was somewhat injured. Rev. Mr. Hudson was riding his wheel along the street and came in collision with the lady. She is quite deaf and failed to hear the alarm. Fortunately no bones were broken, but she has been quite ill from the nervous shock. Mr. Hudson is much grieved over the affair, as it was purely accidental on his part, and no blame can be attached to anyone.

LATER—Miss Woodard passed away at 9 o'clock this forenoon, being unable to rally from the nervous shock sustained, not having regained consciousness from the time of being struck. It is a very sad affair, both for the innocent victim and the equally innocent cause of the accident. The funeral has not been fixed upon as we go to press.

Preparations are being pushed at Ann Arbor for the resumption of studies at the university which will occur next week. Work during the summer has been largely confined to the making of needed repairs. Some new walks have been added, closets placed in the law building and university hall, stairways strengthened in the latter building, iron work painted and ceilings and walls frescoed. At the university hospital it has taken much of the summer to rebuild the ampitheater and replace the disagreeable benches with folding seats. There have been numerous repairs at the observatory. The great movable dome looms out in the brightest of blue, and a few inside changes have been made. It was found impossible to make the proposed changes at the athletic field and it remains much as before. A well is being sunk, the great quantity of water needed making it too expensive to use the city water mains. Old students will not find many changes in or about the university buildings when they return.

No need to fear the approach of croup if you have Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil in the house. Never was a case that it wouldn't cure if used at the outset. 1w

—A FEW THINGS WORTH REMEMBERING.—

Remember that my goods are all new. There is no old nor shelf-worn goods to choose from, as every yard was bought new at the time of opening up business. Remember that I import them direct from the mills, saving wholesale profits and expenses and giving the customers the benefit. Remember they are all bought for cash, thereby saving large discounts, and that, while the stock is not large, it is kept fresh and new by continual renewals. Remember that those who do not care to buy from stock can choose from samples, of which I have a most complete selection of nearly 2,000 patterns from four of the leading woolen manufacturers. Remember that my work stands second to none in every respect. It sells on its merits alone. Valueing public opinion, I invite their inspection and patronage.

Yours truly,

TO MICHIGAN HEROES.

Dedication of Monuments on Chickamauga's Bloody Field.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 20.—Among the interesting incidents connected with the dedication of the national military park on the battlefield of Chickamauga was the dedication of the Michigan monuments on Thursday. The Michigan legislature appropriated $20,000 for the erection of monuments to the eleven commands that participated in the battle of Chickamauga, when 600 brave Michigan men were left dead on the field, and hundreds more were wounded and taken prisoners. The monuments are of granite and bronze, that of the Ninth infantry being a statue of Gen. John C. Parkhurst, 6 feet in height and standing on a base rising 6 feet. In addition to the eleven monuments, thirteen markers have been erected to locate the subordinate positions occupied by the different commands during the great engagement.

The dedicatory exercises were opened with music by a band and prayer, after which Capt. Charles E. Belknap, of Grand Rapids, president of the state commission, formally presented the monuments to Gov. Rich in the name of that body, and the governor accepted them on behalf of the state. The oration was then delivered by Col. Henry H. Duffield, of Detroit.

CREW IS SAFE.

No Loss of Life by the Sinking of the Schooner E. R. Williams.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 25.—A private telegram to the Journal from Cleveland says that the report that the schooner E. R. Williams was lost with all hands is erroneous. A message was received Tuesday morning by Warner & Co., from Capt. Hunton, of the Williams, which said that the schooner sank at 2 a. m. Monday morning off Saint Martin's island. The crew took to the small boats and reached Manistique safely.

Two Children Killed.

KINDE, Sept. 19.—A cyclone struck Pinnebog late Tuesday night, demolishing the house of Richard Tott, and killing two of his children, aged 4 and 6 years. One child's head was crushed in by falling timbers, and the other's breast was crushed. Three other children were hurt, one being carried several rods by the wind.

Town of Alaska Burned.

GRAND RAPIDS, Sept. 20.—Alaska, in Caledonia township, 18 miles southeast of this city, was visited by a disastrous fire early Wednesday morning which wiped out the entire business part of the town. Seven buildings were laid in ruins, entailing a loss which is hard to estimate, but which is probably not far from $10,000.

Udder a New Name.

LANSING, Sept. 22.—The Ann Arbor Railway company filed articles of association with the secretary of state Saturday with a capital of $7,250,000. The franchise fee amounted to $3,625. The corporation is the successor of the Toledo, Ann Arbor & Northern Michigan Railway company.

Favorable to Crops.

Killed by an Electric Shock.

PONTIAC, Sept. 19.—Edward Lathey, an employe of the Commercial electric light station, was instantly killed by coming in contact with the big motor.

STRIKE IS ENDED.

Miners by a Vote of 700 to 600 Decide to Go to Work.

MARQUETTE, Sept. 20.—The strike of the Ishpeming and Negaunee miners was declared off by a vote of the men at their meeting Thursday afternoon. A division of the men in attendance was taken on one proposal to abandon the fight and 700 were counted in favor of calling the strike off and going to work, 600 voting for its continuance. This ends the struggle of the men to secure the scale demanded by them. They will now go to work as work is given them under the scale submitted to them by the companies during the second week of the strike. Double shifts are being worked at the steam shovels at several of the mines, and ore from the stock piles is going forward rapidly now.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Sept. 21.—The number of miners who have been idle during the strike numbers about 5,000. Of these not more than 300 have left the county to seek employment on other ranges and a number have returned. They will be started slowly, as time must be had to pump out the water that has accumulated in the lower levels, where the principal mining was being done at the time of the strike. At Section 21 mine of the Lake Superior Mining company nothing will be done for some weeks to come. The Lake Angeline will start with about one-half its old force, and the Cleveland Cliff will put on about a like percentage. In Negaunee the Buffalo mines will not resume work for some time to come. The water is going into the Cambria and nothing may be done there this year. It will require at least a month before the mines are working smoothly, and there will be a shortage of men if compared to the number that struck, of about 600. This is due to the fact that the shipping will be over for the year, and the men engaged in that work will be out of employment. The companies entertain no malice towards the men, and will treat them fairly.

ISHPEMING, Mich., Sept. 24.—All was peace in Ishpeming and Negaunee Monday. The mines are all resuming with such forces of men as can be employed to advantage. It will be two weeks before they will be working full-handed, owing to the water in the lower levels. The Ironwood county and state militia have gone home, and the other companies will leave immediately.

The troops have been on duty for twenty-three days at an expense to the county of $20,000. Miners will be employed as fast as needed and no discrimination will be made against any on account of the part taken in the strike. Union men, on the other hand, promise not to interfere with non-union men who were brought here during the strike.

Standing of the clubs is as follows:

RUIN BY A GALE.

Heavy Losses Experienced by Members of Lo[illegible]

DETROIT, Mich., [illegible].—Advices received from se[illegible] of the state show that the s[illegible] Sunday night was little less se[illegible] that of last week. At Alpen[illegible] cyclone wrecked the big roof of [illegible] Mennek tannery and blew the [illegible] pole through the roof of a house near by. The pole crashed down to the first floor, upsetting a stove and setting fire to the house. Several vessels had their canvas blown away and masts split. The velocity of the wind at Middle Island off Alpena was 72 miles an hour. From Menominee comes the report that a cyclone swept over there wrecking buildings and uprooting trees with a damage estimated at over $100,000. Harrisville and Presque Isle suffered severely.

At St. Joseph the thermometer dropped 52½ degrees inside of twenty-four hours, and a high wind carried disaster to the fruit trees. Cheboygan had winter weather, with a fierce westerly gale, and the thermometer showed a drop of over 50 degrees in ten hours. At Saginaw the wind blew the water up the river, lowering it 5 feet, so that the waterworks were obliged to suspend from lack of water. All the lake ports report a heavy wind. Off Sand Beach a sailboat was capsized and William Arndt was drowned.

TRAVERSE CITY, Sept. 24.—The high wind culminated Sunday, blowing furiously all day and most of the night. An immense quantity of timber was blown down all through this region. The roof was blown partially off the factory of the Potato Implement company and the metal work of the Mason block was damaged. There are probably no winter apples left on the trees in the Grand Traverse region. At Keswick, near Sutton's bay, the house of Fred Priest was twisted around on its stone foundation.

MRS. LARKINS CONFESSES.

Tells How She Killed Mrs. Jane Merrill at Her Home.

MONROE, Sept. 21.—The mystery which surrounded the finding of some charred bones in the woods near here has been cleared up. Mrs. Enos Larkins, who is now in jail with her dark-skinned twin babies, has broken down. She confesses that she killed Mrs. Jane Merrill, her husband's benefactor, by striking the old lady on the head with a billet of wood while the two were quarreling at her home. She says the body was buried that night, but, fearing detection, was dug up next day and burned in a heap of cordwood. She claims that she had nothing to do with the burying of the body, but that her husband did that, assisted by another man, whose name she will not reveal. Mrs. Larkins tells how she burned the personal effects of the woman she murdered, admits personating Mrs. Merrill in Toledo and writing the letters which were sent to cover the crime. The confession was extorted from Mrs. Larkins by the officers telling her that her husband had given the whole thing away and accused her of the murder, which was a fact. The officers do not believe that there was any quarrel between the two women, and think it was all a plot on the part of Larkins and his wife to get old Mrs. Merrill out of the way that they might get possession of her forty-eight acres of land, which is so poor that beans would hardly grow there.

There are men of national reputation buried in Mountain Home, including ex-Senator Charles E. Stuart, Senator Stockbridge, Prof. Edward Olney, author of Olney's schoolbooks, and Congressman Allen Potter.

Immense Copper Output.

HOUGHTON, Sept. 25.—The Calumet & Hecla company is materially increasing its output of refined copper, and mineral stored from previous years' operations is now being smelted. This year the output of copper will be nearly 20,000,000 pounds more than last year's, an increase of one-third. The Calumet & Hecla at the present price of copper is earning nearly $500,000 net profit every thirty days.

Call It a Craze,

AN ALARMING STATEMENT CONCERNING WOMEN.

HOW BAD HABITS ARE FORMED.

The New York Tribune says: "The habit of taking 'headache powders' is increasing to an alarming extent among a great number of women throughout the country. These powders, as their name indicates, are claimed by the manufacturers to be a positive and speedy cure for all forms of headache. In many cases these drug ingredients is morphine, opium, cocaine or some other equally injurious drug having a tendency to deaden pain. The habit of taking them is easily formed, but almost impossible to break off. Women usually begin taking them to relieve a raging headache and soon resort to the powder to alleviate any little pain or ache that may be suspected to, and finally like the morphine or opium fiend, get into the habit of taking them regularly, imagining that they are ill if they happen to miss their regular dose."

In nine cases out of ten, the trouble is in the stomach and liver. Take a simple laxative and liver tonic and remove the offending matter which deranges the stomach and causes the headache. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are composed entirely of the purest, concentrated vegetable extracts. One Pellet is a dose; sugar-coated, easily swallowed. once used, always in favor. They positively cure sick headache and remove the disposition to it.

MR. R. VARGASON, of Otter Lake, Lapeer Co., Mich., writes: "I do unhesitatingly bear witness to the attack of the headache. It usually comes in the forenoon. At my dinner I eat my regular meal, and take no medicine. Two of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets follow immediately after, and by the end of course of an hour the headache is cured and no bad effects. I feel better every way for having taken them. I get mine, as I do everything else, at the store, after taking other kinds of pills. 'Pleasant Pellets' are worth more than their weight in gold, if for nothing else than to cure headache."

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson for the Week Beginning Sept. 29, Commented by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M.

Topic, Reading Jairus' Daughter.

Scripture Reading: Matth. ix, 18, 19, 23-26; Mark v. 21-24, 35-43; Luke viii, 41, 42, 49-56.

The chief ruler of the Capernaum synagogue was in distress of mind. His little 12-year-old daughter was dying. All remedies had failed. He knew of Jesus' presence in the city; perhaps recalls the cure of the servant of the centurian who built the synagogue. As the last possible chance for her life he seeks the Master. Choked with emotion, he asks that Jesus will come and lay his hands on her and heal her. Jesus rises from the feast in the house of Levi (Matthew), the publican, and goes with him.

A messenger meets the ruler and tells him the child is dead and adds, "Don't bother the Master further." Jesus overhears the message and reassures Jairus: "Be not afraid. Only believe." Arriving at the house the hired flute players and mourners are found already there, weeping, howling, beating their breasts and tearing their hair, according to their professional custom. Jesus takes but three of the apostles with him. Entering the house, he rebukes the people for the din they are making. It was idle noise and not the expression of real sorrow. They greet with coarse ridicule his declaration that the child is sleeping and not dead. He ejects them from the house. Quiet secured, he takes the parents and his three followers, and entering the room, lifting the cold hand of the child, says to her, "Little girl, get up!" Eyes open, she arouses, rises, touches her feet to the floor and walks.

Great is the wonder of all but Jesus himself. He gives orders for food to be given her. Restored by supernatural power, she must be sustained by natural means.

Then he strictly charges secrecy. The rising opposition of Pharisees and rabbis will flame out at once if this cure of the chief elder's daughter is published abroad. The consequence will be that serious hindrance may be given his work. He will avoid all open conflict as long as possible.

torates in all the New England states except Vermont, and in Pennsylvania and New York. He has held the position of president of the Norwich district and also of the New England Southern Conference League two years each. He is now pastor of the church in Willimantic.

A Bad Pair.

Human meannesses usually travel in pairs as the Christian graces go in groups. Covetousness or avarice, the desire to get what other folks possess, is a mean trait. It is mother to stealing and lives next door to murder. It is ever hungry, nor could all harvests satisfy its craving, since it digests nothing. It respects no rights of others, but is governed by its own wants. Boon companion with it is ingratitude. No benefits received ever stir the cold pulses of this latter lodger in human habitations. No thanks ever trip its tongue to stammering or blind its eyelids with mist of tears. They two lodge together, and they pay board in coin of discontent and checks on the bank of misery. Better eject them and get more thrifty tenants.

Politeness and Piety.

Virtue is so delightful whenever it is seen that men have found it to their interest to cultivate its manners. Now we are come to love the sign more than the thing itself. Beyond doubt, many prefer, though they never confess it, manners without virtue to virtue without manners.

The Spirit of Prayer.

When thou prayest, rather let thy heart be without words than thy words without heart. Prayer will make a man cease from sin, or sin will entice a man to cease from prayer. The spirit of prayer is more precious than treasures of gold and silver.—Bunyan.

The Celestial Country.

The sunlit land that reeks not
Of tempest nor of fight
Shall fold within its bosom
Each happy Israelite—
The home of fadeless splendor,
Of flowers that fear no thorn,
Where they shall dwell as children,
Who here as exiles mourn.
That peace—but who may claim it?
The guileless in their way
Who keep the ranks of battle,
Who mean the thing they say—
The peace that is for heaven
And shall be for the earth;
The palace that re-echoes
With festal song and mirth;
The garden breathing spices,
The paradise on high;
Grace beautified to glory,
Unceasing minstrelsy.

"I was troubled for years with a sore on my knee, which several physicians, who treated me, called a cancer, assuring me that nothing could be done to save my life. As a last resort, I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after taking a number of bottles, the sore

A CASE CITED IN OCEANA CO.

A Further Case Cited by the Jackson Patriot, in which Rheumatism, Resulting from Same Cause, was Cured in the Same Way.

From the Muskegon, Mich., News.

Oceana County, Michigan, is widely known as one of the finest fruit-growing sections in the country, and especially for its fine and luscious peaches. But all the peaches grown on trees are not to be placed in comparison with the peach bloom which has again returned to the cheeks of one of the best known ladies in Hart, the county seat of Oceana county. How this wonderful and beautiful effect was obtained, and the history of the illness preceding the cure has been known long since to residents of Hart and others throughout the county, but to a News reporter of Muskegon, who was in Hart at the fair, the following interesting and joyful tale was unfolded recently by Mrs. W. S. Eggleston, the person who once was a helpless invalid. To-day a more happy woman can nowhere be found.

"In 1891," said Mrs. Eggleston, "I resided in Cass county, at which time I in common with nearly everybody in the county suffered a severe attack of the grippe, only it left me with a still more serious trouble. The greatest part of my trouble then was in my stomach. I had no appetite and wasted away until I lost twenty-four pounds. Of course I was doctoring, but nothing reached my case. I moved up to Hart in June, 1892, and my ill health continued, although I tried two resident physicians. I grew disgusted finally and quit doctoring, as it seemed it would take our all, and yet I grew no better and looked like a skeleton. My husband read in a paper of a medicine called Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and he immediately got some for me. I had no hope hardly and was not enthusiastic over the new pills, but I am now.

"It is a solemn fact that I began to get better the very first day and kept on improving. In a short time my stomach had a better feeling; my appetite picked up and I could eat everything I wanted to. I had a second trouble, however, which I did not expect the pills would reach, but they did, and the result is that a swelling in my right side, caused by some ovarian trouble is almost entirely gone. I can lie on my right side now with comfort, and this is not all the relief I obtained.

"Formerly in wet weather my bones would ache terribly. Now I do not notice any bad effects whatever. I am able to walk three miles at a stretch now, for I did that last week in going to visit a friend. I tell every one of my wonderful cure, and many of my afflicted friends are using the Pink Pills now with good effect. I now weigh 132 pounds, a gain of twenty-one pounds."

Mrs. Eggleston's husband was present during the narration of his wife's troubles and triumphs, and he willingly corroborated the statements made by her.

A neighbor, Mrs. Brown, who happened to drop in, stated that Mrs. Eggleston did not look like the same woman who came to Hart a year ago.

RHEUMATISM'S VICTIM.

How He Was Attacked—How He Was Treated—How He Was Cured.

From the Jackson, Mich., Patriot.

How often are seen people a little past the meridian of life who, but for the lingering effects of some ailment of an unusually stubborn nature, might still be enjoying robust health, but who on account of the lack of a remedy to assist nature in throwing off the disease are broken down and worn out long before the allotted time.

Marcus S. Lyon, of 1071 Francis Street, Jackson, Michigan, is one of the victims. A year and a half ago Mr. Lyon was a physical wreck, hardly able to leave his bed, and his friends had no idea that he could survive more than a few months longer at best. He is however to-day a well man. During the course of a recent conversation with a reporter, he gave a history of his case and the cause of his recovery, as follows:

"About two and a half years ago I had a severe attack of influenza which left me very bad in its effects, and would not yield to ordinary treatment. Some four months later I had another attack which was fully as persistent as the first. After being treated by the family physician for some time I thought the disease had run into rheumatism, and I treated for the same several months, all the time getting worse. I began getting weaker in the muscles of my legs, feet and hands which were quite sore and tender. My feet and the lower part of my legs, and my hands were badly bloated and dropsical and had a numb or paralyzed feeling, and I could stand on my feet but a few minutes at a time. I became restless and nervous, and would awaken twelve or fifteen times in the night and my legs would cramp for a few seconds, similar to shaking ague, but not cold. With all the rest, my hands had stiffened and I had not been able to dress myself for several months, and many of my friends thought I would not live but a few weeks. I was looking so bad and pale and still had taken what the doctor had ordered all the time. I went to another doctor for his opinion in my case. He, judging from the dropsical condition of my limbs, said I had Bright's disease. I disputed this and another doctor said I had no indication of it whatever of which I was confident. Dr. N. H. Williams finally concluded my blood was out of order and asked him for a remedy for my bad blood. This was in February, 1893. He said that all that could be done was to exercise indoors, get my strength when the weather got warm. At last he said he had gone just as far as he could and I dropped Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People about the 15th of March, 1893, and in ten days after taking the pills the dropsical condition and weakness began to leave my feet and legs. In a comparatively short time I was nearly cured, and I gained strength so that I could walk a mile and back. I then went to work at my trade as a joiner and stair builder and have worked almost every day since. My recovery has been a wonder to my friends. I am sixty-five years old this month and my general health has never been better than it is at present. I can recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People as a great blood builder and for general debility. A dozen or more of my friends have also been using Pink Pills on their merits in my case with very beneficial results. I can say of Pink Pills have been a life-saving remedy for me, and have given me at least a few more years of health and vigor."

MARCUS S. LYON.

OUR WHEELMEN ABROAD.

The Falls of the Rhine and a Bicycle Ride Over the Alps.

DEAR MR. EDITOR:—After our two days almost imperceptible climb, we reached Newhausen and the Falls of the Rhine. I can call it names, and apply a few weak adjectives but describe it—well an instantaneous photograph can do it; a painting cannot; even the poet Bayard Taylor falls when he says that "it winnows a stormy chaff of sparkling diamonds." A phonograph might reproduce the sound for you, but you must lose the grand variety of motion unless you take your own eyes there. I can tell you that it has an irregular rocky ledge to plunge from, that four huge limestone rocks seem to attempt to bar its way and that one of them has been buttressed to keep it from being hurled away; that there are rainbows in the clouds of silvery spray and that the emerald green mass of water rushes by the stone parapet, where we stand, with a roar like the hungry sea; but adequately describe it, I cannot. We left it and were dazed and hushed by its beauty and grandeur until we reacred Shaffhausen, two miles beyond where new and strange scenes wakened us. A fine old round tower high on a hill and the cathedral in which is the bell which inspired Schiller's "Song of the bell" are the chief attractions.

Now began our real ride in the Alps, for we set out for Zurich. What is riding a bicycle in the Alps? It is partly being a bird, flying and floating, partly being a galley slave, toiling and moiling. We would make a long ascent with our muscles taut and the sprocket chain creaking, and our minds all oblivious to the billowy hills about us, then from the summit all is relaxed and with feet on the coasters, we float for two or three miles, and exclaim every now and then in wonder or admiration over some view which we are now perfectly free to enjoy. We reached Zurich. Think of a site inhabited in prehistoric times as Lacustrine remains show. Imagine a long, pale green lake, whose shores are outlined by orchards, vineyards and villages. Behind this scene, conjure lofty alpine mountains with their diadems of snow and the fantastic peaks of the Rosstock range. Fancy yourself on a long bridge which spans the end of the lake where the river enters upon whose banks the city lies. Then look up the river lined by quaint houses, a modern library, and an old time stained cathedral. But you cannot make yourself as uncomfortable as we were when we tried to find the way to Zug. There are seven best ways and we found seven different people who spoke seven different languages and vehemently advised a certain route, and asserted solemnly that all others were impassible. In desperation, we took our map, shut our teeth hard together and set out on a route which we chose ourselves. We soon got into a race with a steam tramway, and unconsciously covered a great deal of ground and ourselves with cheap glory by beating the cars. Darkness came on and we were on a lonely mountain road over-arched by pine trees. In the twilight there was a light green haze over everything. The air was pure, and the night insects busily hummed about us, but our speed saved us from any unpleasant experiences. At last a long glorious coast, and we found ourselves in Zug, where a night's rest left us light hearted and open eyed for the lake beauties about us. Views of the Rigi mountains and Pilatus and the Bernese Alps are the charm of Zug, together with its antique walls and towers. On a lonely road we set out for Lucerne. The crack of a teamster's whip alone disturbed the stillness. This teamster of the mountains always gets his cart and oxen at an angle across the road and then stops them to see you go by when you can't.

The valley of the Emme is a characteristic Swiss vale, where the steep sides are dotted with cottages and the bottom lands have an occasional town. The prosperous Swiss farmer has a cottage with an umbrella-like roof which projects sometimes ten feet over the sides and the siding looks like the scales of a large fish. The windows are often filled with flowers. These dwellings are very pleasing and pretty in their place, and their place is a Swiss valley. They seem part of the landscape. We were obliged to buy our dinner at one of these cottages of the humbler class, and while we ate our coarse bread and milk and Harry ate some horrible pork which he purchased additional, I noted the interior. A stone floor, a ceiling supported by huge beams smoked black, a stove about the size and shape of a steamer trunk, a clock with a brass face and a lame tick, a razor hung over the door like Damocles' sword, and various religious chromos completed the visible interior, but there is an odoriferous and auriferous interior which cannot be told.

I am going to give a sort of condensed guide-book description of Lucerne. It has walls and nine ancient watch-towers. It faces the snow-clad Alps of the Uri. There are mediæval covered bridges, painted with scenes from the lives of saints. The famous "Lion of Lucerne" is by Thorwaldsen. The lake, with the magnificent mountains behind it, is beautiful enough to be haunted by a whole aquarium of water deities. But loveliest of all is the wealth of tradition and story which is associated with its banks. It is an altogether lovely spot if one could only escape the hotel, the cab, the steamboat, and other vexations, for which nature and the genius of the place are not to blame.

We lingered long and wheeled away reluctantly. Berne had now become our goal. Valleys of rich pasture land and, high above, beautiful pine forests pleased the eye and made our ride delightful. The houses remind us of that of Little Red Ridinghood's grandmother. Great, bulky, round shouldered mountains rise at times right before you, and as they sit upon their thrones of rock with their robes of forests, they seem majestically to defy your passage; but the road goes round and the railroad good naturedly dives through. The line of forest trees is drawn on a mountain side with such military precision that Birnam's wood seems to be marching in very truth. Mountain streams are crossed by covered bridges and the roof is so huge that it usually has the appearance of having squelched the bridge.

How we reached Berne and what we did I shall tell you later.

C. H. VANTYNE.

Shall Cuba be Free?

For some time, members of the Dr. Miles' Medical Company have been deeply interested in the unequal struggle of the Cuban patriots for liberty. Desiring to render them substantial aid they decided that instead of illegally sending money direct, it would be better if used in enlisting the people of the United States in a legal movement to obtain beneficial legislation. The first thing done was to bring this company itself into line; employing the far-reaching machinery of its extensive business correspondence, in circulating a petition to congress in behalf of this deserving, liberty-loving people. To this end they are sending out over one hundred thousand petitions, to distributing agents and to the many thousand druggists, as well as to newspapers, boards of trade, merchants, schools, colleges, clubs, etc.

Senator Call, of Floridr, is quoted by the Chicago Times-Herald as saying: "Spain, simply because of long-established and long-recognized authority, has no right to oppress people anxious for freedom, worthy of freedom, and seeking to govern themselves. They are our next door neighbors and are appealing to us in their distress, and I think we, we of all people, ought to help them. At least, we ought to leave our people free in the matter. The truth is, the United States is Spain's main-stay. The widest advertisement is made of the rigid attitude of this government respecting the neutrality laws, which has the double purpose of serving Spain and crippling the Cubans by holding back Cuba's eager friends, while Spain perfects arrangements designed to make her grip on the island tighter than ever. Sever the relations between the United States and Spain, by recognition of the Cubans as belligerents, and Cuban independence would be an accomplished fact in a very short time. The spirit is abroad in the land, the money is at hand, fifty thousand men, including some of the brightest and most ambitious in the nation, would leave these shores at once to join the Cuban army; ships would be purchased and equipped for service, and Spain would have to yield."

The Tobacco War.

The present war existing between the big plug tobacco manufacturers is proving very interesting for the consumers, they being the only ones who are profiting by this war. The manufacturers are unquestionably losing a great deal of money, and, as far as we can see, the whole cause of the war is on account of a brand of plug tobacco called "Battle Ax" which appears to be as powerful a weapon as its name implies. The manufacturers of "Battle Ax" claim it to be the largest piece of high grade goods ever sold for the money. And the success of the brand, the enormous quantity being sold, clearly demonstrates that the consumers have not been slow in detecting the fact that they have a bargain. This has caused the demand for other heretofore popular brands to be greatly diminished. Hence the great tobacco war.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

THE FALL CAMPAIGN.

Take the carpets out and hang them
On the line once more;
Hire a man to lie supinely
In their place and snore.
Rustle 'round and fetch the stovepipe
Into view again—
We must all get ready for the Fall
Cam-Paign.

Hail the haughty scrubbing lady,
Patient 'neath her frown,
Let her sweep the house in triumph;
We can move down town.
From complaint or criticism
Carefully refrain.
Just be glad if we survive the

Discussing the cost of bicycles, an exchange says there seems to be a prevailing idea that there will be a reduction in price next year, but where the authority for this very widespread impression exists it is hard to determine. Manufacturers deny that there will be any fall in price for 1896. The great number of new firms, and indeed individuals, now engaged in the business of making bicycles, will undoubtedly exercise an influence upon prices in the immediate future, though the recognized standard high-grade makers of wheels will always command what people are pleased to say is too high a price.

The personal rights of the editor of the Arizona Kicker are not to be trampled on according to this: "The Lone Jack Record takes us to task for being one of the spectators of the dog fight which took place at Hill City last Saturday, and says that a senator, mayor and postmaster ought to set a better example to his fellow men. In assuming the duties of the offices named we did not sacrifice our rights as a private citizen, and it was as a private citizen that we attended the performance referred to. In fact, we own one of the dogs, and it is perhaps needless to add that he came out victorious. We think we know our gait without advice from the Recorder or any other source. As a senator, representing this glorious territory, we put on more dignity than a horse can draw and even stand the governor off. As mayor of this town, we are "boss" and have the right of way over all vehicles on the street and dead head passes to all shows which come along. As postmaster we cock our hat on our ear and step high, and as editor and proprietor of the Kicker we can borrow money at the bank without an indorser. All this is all right and as it should be, but when the fit takes us to throw off these mantles of dignity and become a private citizen for a few hours we propose to follow our inclinations and let the carping public go to grass.

A young gentleman named Dickinson, a relative of Michigan's leading democratic statesman and an attache of McClure's magazine, who has been visiting friends at Clinton, had a dangerous experience at Sand lake a few days ago. While hunting, he essayed to cross a swampy spot along the northeast shore, when he suddenly found himself sinking in the treacherous soil. Efforts to extricate himself only increased his dilemma, and realizing his danger he brought into play a good pair of lungs with which nature had favored him. Mrs. George Wagner heard his cries and, summoning her husband, they proceeded to investigate. When they reached the spot the young man was immured nearly to his armpits. Fortunately there was a board fence near by and with the boards from this the doctor was able to bridge the swampy spot and with considerable hard work effect a rescue. They also saved the gun. Dr. and Mrs. Wagner did all in their power to assist the young man after his release and he was soon enabled to return to his friends. At the present stage of water it behooves all visitors to be very careful how they approach the shores of our small inland lakes.—Adrian Times.

A bunch of celery weighing thirty-five pounds started for Dallas, Texas, last Friday, labeled "J. J. Corbett." It will no doubt prove an appetizing treat for the noted pugilist, but as strength is desirable in Corbett's business, we would suggest that Wilson Bros. send a crate of onions also.

The Atlas moth, a giant night-flying insect, has a wing spread of 14 inches.

No mystery about it. When the Shakers offered some time ago to give away a bottle of their Digestive Cordial to any one who might call at their New York office, there was a great rush and a great many people thought they were crazy. Subsequent events prove it to have been a very clever advertising transaction, for although they gave away thousands of bottles, it was in the end profitable: nearly every one that took a free bottle came back for more and paid for it with pleasure, saying they had derived better results from its use than from any other medicine they had ever used. There is nothing so unfortunately successful in the treatment of stomach troubles as the Shaker Digestive Cordial, and what is better than all, it relieves at once.

CHRONIC MALARIA.

A Very Prevalent Disease Following the Hot Summer of 1895.

The continuance of hot and dry weather is sure to produce the prevalence of chronic malaria. The past summer has been exactly suitable for the production of a great deal of malaria. Even in localities where malaria has been previously unknown many cases of malaria are developed. This form of malaria is distinguished from the old-fashioned fever and ague by the insidiousness of its attack and the difficulty with which it is cured. It does not come on quickly, like chills and fever. The symptoms pester and provoke sometimes for several weeks before the patient is made sick enough to take medicine.

Slight chilly sensations, cold, sweaty spells, frontal headache, biliousness, furred tongue, bad taste in the mouth, sticky mucous in the throat, constipation, languor, etc.

A medical treatise on chronic malaria will be sent free by Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company of Columbus, Ohio. This book is a complete guide to the prevention and cure of malaria in its various forms. Pe-ru-na has long since been recognized as the only infallible cure for the chronic form of malaria. While quinine has become the standard remedy for acute malaria, commonly called fever and ague, many people have found by bitter experience that it will not cure the chronic form. Pe-ru-na cures these cases promptly and permanently.

A BACK BLOW.

The Weapon Small—but None More Certain or Effective.

In these times when backs are lame, when almost every other one we meet has now and then, or all the time, a back that aches or pains—"a weak back," "a bad back," a back that makes their life a misery to bear—and still they go on day by day in pain and suffering. Now 'tis the easiest thing in the world to give this played out back "a blow" that will settle it, and put in its place a new one equal to any. It's just like this: hit at the cause; most backaches come from kidney disorders. Reach the kidneys, start their clogged-up filters in operation; when this is done you can say good-bye to backache.

Here is a case from Battle Creek: Mr. Josiah M. Shoup lives at 51 Broad Street, he was a member of the Battle Creek police force for many years. As a member of the force he served the city well, but the rough weather he was often subjected to laid the foundation of kidney disorder, which has troubled him very much. Here is what he says about it:

"About three years ago, while on the police force, I contracted from exposure a kidney trouble, which has since given me no end of trouble. The pain was right through my kidneys and across the small of my back; if sitting down and I wanted to stand up, I had to arise very slowly and gently to avoid increasing the pain; I had such tired-out feelings all the time, and I was steadily getting worse. About two months ago, hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box. Their action and effect was most complete, they removed the old aching pains for good. I can now get around as quickly as anybody. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly as represented."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

HEADACHE cured in 20 minutes by Dr. Miles' PAIN PILLS. "One cent a dose." At druggists.

The surface of a man's lungs is estimated at 150 feet, ten times more than the entire external surface of the body.

It's a Grand Success.

The fact has been demonstrated by the thousands of testimonials the Mayers Drug Company, of Oakland Md., has received since it has sent its famous Mayers Magnetic Catarrh Cure out to the sufferers of catarrh. No medicine has received such an endorsement from the people in so short a time as it did.

The makers sell the medicine on business principles, and a patient is not required to buy the medicine by the dozen to get a cure. The Mayers' Magnetic Catarrh Cure sells for $1 per bottle, one bottle to last for a three months treatment. 3 bottles is the highest record ever required to complete a cure. General catarrh one bottle is guaranteed. No cure no pay.

This is an unequalled offer and if you are a sufferer from catarrh get a bottle from your druggist, if no benefit derived costs you nothing. A prominent R. R. conductor speaks:

CUMBERLAND, MD., April 29th, '94.
To the Mayers Drug Co.,

Gentlemen:—Yours to hand, in reply will say that I have the highest regard for your Catarrh Remedy, my trouble is in a chronic form and expect to use more than one bottle. I used one bottle which removed the trouble from the head in good shape and am on the second bottle for throat trouble, if I should succeed with the latter as I did in the former, I shall write you again in the near future. Hoping it will do for suffering humanity what it did for me, I remain Yours truly,
G. J. SCHMUTZ.

Mr. Sowle, of Ypsilanti, who has friends in Britton and vicinity, is dying from a stroke of paralysis which almost wholly destroyed the use of one side. This seems extremely unfortunate, as Mr. Sowle is still a young man.

The Classis of Michigan of the Reformed Church, will meet in Britton, Oct. 8th and 9th. Communion service Thursday evening, Oct 8th at 7:30, President of Classis officiating. Dedication of the new church Oct. 9th at 2:00 p. m. Sermon by Rev. Hall Williamson, of Grand Rapids. Let as many attend as can.

Mr. DuBois is buying wheat for the elevator and taking in considerable quantities of oats as well. Everybody knows that Chas. is a competent grain buyer, but what puzzles his friends is to understand how he can run engine to elevate the grain. Our friend is a born genius and can handle the intricate machinery of that mill with the ease and confidence of a skilled mechanic.

A very pleasant ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Easlake last week Tuesday at the home of the bride's parents in Raisinville. It was a marriage of interest, the bride being Miss Ida Taylor, and the groom John Taylor, of Britton. Mr. Taylor is one of our most worthy known young men and the bride have the hearty good wisnes of many friends. They are now well established in housekeeping on the Taylor farm east of town.

DEATH OF JAMES BOYD.

How does an engine and train do the work and awful work to an unfortunate victim as did No. 55 on the Wabash Saturday night. No. 55 is the fast express and makes fast time. It was coming along at 50 miles an hour when the unfortunate man was seen. About three quarters of a mile east of the tracks run over the "long culvert" he had evidently laid down on the track or perhaps to sleep as his head had been removed. When the train approached he was seen in the glare of the headlight to be crawling from the bridge. It was impossible to stop the train and the body was simply mangled and torn beyond recognition. The remains were fairly gathered together and taken to the undertakers. From papers found in the pockets of the clothes worn his identity was established as James Boyd. He had lived some with his sister Mrs. Sowle and worked for McCarbery near Petersburg of late. He owned a farm near Lake but had not been living on it for some time. He leaves four children all of whom are married. It is thought by some that he fell through the bridge and broke a leg, others think that he fell in a drunken stupor and rolled down on the trestle. Whatever this may be it is a sad ending to a life addicted to liquor. A coroner's inquest was at once held and adjourned from day to day. On that day the jury rendered a verdict of accidental death while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, and completely exonerating the railroad employes from all blame.

There was a very large attendance at the funeral service of postmaster Jay A. Santus, held at the home of S. P. Smith on Sunday morning, one of the largest ever held in the village. The Knight Templars and Masonic fraternity, of which he was a member, having charge of the service. Rev. Jamss Wright, of Britton, made a few remarks that were very appropriate and becoming, which met with a hearty approval from all who heard him. Mr. Santus was in his sixty-fourth year at the time of his death, which occurred on Thursday morning at two o'clock. The greater portion of his life has been spent in this village and vicinity. He always took an active part in politics and was a democrat of the old kickory type. He was elected Township clerk several terms, filling the position with honor to himself and credit to the township. He was consulted by nearly every township official for advice, and instructions With two or three exceptions he was better posted with the township business in all of its different official requirements than any person in the township. He was appointed postmaster under president Cleveland's first administration, holding that trust a little over a year, when he resigned, and was again commissioned as postmaster under president Cleveland's second administration, which he held at the time of his death. He was reporter for the Detroit Daily Free Press, Adrian Weekly Press and Tecumseh News, when death called him from our midst. He was a genial, popular man. There were no relatives to follow the remains to their last resting place. He leaves a brother and an aunt whose whereabouts are not known.

To Our Readers.

This is the season when farmers and others desiring to invest in farm lands are planning for the coming year. Attention is called to the great opportunity offered to secure lands at a very low price that will double in value in a short time. The income per acre is about the same as that from high priced land. Oats average 60 to 80 bushels per acre, abundant yield of hay and other grains, vegetables, etc. Climate, water and railroad facilities are good. Those wanting unimproved land can find no more favorable location. Special inducements are offered during the next thirty days. Railroad fare paid if you buy. For further particulars write The C. S. Graves Land Co., 56 5th Ave., Chicago; who have an advertisement in this paper. 1w

COIN'S FINANCIAL SCHOOL.

This little book is one of the most extensive treatises on the money question that has ever been written. It shows up the evil effects of our present monetary system in a most emphatic manner. Every voter in Lenawee county, regardless of party affiliations, should read it. The Chicago Times says: "A book that will create a profound impression throughout the United States." The New York Recorder says: "It mercilessly scourges the money changers in the Temple of the Republic." The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "This book tells its readers more about gold, silver and currency, generally, than any other publication we know of, and in a way that every man can fully comprehend." A supply is kept on hand at the HERALD office. Single copies 25 cents. Every new advance paying subscriber to the HERALD will receive a copy free. Now is your time to get good reading cheap. Dr. Brown's Advice About Catarrh.

Severe colds in the head followed by attacks of catarrh are apt to be common during the early fall months of the year. Constant changes in atmosphere brisk winds and wet feet are followed by symptoms that indicate a prevalence of this disease. Great care should be taken; often these attacks result in pneumonia. I have always felt that an "ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" in medicine and that it was wise to heed these warnings. Don't take cold, but if you do, on the first symptoms, obtain from your nearest druggist a jar of Pretzinger's Catarrh Balm and apply it freely to the nostrils several times each day, especially before retiring at night. This invaluable preparation I have prescribed for a number of years and have invariably found it most efficacious. The camphors which it carries in large quantities are specially healing for the inflamed and diseased organs of the head. In my general practice I have never known a case of catarrh, no matter of how long standing, that this preparation would not cure.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Diamondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last for hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Didcovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Orr & Temple's Drug Store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. 1

St. Peter's Church Anniversary.

The Rector of St. Peter's is arranging for special services to be held on Thursday, Oct. 10th, to commemorate the opening of the church, which was first used for public worship and administration of the sacrament sixty years ago, the second day of August. Owing to the warm weather of that month, the observance of the anniversary was set for a later date, the present month, that being the 62nd. anniversary of the laying of the corner store. The services will be, Holy communion at 10:30 a. m., and evening at 7:00 p. m., to which the public are cordially invited. The preacher for the two services will be Rev. Dr. McCarroll, of Grace church, Detroit. From 4:30 to 7:30 o'clock a reception for the congregation will be held in a place yet to be chosen, for which special invitations will be extended to those who were personally acquainted with the Rev. W. N. Lyster, the priest who was instrumental in having the church erected.

Though a very modest building in present day estimation, St. Peter's church was considered sixty years ago a good and costly church. It is described in the local publication, The Tecumseh Democrat, under date of Aug. 1st. 1835, as "confessedly without a rival in the territory of Michigan, a noble monument of enterprise and zeal of western Episcopalians."

St. Peter's congregation does well to celebrate this event, seeing it has in the best of repair, the oldest Episcopal church in present use in the State of Michigan. Only two others were built before it, both of which have given place to new edifices, but St. Peter's stands good for many years to come. The present bell was placed in the church in 1880, to take the place of the original bell, which being cracked was unfit for use. The following lines were composed by priest W. N. Lyster, on hearing the first tones of the original bell, used for the first time on Sunday, Sept 25th, 1837:

A voice rides forth on the breeze today,
O'er village and forest, around and away;
And the busy farm and the prairie lone
Are singing alike with its full, clear tone.
'Tis a voice through this region unheard before,
Yet recalling blest scenes and seasons of yore.

And well, fair town, may thy startled ear
Incline with delight, yet with awe, to hear;
For the lofty pealings around thee borne
Are calls from that High One who blessed this morn.
Lose not, Tecumseh, one cadence sweet—
It is Wisdom's voice as she cries in the street.

Hear it, ye woods! 'tis the echo—the child
Of His that once rang through Judea's wild—
Prepare—prepare ye the way of the Lord,
Make straight the paths for His glorious word.
O welcome the strains to your dwellings rude,
Let it gladden each depth of your solitude.

Hark as it rises—that joyful swell!
Up! up and respond to its promptings well!
'Tis a summons to prayer—'tis the Sabbath bell,
The noblest music that earth has given
To clothe the most tender entreaties of Heaven.

Friends of the church, we would charge you ply
Long and Oh! frequent those calls from on high.
Defile not their source! let it ever be
A herald sublime of ETERNITY.

Dare not to lower that hallowed chime
To mark the lapses of changeful time;
Nor for earthly meetings profane one tone
Which should speak of Heaven and Heaven alone.

HAPPILY WEDDED.

The Jackson Citizen of Wednesday contains the following marriage notice. The groom has hosts of old friends in Raisin and Tecumseh, where he spent his boyhood days, who will unite in extending their congratulations:

COMFORT—CASE—At the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Josiah S. Case, 112 W. Morrell street, Wednesday, Oct. 2, at 10 o'clock, Mr. N. Lindley Comfort and Miss Marian B. Case.

The wedding was a quiet one, only relatives and intimate friends being present. The house was beautifully trimmed with flowers and plants. The bride was attended by Miss Florence Carr. The bride was attired in a handsome gown of pink silk covered with white organdie and carried a large bouquet of bridal roses. Miss Carr wore a pretty dress of white. The presents were handsome and valuable. An elegant wedding breakfast was served.

Among those present from out of the city were A. A. Hawkins and Miss Clara Case, of Detroit, and Mrs. Watkins, of Brooklyn.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Comfort, and is a young man of sterling qualities. The bride has many friends in this city, and she will be missed by Jackson society.

Mr. and Mrs. Comfort left on the 11:35 train for Kansas City, their future home.

His Reference to Neil Dow and Wendell Philips Evoke Wild Cheers.

I believed, eight years ago, the Democratic party to be incapable of administering this government, even in conditions of prosperity and utter quiet, and as to that my judgment has undergone no change. . . . I believed the Republican party to be the brainiest thing in politics thus far, best trained to rule, and in its ranks, sentimentally, an enemy of the saloon, but swamped past remedy by bossism. Its bloody-shirt idiocracy in Ohio, its progressive degeneracy in Pennsylvania, its moral insolvency in Maine, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island, its moral paresis in New York, its inexpressible infamy in Iowa, its concentric conspiracies and conscience-crucifying candidature throughout the land, mark the regal ruler of the sixties, the flabby, impudent decadent of the centuries. You have it as its best in this state. The Republican party in Massachusetts, in its relation to the national concern, is an island of hopeful ill-health in an ocean of pus. I had no choice but to leave it. I have to be a party Prohibitionist, or be false to myself.

A man ought to be true to his country. This is a republic, a government of the people, for the people, by the people. Once a year the voter stands within the throne-room of the nation's power, and with unbated breath and unbent knee may speak his mind. I hold my citizenship a thing so sacred and so royal, that every time the election day comes around. I say to myself, my country wants to know my mind today, and like an honest, loyal man, I shall give her the best that I have. To do less would be incipient treason, and what I say to her I will stand to; even in the shock and smoke, blood and cruelty of war, or that worse thing, jeers—contumely of majorities. I believed the tariff, the financial reforms, the recuring panics to be trifles light as air compared to the saloon in labor, commerce, politics and law; and as to the Monroe doctrine about which we hear so much now, upheld by Government which derives one-third of its revenue from the ruin of its own citizens and the degradation of its own honor, I am at a loss whether to consider it a bowling farce or paltry brag. I have to be a party prohibitionist, or be false to my country.

A man ought to be true to his church. Mine says officially that the liquor traffic can never be licensed without sin in which case, unless logic be a Jack o'Lantern, it is a sin for a man at a general election to be a Methodist and a Republican. I have to be a party Prohibitionist, or be false to my church.

A man ought to be true to his party, and that is why we are here, and we have come to stay. To the charge of being a feeble folk and unprolific, we must needs plead guilty. But there is good blood in our veins. Twenty-five years ago a white-plumed, clean-handed, knightly man, returned covered with glory from the great crusade—not for the holy sepulcher of the Savior of men, but a crusade for the holy cabin of the poorest man himself—took up our flag, and it has never touched the ground, and, by the grace of God, it never will. Stand up you Prohibitionists; salute the name and the fame and the white soul of the flower of Massachusetts chivalry, the immortal Wendell Phillips!

He has gone away, and Gough and Hale and Finch and Fisk and Smith and Black and Gambrell and Haddock and Mary Lathrap—and "the other Mary"—have followed on. We can not see where, in the eternal depths of stars, our constellation shines, but we can hear Mead shouting at the front, the swish of Hopkin's steel, the rhythmatic swing of St. John's battle-ax, Leonard's Maxim-gun sweeping the century, with Small and Bennett raking the right and left, Boole rushing like a mighty whirlwind on the foe, Bain's silver, trumpet voice like the voice of an angel of victory everywhere along the line of battle; Fitzgerald leading the Epworth Leagues; the gallant young chairman of this meeting, John Willis Baer, calling on the young people's societies of Christian Endeavor; Mary Hunt deploying the children of 43 states along the hilltops of the future, 500,000 women praying; our Prohibition press like the sound of a mighty gong 'in the tops of the mulberry trees;' Dickey in the midst crying 'Steady, steady;' Frances Willard coming home to stay, and yonder in snowy glory haloed, sits the King Arthur of the new chivalry at his 'table round,' with heaven's far, sweet bells all ringing in his ears, salutes eternity and glorifies humanity by remaining of it yet awhile. I expect to see unveiled on Boston Common a heroic statue, in everlasting granite, of Neal Dow, the party Prohibitionist; and when he goes away there will remain 270,000 voters, standing like Lebanon cedars in the rift of coming revolution, biding their time. Break us, will you, you dirty-handed, dirty-hearted, empty-headed politicians? Well, break and be damned in the hell of honest history. The breaking boughs the falling trunks, the snapping roots will testify the truth, even in death; and church and country, in the generations that are coming on, will delight to speak in honor of the 'whip' of God's unorganized democracy in these days—the Prohibition Party.

OBITUARY.

JOHN HERBERT COREY.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Corey was called to the bedside of her son, Bert, at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., where he was taken to make a last stand against that fatal malady consumption. On Saturday last the news of his death reached here and the remains were brought Tuesday accompanied by Mrs. Corey and the nurse, Miss Roberts. The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the home, Rev. Blachford officiating, and were largely attended.

John Herbert Corey was born at Quincy Mine, Hancock, Mich., twenty-four years ago. After his father's death, he accompanied his mother to Tecumseh. Since that time, his career as a student and successful young business man has been well known to people here. After finishing school at Providence, he accepted a position with The Woonsocket Rubber Co. at Buffalo. In proof of the confidence placed in his integrity and ability, he was placed in charge of their large exhibit at the World's Fair and the Midwinter Exposition at San Francisco. At these places he contracted the disease which has no cure. It is useless to recount the particulars of the struggle which Bert, with hopeful courage and every means which friends could devise, made against the inevitable. The deceased was a young man of exceptional business qualifications and was very popular among those who personally knew him. His death is a grevious blow to his mother and other relatives, who have the sincere sympathy of the entire community in their affliction.

MRS. EDNA CHARITY ATEN.

On Monday morning, Sept. 16, Mrs. Edna Charity Aten left this life at the early age of 26 years. The deceased had been a sufferer from that terrible disease, consumption, for over three years, having been confined to her bed the last year, and during all that time bore her misfortune with christian fortitude. She was an attendant of the Presbyterian church and demonstrated her trust in the christian promise by receiving the rites of baptism before it was too late. The mother leaves two little ones who will never more know a mother's care and guidance. During life she was a patient, loving wife and mother. In death, her reward is certain and complete.

Cards of Thanks.

We wish to extend sincere thanks to the neighbors and friends who gave their kind assistance during our recent sad affliction. F. V. ATEN AND FAMILY.

To the kind friends who so thoughtfully helped us during our recent bereavement, we tender our sincerest thanks.

J. H. PAYNE AND FAMILY.

COIN'S FINANCIAL SCHOOL.

This little book is one of the most extensive treatises on the money question that has ever been written. It shows up the evil effects of our present monetary system in a most emphatic manner. Every voter in Lenawee county, regardless of party affiliations, should read it. The Chicago Times says: "A book that will create a profound impression throughout the United States." The New York Recorder says: "It mercilessly scourges the money changers in the Temple of the Republic." The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "This book tells its readers more about gold, silver and currency, generally, than any other publication we know of, and in a way that every man can fully comprehend." A supply is kept on hand at the HERALD office. Single copies 25 cents. Every new advance paying subscriber to the HERALD will receive a copy free. Now is your time to get good reading cheap. Pass in your orders.

It is thought probable that Congressman Black, of the Augusta, Ga., district, may lose his seat throgh having consented to run the race over with Tom Watson. The A. P. A.'s are said to be after him.

The World's Fair Tests showed no baking powder so pure or so great in leavening power as the Royal.

AN OCTOBER OFFER.

During the present month only, Oct., 1895, we will give new subscribers to the HERALD a three months' paid subscription for twenty five cents. In addition we will give as a premium a copy of Coin's Financial school, which sells for the same sum. Pass in your quarters.

Mrs. Murray's execution is rapid, and yet each tone is brought out with remarkable clearness and beauty. Harmonics arpeggios and difficult passages impossible upon the piano are woven about sweet melodies like a musical embroidery.—Denver, Col.

Under the masterful touch of Mrs. Murray the harp became powerful and soothing beyond expression. Her technique is as wonderful and brilliant as her artistic appreciation is deep and true. As a harpist it must be conceded that she has no equal in this country.—Tribune Duluth Minn.

A large concourse of friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John VanVleet of Ridgeway, on Tuesday, Oct. first, the occasion being the ninth annual reunion of the Peebles' family, Mrs. VanVleet being a cousin of the family. The day was all that could have been desired, and a happy time was enjoyed by all. A sumptuous dinner was served at noon, such as Mrs. VanVleet knows so well how to provide, to which all did justice. A program of music, songs and recitations, followed by election of officers for the ensuing year, Mr. VanVleet being elected President, and all went home feeling that the time had been all too short, and the occasion one to be long remembered.

To Our Readers.

This is the season when farmers and others desiring to invest in farm lands are planning for the coming year. Attention is called to the great opportunity offered to secure lands at a very low price that will double in value in a short time. The income per acre is about the same as that from high priced land. Oats average 60 to 80 bushels per acre, abundant yield of hay and other grains, vegetables, etc. Climate, water and railroad facilities are good. Those wanting unimproved land can find no more favorable location. Special inducements are offered during the next thirty days. Railroad fare paid if you buy. For further particulars write The C. S. Graves Land Co., 56 5th Ave., Chicago; who have an advertisement in this paper. 1w

Thirty-nine Knights of Adrian Commandery and fifty-four fraters of the Tecumseh Blue Lodge went to Ridgeway last Sunday and escorted the remains of Postmaster Jay A. Attorney Sumner Collins states his intention of soon removing from Chicago to Tecumseh, Mich. Mr. Collins resigns a paying practice, but the little Michigan city was the home of his childhood and he feels that the present financial loss will be more than compensated for by the pleasure of living among old friends and relatives and that his business there will soon equal that which he has given up in Chicago. —The Legal Adviser, Chicago, Sept. 18.

What is generally conceded in Philadelphia to be one of the most desirable building sites in the city has just been purchased by the Ladies' Home Journal. The property is located at Sixth and Walnut streets, which means that it fronts on two of the most beautiful squares in Philadelphia, the famous Independence Square on the east and Washington Square on the south. The land acquired includes five properties. On May 1st, next, the houses thereon will be torn down to make room for a building costing $250,000, to be solely owned and exclusively occupied by the Journal. The building will require two years in its construction.

We have received a copy of a unique publication called H. M. Greene & Co's "History of Grain and the Grain Trade of the World." It is printed in colors and is illustrated with a picture some 6,000 years old, from the tombs of Thebes, representing the ancient Egyptians elevating their wheat into graneries. There is also a threshing song in hieroglyphics, with the translation of each character. The book covers the prehistoric chapters of the subject. Egyptian, Caldean, Assyrian, Babylonian, Persian, Indian, Chinese, Phoenician and Carthagenian historians are quoted. There is a very rare description of land caravans and sea caravans. The history of wheat in Greece, Rome, Antioch, and among the Scythians, Celts, Gaths, Scots, Brittons, Irish, Africans, Mound Builders, Peruvians and American Indians, finishes the first part, or ancient history of grain. The part called Modern History deals with Venice, carrying of wheat to the New World, the Philippines, the Dutch, Antwerp, and the great modern European and American cities. There is an index covering all the matters combined in the book. It is the publishers' desire to present a copy of the work to every miller, grain dealer and interested party in the United States, and all such wishing a free copy should address H. M. Greene & Co., Rialto Building, Chicago, Ill.

—A FEW THINGS WORTH REMEMBERING.—

Remember that my goods are all new. There is no old nor shelf-worn goods to choose from, as every yard was bought new at the time of opening up business. Remember that I import them direct from the mills, saving wholesale profits and expenses and giving the customers the benefit. Remember they are all bought for cash, thereby saving large discounts, and that, while the stock is not large, it is kept fresh and new by continual renewals. Remember that those who do not care to buy from stock can choose from samples, of which I have a most complete selection of nearly 2,000 patterns from four of the leading woolen manufacturers. Remember that my work stands second to none in every respect. It sells on its merits alone. Valueing public opinion, I invite their inspection and patronage.

DISASTROUS TO SHIPPING.

Many Vessels Suffer During the Lake Storms.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Oct. 1.—The terrific northwest gale which has raged here for two days doing great damage to shipping continues. Reports of vessels ashore and stranded owing to the steady gale driving the water southeastward, and intelligence that all kinds of wreckage is coming ashore north of here are heard from various points. It is reported that two large steamers are ashore at Keweenaw point. The captain of the Schuylkill, which arrived from Duluth Monday morning, says he could not make out who they were, but thought they were the Matos and Masaba, belonging to the Minnesota company and valued at $200,000 each. The steamers cleared from Two Harbors Sunday for Cleveland loaded with iron ore. The point where they are aground is said to the most dangerous of any on the whole chain of lakes.
From Whitefish Point comes the report that a schooner is flying signals of distress. Two tugs have gone to her rescue. At Shelldrake the barges Carney and Lillie May, of the Nellie Torrent tow, are ashore and total losses. Twenty boats are anchored between here and Iroquois Point, and above the encampment several large steamers are awaiting an abatement of the gale.
Near Manistique wreckage has been coming ashore since Friday. About 10 miles east were found pieces of a table and bed, and part of the cabin from a schooner. The wood was painted white. This is probably what is believed to be the pilot house of a steamer as originally reported. Although nothing could be found with a name upon it, it is now believed that the wreckage is from the schooner which went to pieces.

CREW OF THE ELMA RESCUED.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Oct. 2.—The crew of the schooner Elma, except one man who was washed away by the sea before the vessel was abandoned, was found by lighthouse keepers in a ledge of the Pictured Rocks, 75 feet above the water, early Tuesday morning.
The steamer Birckland had the Elma, Jones and Commodore in tow when the northwest gale of Saturday came on. The tow broke up and the boats became widely separated, the Commodore running to the Soo, the Jones coming to an anchor off Whitefish and the Elma being abandoned off Pictured Rocks. After the crew of the Elma had taken to the yawlboat they seemed to face certain destruction, being dashed against the rocks, but they succeeded in making a landing on the ledge and then crawled far out of the reach of the seas. They suffered greatly from hunger and cold, and were half dead when found by the lighthouse keepers.

STATE TAX.

A Big Increase in the Levy Over Former Years.

LANSING, Oct. 1.—Auditor General Turner has apportioned the state tax for 1895 among the several counties of the state. The total tax apportioned is $3,013,919.53, as against $1,689,135.89 in 1894 and $1,931,214.69 in 1893. This year's rate is 2.23 mills on the dollar, that of 1894 being 1.4 mills and 1893 1.7. The increase is accounted for by the fact that the last legislature made up deficiencies in the appropriations of its predecessors, aggregating $700,000. Taxes apportioned to counties in western Michigan are:
Berrien, $48,418.84; Charlevoix, $9,642.88; Grand Traverse, $12,356.59; Ionia, $9,[illegible]8.60; Kent, $134,197.72; Manistee, $24,545.40; Muskegon, $35,148.23; Montcalm, $27,252.58; Newaygo, $12,423.01; Oceana, $12,318.81; Ottawa, $40,392.50; St. Joseph, $52,741.95; Van Buren, $40,061.51.

ST. JOSEPH, Sept. 30.—Tons of sand drifted on the Chicago & West Michigan tracks here Sunday morning, and when the north-bound freight came along it stalled. It took gangs of shovelers several hours to clear the track. The engine was damaged, and the excursion train bound to Laporte was delayed.

BAD FOR DEPOSITORS.

Supreme Court Decision Affecting a Defunct Kalamazoo Bank.

LANSING, Sept. 28.—The supreme court filed an opinion of the court below in the case of the First National Bank of Kalamazoo vs. George W. Stone, receiver of the Central Michigan savings bank, in which an affirmative judgment was rendered to the effect that certain papers held by the plaintiffs indorsed by Cashier Bradley and of the defunct bank were rediscount paper and that the holders could share in the assets of the bank. The amount of this paper held by various parties is about $150,000, and the opinion will affect the depositors to that extent and destroy all hope of an immediate further dividend. The bank has already paid 50 per cent., and if the judgment had been reversed would have paid 15 per cent. more.

TAKE STEPS

In time, if you are a sufferer from that scourge of humanity known as consumption, and you can be cured. There is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its early stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent. are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.
Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were otherwise strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.
The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps. You can then write to those who have been cured and profit by their experience.

Lessons of the Quarter.

The last quarter of the year has come. Attention for three months will be given to studies from the history of the early Christian church as found in the book of Acts. This is a most favorable time in which to give the whole book a thorough study. It will broaden one's thought of the scope of the church, quicken devotion by showing examples of unparalleled devotion and awaken new interest in the extension of Christ's kingdom.

Review.

It is well to note that the lessons of the first quarter presented "Christ In All," by a study of the utensils and services of the tabernacle and temple.

The second quarter was devoted to "Man Sinning and Repenting," founded on the book of Job.

The third was occupied with "Greater Works Than These Shall Ye Do," calling attention to the miracles of healing performed by Jesus and directing attention to the need of spiritual renovation of man's nature by the power of the Holy Spirit.

All this leads up to the study of the present quarter devoted to the trials and triumphs of the apostolic church.

Points to Consider.

A good way to study the topic for this week is to:

First.—Read carefully the Bible lesson, with pencil in hand, noting on paper the various items treated.

Second.—Read some good commentary on the passages, adding any new information to the notes already made.

Third.—Read some good "Life of Christ," like Geikie's or Farrar's or Andrews', still noting new items.

Fourth.—Carefully read all the notes taken, make a plan of the progress of events, and sum up the teaching presented and the most prominent Spiritual truth unfolded.

Items For Study.

Among other things in "the forty days," the following are worthy of noting:

First.—Christ living, directing the energies of his people and giving promises.

Second.—Christ ascending to the place of power, and the prophecy of his visible return.

Third.—The united disciples awaiting the gift of power, filling the office of the apostate witness.

Fourth.—The ten appearances of Jesus during this period, when, to whom, where and with what results.

Bible Study.

One might naturally think that careful study of the Bible for a series of years would render one so familiar with it that there would be small possibility for the element of freshness and zest which comes from new discoveries to continue, yet, strange as it may appear, the fact remains that the more study that is given to it the more does it expand and open into new realms of truth before unpenetrated. Treasures before hidden are discovered and power for still wider explorations is developed. Pickax and spade are unearthing monuments, tablets, utensils and a thousand things buried for centuries which give wondrous light on the Bible story. Study is stimulated in other lines, and literature furnishes treasures as valuable to the Christian inquirer as yields of mummy pits are to archæologists. You may exhaust the stores of science and weary of the task, but the riches of the Bible are exhaustless, and searching only gives new strength and stimulates to fresh exertion.

Spiritual Work In the League.

No amount of activity in any or all other departments will compensate for lack of zeal in this one. The most important thing about any chapter is the condition of its devotional work. This cannot be gauged by the amount of noise made in singing, the number of prayers and testimonies offered in a given time, the attendance at devotional service or any other outward indication. It is known, however, as clearly as if indicated by these means. If true spiritual power possesses the membership, the singing will be joyous and full voiced, prayers and testimonies will be prompt and plenty, people will be attracted, but deeper and better results will also appear. Earnest love to each other and to God will appear in an undefinable unction of utterance and kindness of manner. Souls will be drawn to Christ. Seek spiritual life and power.

Benefits of the Convention.

Conventions may have collations, but they are not intended to be picnics merely. Their social value may be great, but our young people bring home from them other things of greater value. Those who use conventions rightly get:

First.—Increased knowledge of the Bible, deeper desire to know its truths, stronger belief in its teachings.

Second.—Clearer understanding of Christianity, purer love of God and his service, more earnest consecration to his work.

Third.—Better methods of working, wider acquaintance with workers, greater happiness in serving.

Fourth.—Fuller knowledge of the world's needs, completer reliance on Christ's power, more hopeful views of the future.

Have Faith In Truth.

Have faith in truth,
And in the True One trust.
Though bright with fancy's brightest hues,
Abhor the lie thou must.

God's thoughts, not man's,
Be these thy heritage.
They, like himself, are ever young,
Untouched by time or age.

With God alone
Is truth and joy and light.
Walk thou with him in peace and love;
Hold fast the good and right.

SWINGING AROUND THE CIRCLE.

There's many things to interest one in Fort Wayne, especially one who visited it on horseback fifty years ago. It has also some historic interest in the Indian wars that the policy of the British thrust upon us in the wars of 1812-14, and Mad Anthony Wayne gave name to the Fort and to the place.

It has fine churches and, like Tecumseh, is distinguished for a moral, church going people. I often fall into the courts now in session, ride around the electric belt line of railroad, walked the whole length of Berry street, one of the most aristocratic residence streets of the city, a little over a mile to where it strikes the Maumee river and so home again, prefering to walk in the beautiful sunset hour to riding on the electric cars passing in W. Main street, next parallel, every fifteen minutes.

It was fearfully hot all the week until last Monday morning, when the cold wave so long prophesied and promised finally struck us, lowering the temperature about 50° degrees. It was so hot in church Sunday night that I could not stand it, and left before sermon, came to my room where the thermometer stood at even 100° and went to bed, but had to put on my thickest clothes and my overcoat as well, the next morning.

I leave to-morrow by the Wabash R. R. for Toledo, where I will finish this letter.

I called on Wm. D. Page, publisher of the Ft. Wayne News, who as one of the firm of Chapin & Page succeeded P. R. Adams & Son, in the publication of the Tecumseh Record. He is progressing finely, owns and publishes a live successful paper in Ft. Wayne.

TOLEDO, Sept. 26th, 1895.

Of course I can tell you nothing new about Toledo, you have been there so often yourself. We left Ft. Wayne at 1:15 p. m. and came here in just three hours, on time.

The country is fearfully parched with drought all the way. We passed some regular old fashioned log houses just before we came to Cecil which made it look like old times at Tecumseh.

Defiance was the only place of any note when we crossed the raging Maumee, tame enough just now, and afterwards Napoleon, which I visited by mistake taking the wrong train for Tecumseh about forty years ago. Saw some good farms out of Ft. Wayne, and also near Defiance, but the most of the land was a light sandy soil, and parched up with the long summer's drought.

OUR WHEELMEN ABROAD.

Beautiful Lake Geneva and Down the Valley of the Rhone.

MR. EDITOR:—We found as much that was truly Swiss in our ride to Berne as in all the rest of our wanderings. There are numberless taverns along the roadside with their queer signs which seem to dedicate them to the Lion, to the Bear, the Sword or Crown. Beneath the far projecting roof is a wooden image of a Golden Lion or Brown Bear or some hideous Dragon which asserts the right to the name adopted. Every one seems to have his place of business and residence united, and we find the cobbler, the tinner and various tradesmen all working in their own cottages. Then there are the makers of a thousand toys and nicknacks of pine wood, working industriously at home. They have the blocks of wood piled up artistically in front of the house beneath the sunbonnet roof and at the door is nailed a humble sign telling their vocation.

Riding amid mountains is delightful. When we are weary, there is always a clean, grassy plot where we lie down by a stream and allow the babbling brook to talk us to sleep. There is nothing so conducive to slumber as a long bicycle ride and one of these lulling, whispering streamlets. Then the abundance of cherries and harvest apples is not unpleasant. We tried to keep a railroad in sight during this ride but it was a veritable will-o-the-wisp and at times would dodge straight into the mountain and reappear again, teasingly, after we had a long ride around. I nearly forgot the interesting feature in architecture which gives a Swiss house 60 windows in the front. The gable end is the front and when the roof has made its majestic sweep to either side and sits brooding over 60 windows, there is a decidedly startling effect. The Swiss like effects, such as a brown or yellow field of grain stretched upon a green mountain side where it looks like a huge, tawny lion's skin. But you have been waiting for me to reach Berne. We reached that city just as the Alpine glow was beautifying all the glorious mountain scenery. Berne, city of many fountains; built on a sandstone peninsula formed by the Aar; its streets flanked by arcades or covered ways for foot passengers; city where is the grotesque old clock with the crowing cock and procession of bears. The bear is the city's emblem and a bear's den is maintained at the city's expense. The old bridge across the Aar affords a fine view of old and new municipal buildings. But I can't make you see those queer old structures so I shall hurry you along to the old city of Freiburg, which we reached before noon the following day. We saw it first from a suspension bridge 200 feet above a large part of the city. Down far below, the tile roofs and street with moving streams of people appeared strange enough. At the end of the bridge was a part of the town on the bridge level. Altogether, the oddest town we have seen. An old lime tree there, has a pleasing legend attached that it was originally a twig borne to the city by a lad to herald the victory of Morat.

After leaving the ancient walls and passing near an old, round watch tower, we rode eagerly under the inspiring thought of soon seeing Lake Geneva. The approach is a superb mountain district where stupendous heights, abrupt precipices and beetling cliffs, gave and took our breath in alternating awe, admiration or horror. At one time we rode into a deep valley filled with a dread inspiring mist, soon we were faced by an almost perpendicular immensity of rock. I knew then that Dante did not imagine the depths of hell but he had seen them in mountain fastnesses. The mist rolled away and mats of wheat and vegetable fields lay upon the mountain side. Ahead was a bare, snow-clad mountain, and as we rounded a cliff, Lake Geneva lay before us far below. That first sight stopped the beating of my heart. The sudden burst of transcendent beauty is marvellous. The blue of the lake sheds a blue haze over the mountains of the opposite side. Green hills rolled away from our place of view down to the water's edge. Vevey and other small cities lay white and glistening at the lake side. The blue of Lake Leman is a River of Paradise blue. We coasted rapidly down into the very bosom of this loveliness. Zigzag went the road and now we turned our eyes to our right, now left upon the majestic charms of the lake. At last we were by its side and it was lovely as before, with the added grace of lake birds, swans, gulls and sea swallows. What names this lake conjures with its beauty. Rousseau, Voltaire, Byron, Dumas and Shelley have all woven a poetic woof and painted its deep blue enchantments there. So many jagged, snowy peaks rise about it. The fierce Dent an Midi, the sacharrine Sugar Loaf, the rocks of Meillerie and the Pleiades all win admiration. We rode along the lake shore and passed the hotels with their Elysium modeled gardens and we saw the dingy old Castle of Chillon on its isolated rock and tried to fancy Bonivard peering from his dungeon. Then up the Rhone valley where we passed the night at St. Maurice, a little, old town with a big, old abbey, oldest in Switzerland. Its old-time hospitality is no more; they would'nt let us stay all night. There is a fairy grotto near. The owner gets two francs for exhibiting the fairies and a cascade.

It was cold, bitterly cold, when we started next morning. Not even enthusiasm could warm us when we saw through a lateral valley the snowy-domed Mt. Blanc. The spray of a cascade which we passed only made us more chilly. The Rhone valley is low and marshy but with a gigantic range of mountains on both sides. A turn in the valley runs east and west, thereafter we were warm enough. The vegetation began to be rankly luxuriant. Apples, plums, apricots, peaches and all ripe and in easy reach as we ride by, is my remembrance and dream of that ride. Everyone carries a basket balanced upon the head and the women all knit industriously as they walk alo laden baskets.

The lower slopes of the gre lel mountain ranges have vineyards and vegetable plots, but high above all is bare rocks, snow and solitude. Again and again the valley seems blocked by a Cyclopean rock surmounted by a castle and wall. Sometimes there is a break in the continuous wall where a turbid stream rushes through a gorge to join the Rhone.

The outer tube on the rear wheel of my bicycle bursts regularly once a day, I now sit down resignedly to wind one more peice of leather or old tire about it. The chances of a puncture are small because there is a double layer of wrapping at nearly every point in the circumference. The old ship is getting unseaworthy but we shall not abandon her while patches will keep her up. We had just finished one of these reparations, when a crowd of young men with alpenstocks appeared, and we recognized them as the old crowd on the "Veendam." Truly, the world is not very large. We exchanged greetings and they asked in astonishment if we really were going up the pass among the glaciers with those bicycles. We answered by bidding them goodbye and wheeling on toward Brieg, where the great pass begins to ascend. Before reaching Brieg we made a purchase of a quart of lucious mountain strawberries for about two cents. More about them later; at present, remember that we put them carefully in my case. Upon our arrival at Brieg, we were surrounded and harrassed by a crowd of hotel drummers, who assured us that at that hour, 6 p.m., it was impossible and absurd to start over the Simplon. We, half in wrath because of their importunities, and half in a spirit of adventure, pushed the too eager mob aside, bought a loaf of bread and started up the pass, walking and pushing our wheels.

COIN'S FINANCIAL SCHOOL.

This little book is one of the most extensive treatises on the money question that has ever been written. It shows up the evil effects of our present monetary system in a most emphatic manner. Every voter in Lenawee county, regardless of party affiliations, should read it. The Chicago Times says: "A book that will create a profound impression throughout the United States." The New York Recorder says: "It mercilessly scourges the money changers in the Temple of the Republic." The Chicago Inter-Ocean says: "This book tells its readers more about gold, silver and currency, generally, than any other publication we know of, and in a way that every man can fully comprehend." A supply is kept on hand at the HERALD office. Single copies 25 cents. Every new advance paying subscriber to the HERALD will receive a copy free. Now is your time to get good reading cheap. THE HARVEST FESTIVAL.

A Very Successful Entertainment Given by the Baptist Church.

It was slightly cold and somewhat rainy last Tuesday for an ideal harvest festival occasion, but the Baptists are not afraid of a little water or weather. The festival came off just the same and its success was ample reward for the time and labor spent. This society has an excellent reputation for entertaining a crowd, either in the way of substantials for the appetite, or in line of a program to amuse the higher senses. The festival was a grand combination. If you were hungry, the choicest viands tempted you to the tables. If you wished diversion, a party pantomime was being played before your eyes. If you were interested in agriculture, a complete exhibit of the products of the farmer's art was displayed for your admiration and study. If you happened to be of the gentler sex, a booth laden with fancy work and feather-few panders to your delicate taste. No one could get away with any money in their pocket.

The display of vegetables, brought out by the prizes offered by our business men, was certainly very fine and would have done credit to any county fair. They also demonstrated that, in spite of Democratic times and protracted drowth the farmers are still on top.

The Stimpson Scale Co. had a sample of that improved No. 2 computing scale among the fancy work and onions, which was a wonder of workmanship and inventive genius. We should stop a moment, as, filled with Baptist supper, we rush madly into the giddy panorama of pillow shams and sweet nose corn, to feel proud that in Tecumseh is manufactured the finest article of its kind in the world—the Stimpson Computing Scale.

Many housewives, of a more practical turn, examined the booth of D. C. Andrews & Co., where LaBesta was quartered and took a package home to try it on their own children.

The vegetables on exhibit were auctioned off for the society, the proceeds amounting to about $30.00.

The ladies booth was well patronized, netting in the neighborhood of $25.00.

D. C. Andrews & Co., presented the society with 100 packages of LaBesta. We have not learned whether this will be used on the church or sold for the treasury.

Over five hundred people participated in the festivities of the harvest and the society realized $120.00 from their entertainment. We await with impatience the return of another harvest.

GUMBO'S GRAB BAG.

BICYCLE SONG.

Oh Bessie has bought her a bonnet of red,
And started afoot for the ball;
She never was minding a word that I said,
Or looking about for my call.
Quit mourning, quit mourning, good Mother, I say;
She maybe will linger to talk on the way:
I'll follow the truant as well as I may,
And catch her, whatever befall.

Oh Bessie has bought her a bonnet of blue,
And started to ride to the ball;
She's taken the speediest horse that she knew,
The swiftest that stood in the stall.
Quit mourning, good Mother, it might have been worse;
There's many a mount that is better than hers;
I'll follow her closely with saddle and purse,
And catch her, whatever befall.

Oh Bessie has bought her a coat and a cap,
And started to wheel to the ball;
With only a bit of a skirt for a lap,
And bloomers distressingly small!
Keep mourning, good Mother: your sobbings repeat;
For whether her going be tardy or fleet,
I never should know her, if her I should meet:
We're lucky to catch her at all!

—Will Carleton.

Detroit paper contains the following: The imprisonment of a preacher for kissing another man's wife, in Calhoun county, shows the degeneracy of the age since the days when Hon. A. L. Millard, of Adrian, was a young man. Mr. Millard, is an astute lawyer and a strict Presbyterian. Judge Watts one day dismissed an action for slander in which no injury to complainant was alleged in the declaration, charging slander in that defendant had reported seeing complainent, a school teacher, clandestinely, kissing one of the big girls. Said the judge: "I see no violation of law in kissing a girl. Brother Millard, you are an older member of the bar than I. Is there any law making it a crime to kiss a girl?" With a recollection of his youthful days, the old Presbyterian coughed dryly and responded: "If there is, it must be very modern—ah." The laugh that followed jarred the dead flies down from the wall.

In speaking of Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, who celebrated her eighty-fourth birthday recently, the Hartford Courant says: "The general health of this famous woman is better than it was on her birthday last year; her appetite is excellent, and her strength such that she is to be seen daily during this beautiful June weather walking with her attendant on Forest street, where is situated her pleasant home. Mrs. Stowe's physical powers are remarkable, in view of her advanced years, and no doubt her fondness for outdoor life does much to keep her in such good condition. Congratulations and remembrances will come to her to-morrow, as usual, from all parts of the country and from foreign lands. It is forty-three years now since "Uncle Tom's Cabin," her world-renowned novel, made its appearance, but its popularity has continued unabated until the present day."

I CAN LET IT ALONE.

"I can do something that you can't," said a boy to his companion; "I can chew tobacco."

"And I can do something that you can't, was the quick reply. "I can let tobacco alone."

Now this is the kind of a boy we love to see. The boy who has the backbone to refuse when asked to do a foolish or wicked thing is the one of whom we are proud. It is an easy matter to sail with the wind or float with the tide, and it is easy to form bad habits; so that none can boast over the power to do that. It is the one who can let them alone that is worthy of praise. And the best way to let tobacco alone is before the appetite for it has been formed. There is nothing inviting about it then.

Don't use it, boys. It is filthy, poisonous, disgusting stuff at its best. Be men enough to let it alone. Hold up your head and say that you are its master, and never intend to be its slave.

GREAT TEXAS.

It should be remembered that Texas has nearly 275,000 square miles and 174,585,840 acres. It has more coal than Pennsylvania, more iron than Alabama, more granite than New Hampshire, more oak than West Virginia, more prairie than Kansas, more corn land than Illinois, more cotton land than Mississippi, more wheat land than the two Dakotas, more sugar land than Louisiana, and more rice land than South Carolina. It contains as many rivers as any other five states, and as much coast as any other three. As was appropriately said by Mayor Tone, of Denison, the iron mines of Michigan, the granite quarries of Maine, the wheat fields of the Dakotas, the corn fields of Illinois, the cotton fields of Mississippi, the prairies of Kansas, the oyster beds of Maryland, the orange groves of Florida and the vineyards of California are all duplicated in Texas.—St. Louis Republic.

The young people of Clinton will participate in the pleasures of a social hop at the town hall tonight.

Considerable moving has been done in Clinton during the last week. Going into winter quarters, evidently.

Clark & Shimman enjoyed a large crowd at their fall opening last Saturday. We hardly suspect their sales were very heavy, as a woman rarely purchases a hat the first time she sees it. However, their harvest will surely come later, as their stock is very complete and tasty.

David Haggart died last Saturday, about noon, at the residence of his son David, west of Clinton. Mr. Haggart was an old resident of this section and was considered as one of the pioneers, few of whom are left in our midst. The funeral was held Monday afternoon, Rev. Ramsdell officiating.

The merchants on the south side have put in a complete new line of hitching posts of uniform pattern on their side of the street. The posts are of iron, connected by substantial iron piping, and are set in concrete cement. They will neither rot off, fall down, nor be chewed up by hungry equines. The gutter is also to be paved in front of the new stores and the posts will be extended around the corner.

The Freese-Whittlesey Co.'s opening, as advertised to take place last Saturday, took place. The company opened and their patrons and friends did the rest. Their two stores were filled, both on the ground floor and second story. Nearly 600 people partook of refreshments from their lunch room, which was open during the day. The members of the firm express themselves well pleased with the manner in which their efforts to show to the public a complete store in their lines were appreciated. The day's trade was also very large, showing that the visitors appreciated a good bargain as well as a pleasant sight and a toothsome lunch.

As we go to press, we expect that Chauncey Ogden and Art. T. Smith are well on their way back from Detroit, and from what we know now, it would be very difficult to tell which is ahead. They were to leave Clinton this morning [illegible] Detroit and back on their wheels, the winner to receive a substantial purse for his efforts. Ogden rides a Cleveland wheel while Smith propells a Victor. Both young men are good riders and their friends on either side are confident of their champion's winning, and the interest in this race is perhaps greater than in any event occurring here this season. Even some money is likely to change hands on the result of this match. So sanguine are the supporters of the boys. The distance, 52 miles and back, or 104 miles, will probably be covered in less than eight hours.
